BARE HUGE CITY HOUSING AND RAIL PROJECTS

Home, Depot Plans Top 100 Million.

Two big post-war building projects for Chicago, involving expenditures of more than $100,000,000, were revealed yesterday. They are:

1. A slum clearance bill was taken to Springfield for introduction in the state legislature today with Mayor Kelly's backing. It also was learned that a 100 million dollar list of city-owned housing projects is being prepared as the latest phase of the attack on the slum problem.

2. Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly have agreed to sponsor legislation for a Chicago Metropolitan Terminal authority, clothed with power to speed the construction of a single passenger station for all railroads entering Chicago, Joshua D'Esposito, project engineer of the public works administration, announced.

Housing Bill Power Wide.

The slum clearance bill was taken to the state capital by Richard J. Daley, senate minority leader and Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman. The measure would amend the cities and villages act to give Chicago the power to do the following:

"Acquire by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise, any improved or unimproved real property, the acquisition of which is necessary or appropriate for the rehabilitation or development of any blighted or slum area.

"To remove or demolish substandard or other buildings and structures from the property so acquired; to hold or use any of such property for public uses, and to sell, lease, or exchange such property as is not required for the public purposes of the municipality."

Seek Early Vote on Bonds.

Daley's bill defines blighted or slum areas as any section where the buildings, by reason of dilapidation, overcrowding, faulty arrangement and design, lack of ventilation, light, or sanitation facilities, or any combination of these factors, are a detriment to public safety, health, or morals.

Emergency passage of the bill will be sought to make possible a referendum before July 1 on a proposed 5 million dollar bond issue. The referendum, if possible, will be held in conjunction with the June 4 judicial election. The state is expected to appropriate another 5 million dollars.

With the Chicago housing authority using the 10 million dollars as capital to purchase blighted property, the city would ask the federal housing administration to lend 90 million dollars for the proposed city owned housing projects.

Speech Bares Terminal Plan.

D'Esposito disclosed the Green-Kelly plans for a metropolitan terminal authority in an address to the Western Society of Engineers in the Civic Opera building. He said the proposed legislation would create a municipal corporation to acquire and construct railroad, motor bus, ship, and aircraft terminals, and subsurface and surface parking facilities as terminals for passengers and freight.

The authority would be given the right to condemn property needed, to issue bonds and other paper, repayable solely from its revenues, and to lease its terminal units to private corporations, granting non-exclusive rights. Costs of operation of the terminal, as well as interest and part of the principal of the bonds, would be paid from rent, tolls, and fees paid by the leasing transportation lines. There would be no cost to taxpayers, it was stressed.

D'Esposito said the bill would give the terminal authority power to take over any terminal units from any public body. Asked if this meant the authority could take over from private corporations units such as the Union station, he said, "I think it could."

Pickets Patrol Movie Studios; 4 Closed Down

Hollywood, Cal., March 12 (AP).—Silence descended on the movie capital's big sound stages, one by one, today as the most serious strike in its history threatened to engulf the industry.

Famous stars reported for work at their studios, some to leave before the day's work was completed as union spokesmen pressed the strike in the face of an ultimatum from the war labor board. Pickets instead of autograph hunters patroled the gates.

Four Studios Close.

Four major studios shut down during the day—R-K-O, Warner Brothers, 20th Century-Fox, and Pathe, while Paramount, Universal, Columbia, and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer continued to operate.

Advised that the war labor board in Washington had instructed some 15,000 employes to return to work before it would further act on petitions by the producers for a review in a three cornered controversy, Herbert Sorrell, president of the Conference of Studio Unions, responded:

"When the producers comply with the WLB arbitrator's award . . . we will go back to work. Until then, there is no reason for us to go back. The producers haven't complied with the WLB award, so we say to hell with them."

The Conference of Studio Unions is made up of screen set designers, illustrators and decorators, studio machinists, cartoonists, office employes, publicists, story analysts, special office and grounds employes, and painters.

Producers in Middle.

Representatives of the producers termed the strike a jurisdictional dispute between two AFL unions, each trying to gain designation as the bargaining agent for 72 set decorators. The producers, in effect, said they could deal with neither union—the Painters' union, local 1421, and the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employes—until the jurisdictional dispute was settled and one or the other is determined the bargaining agent.

Sorrell and brother union leaders charged the producers were "stalling" and had refused to abide by a WLB ruling that gave the Painters' union control of the decorators. The producers, however, have petitioned the war labor board for a review.

Predict Strike Spread.

There were predictions that 30,000 workers would be idle within a few days unless the controversy was settled.

The powerful screen actors guild had made no decision on the controversy and left it to the individual's "conscience or contract" as to whether he walked thru the picket lines.

The actors are not affiliated in any way with the conference. However, members of the screen players union—comprising extras and stunt men—were refusing to cross picket lines.

As the day wore on, various units either walked off the lots or failed to return after noon. Included were numerous $110 to $150 a week press agents.

Most serious breakdown came when union members who operate the huge studio generators stepped out. Electricians of a rival union took over, in some instances, and production was resumed.

FALL OFF TRAIN DROPS $7,235 IN LAP OF POLICE

When Harry Hansbrough, 48, a Negro, stumbled while getting off a St. Louis train at the 47th st. Illinois Central station yesterday and dropped a small bowling bag from which showered several $5 bills, Patrolman Burton Beery took him to Hyde Park station. There police found a total of $7,235 in $5 bills Hansbrough had been carrying in the bag.

Inquiry to St. Louis police disclosed that by coincidence, $10,000 recently disappeared from the Chippewa Trust company of St. Louis, where Hansbrough formerly was employed as a porter.

St. Louis police said that an officer with a warrant for Hansbrough's arrest will leave for Chicago today. Hansbrough denied taking the money from the bank. He said it represented his savings.

SAILOR DIED THRU 'SLIP-UP' WHEN SUB DIVED, SAYS NAVY

Delta, Utah, March 12 [Special].—Mrs. Grant B. Snow, whose son, Joseph, 20, was lost at sea thru a "slipup" when a submarine submerged while he was on deck, said at her home here today "we are trying to console ourselves with the thought that it was one of those tragic but unavoidable accidents."

A congressional investigation of the accident was asked in congress today by Rep. Granger [D., Utah], who described the sailor's death as due to "almost criminal negligence."

Mrs. Snow said the family received a letter from the commanding officer of the submarine stating that an officer was assigned to see that all men were below before the ship submerged, but that there had been a slipup.

She said the navy reported Seaman Snow's absence was discovered a short time after he was washed overboard and that an intensive search was made. Granger told reporters in Washington that "the sub was submerged for six hours before a check showed a crewman missing."

"We of course feel that the death of our son was unnecessary," Mrs. Snow said. Joseph was born in Delta and was attending Dixie Junior college at St. George, Utah, when he joined the navy 1 June, 1943.

CANADIANS SEE SNAKE IN PLANE, BUT IT'S REAL!

LONDON, March 12 (AP).—A royal Canadian air force Dakota transport flew over mountainous territory in Burma with a viper threatening the crew members. The snake suddenly emerged from behind the instrument panel and was poised to strike the co-pilot, FO. M. H. Spencer of Midland, Ont. The navigator, PO. N. S. Collins of Rossland, B. C., drew a Gurkha knife and snicked off the reptile's head.

The snake was discovered earlier in the flight, but had crawled behind the panel "and no one volunteered to reach in for it," one crewman said. "Suddenly it was partly coiled around the control pedal beneath Spencer's foot, ready to strike at his ankle."

Spencer said he "went straight up in the air at least four feet" when he observed the viper. "Collins heard my shout and dashed up with a knife."

Firemen Are No Match for 50 Cigaret Buyers!

Allentown, Pa., March 12 (AP).—Fifty persons in line for cigarets refused to budge today as firemen fought their way into the store to extinguish a blaze. Sales of cigarets were resumed after firemen departed.

India Censorship Assailed; Yanks Want to Tell Views

'Hide Everything'

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, March 1—[By air mail].—British officials in India operate the strictest censorship in the empire and one which makes other censorships in the commonwealth "look like child's play," according to antipodean newspaper men returning from the India area after a period of service there.

Douglas Gardner, Sydney Morning Herald representative in the India-Burma zone and formerly accredited to the United States fleet in the South Pacific, in recently published conclusions covering the Indian censorship declared it was based on the desire of authorities not to permit any criticism of administrative acts or emphasis on political trends to appear outside India.

The defense of India rules, Gardner says, give the administration power to arrest and detain any editor, raid newspaper offices, and confiscate printing plants without giving any reason.

Censors Censor Each Other.

Correspondents also struggle against a blind censorship. Messages filed at Bombay, Delhi, and Calcutta are filtered thru one office at Bombay, where censors alter messages already passed by other censors at Delhi and Calcutta. Additionally, messages entering India, tho already cleared thru a London or Sydney censorship, are censored again in India from the point of view of their fitness to be read by the Indians and the British troops in India.

Censorship delayed revelations of the existence of a famine in Bengal, Gardner says. It was only after world attention was focused on the food crisis that officialdom was spurred to take effective action against it.

Tho tens of thousands of deaths were occurring in Bengal every week it was not until Sept. 25 that he was permitted to report that people were starving in Calcutta, Gardner says.

Ban Ended by Woman.

The ban on the use of the word "starvation" collapsed only after the wife of Viceroy Linlithgow used her privileged position to employ it in a radio talk.

These were the factors which led to the British war correspondents thru their editors raising the matter in the British house of commons, Gardner said. The southeast Asia command was wrongly blamed, he said, for the action of the Indian censorship, but the protest led to some slight relaxation. Until this action correspondents in Burma could not report what was happening on the front there.

Withhold Letters

ROME, March 12 (AP).—The entire staff of enlisted men on the Rome edition of the Stars and Stripes, United States army newspaper, has protested against newly imposed restrictions on the paper's "Mail Call" column of letters from readers. The restrictions, they contend, would make the column a device for "official instruction and orientation."

A written protest was handed to Maj. Robert Neville, publications officer, after a directive, which the Stars and Stripes staff contended circumscribed the field of discussion in published letters, had been issued from American army headquarters in the Mediterranean theater.

Insisted on Answers.

It is understood here that the directive insisted letters on controversial subjects should be published only when official replies could be made in the same issue. Stars and Stripes staffmen declined to discuss the subject. The controversy over the degree of free expression the troops should have in the paper came to light only when a war correspondent, visiting the Stars and Stripes office, saw a protest posted for the signatures of the soldier editors.

Col. Kenneth W. Clark, American public relations officer, in a telephone call from American field headquarters, told the Associated Press he understood some proposal for limiting subjects in the Mail Call column had emanated from a "lower echelon." He said that top rank American officers were insistent that the Stars and Stripes remain a vehicle for free expression for the troops.

Would Come as Blow.

In their formal protest the staffmen contended it would come as a blow to American soldiers to learn they "cannot be trusted to use their own forum of expression with full freedom."

The letter column has long been a widely read and loudly argued daily feature, in which enlisted men and officers alike have been wont to air their views and seek information on such diversified matters as the Chaplin paternity case and ways of preparing field rations.

OVERRUN JAPS' POSITIONS WITH MINOR LOSSES

Surprised Foe Gives Up Pillboxes.

MANILA, March 13 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Yanks of Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st infantry division overran strong Japanese positions on southwestern Mindanao Sunday as they captured the civic center of Zamboanga and a strategic air field only 200 miles northeast of Borneo.

Gen. MacArthur said today the doughboys, who invaded the second largest island in the Philippines on Saturday, 24 hours later were "overrunning strong steel and concrete pillbox and artillery positions with only minor losses."

MacArthur said the Japanese at Zamboanga, caught off guard by the amphibious landing, had not yet been able to organize their defenses.

Has 4,000 Foot Air Strip.

The air field captured was near San Roque, four miles west of the Zamboanga governmental seat. The village of San Roque was seized along with four others shortly after the invasion.

The Yanks previously overran a smaller air strip, Wolfe field, in their lightning sweep from the invasion beaches. The San Roque airdrome, considerably larger, is one of the best in Mindanao. There was no mention of fighting for the San Roque airdrome, which has an air strip 4,000 feet long.

Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines reported the Japanese were using mortars from hill positions with good effect, however. A headquarters spokesman said the Yanks faced moderate machine gun and mortar fire as they entered the city center.

Air and Naval Aid.

The ground forces were supported by both air and naval units which also attacked enemy installations on Basilan Island, 12 miles south of Zamboanga. American heavy bombers swept the air field at Jolo, main city of the Sulu archipelago, southwest of Mindanao.

On Luzon troops of the 1st cavalry division and 6th infantry division continued to advance on the front east of Manila, capturing high ground beyond the town of Antipolo.

Doughboys of the 6th division repulsed several counter-attacks and smashed into the hills southeast of Montalban.

On the southwest Luzon front elements of the 11th air borne division approached the shore of Lake Tali. The 32d infantry division, pushing thru the mountains of northeast Luzon, reached a point within four miles of Balete pass.

An additonal 1,092 Japanese have been killed or found dead in the last week, the bulletin said, on Leyte, Burias, and other islands in the Samar sea.

Reds Capture Kuestrin, Nazi Fort on Oder

LONDON, March 13 (AP).—Kuestrin, principal strong point in the Oder river defenses 38 miles northeast of Berlin, fell today to Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian army, and German broadcasts said six soviet divisions were thrusting toward Berlin from bridgeheads west of the river.

Announcement of the capture of Kuestrin after a week of bitter fighting was made by Premier Stalin in an order of the day.

Nine Miles to Danzig.

The Germans, usually well in advance of the Russians in announcement of developments on the eastern front, lagged behind Moscow in reporting capture of Kuestrin.

The German defenders had to be blasted out of the citadel city on the Oder's east bank, where the Oder and Warthe rivers meet. Much of Kuestrin was destroyed, block by block, by soviet dive bombers, artillery, mortars, and flame throwers.

Berlin commentators said the soviet thrusts from bridgeheads south of Kuestrin had been merged "into a single attack on a broad front" and were supported by strong air formations.

Tells of Hurricane of Fire.

"Our troops," said Nazi War Reporter Hugo Morero in a broadcast, "have to face a hurricane of fire from 70 batteries and incessant bombing. The enemy attacked 25 times in regiment strength with tank support and, altho he breached our lines here and there, did not succeed in breaking thru."

One commentator said the new offensive was aimed at "extension of the Russian bridgeheads and at getting the Oder crossings out of range of German artillery." Moscow did not confirm German reports of the attacks.

With the fall of Kuestrin, which had a pre-war population of 22,000, Zhukov's forces were arrayed along 120 miles of the Oder's east bank from Crossen, 65 miles southeast of Berlin, to the Stettiner haff, the lagoon into which the river empties north of the besieged port of Stettin.

The Russians pressed their heavy attacks on Stettin, Danzig, and Gdynia, and smashed to the Gulf of Danzig at a point 12 miles north of Gdynia.

Eight Miles from Gdynia.

Stalin announced the capture of Tczew [Dirschau], 19 miles southeast of Danzig on the west bank of the Vistula river; Neustadt [Wejherowo], 13 miles northeast of Gdynia, and Putzig [Puck], a coast town 12 miles northwest of Gdynia and 10 northeast of Neustadt.

The bulletin from Moscow disclosed that Marshal Rokossovsky's forces northwest of Danzig actually had sliced that territory into small sectors and had pushed within eight miles of Gdynia on the west and southwest.

These forces also speared north-

RUHR FACTORY CITIES PERILED; 23 TOWNS WON

40,000 Americans in New Push: Berlin.

PARIS, March 13 (AP).—The United States 1st army jumped off early today in the first big allied assault east of the Rhine, scored gains up to two and a half miles, and expanded its bridgehead to nearly five miles deep and 11 miles wide.

At least two more towns were seized, bringing to 23 the number captured on the east bank since the Americans charged across the Ludendorff bridge from Remagen last Wednesday.

The Germans said Lt. Gen. Hodges had thrown 40,000 troops, including two armored and two infantry divisions, into the push which placed the Ruhr's factory cities in their gravest peril of the war.

The greatest American advance was eastward. More than four miles almost due east of Remagen bridge, tanks and infantry seized Ginsterhahn and Hargarten, slashed across a German lateral supply line, and pressed to within three miles of a super-highway to the Ruhr.

25 Miles from Ruhr.

Previously the Americans had driven five miles north into Honnef on one main highway to the Ruhr, and were less than 25 miles from the southern region of the 600 square mile basin teeming with war factories. One counter-attack was beaten back at Honnef today.

Eleven miles south of Honnef forces driving south fought into Hoenningen, six miles southeast of the Ludendorff bridge.

Don Whitehead, Associated Press correspondent, said the attack rolled over the steep, wooded hills of the Westerwald in the blackness of 5 a. m.

At first the Americans were met by small arms, self-propelled guns and a few tanks, but later the Germans threw crack units into the line and began striking back with small counter-thrusts.

Hurled from Heights.

The Germans were hurled from heights east of the Rhine and to the south. This robbed them of direct observation of their artillery fire, which was cratering the bridgehead and had scored a number of ineffectual hits on the Ludendorff bridge, the Remagen lifeline.

Boats shuttled men and supplies across the Rhine to lift some of the load from the bridge, and the Germans said Hodges had established "many Rhine crossings" north of the bridge."

Whitehead said that Hodges had so much power massed across the river that only a major counter-assault could budge it.

Important Gains Scored.

Gains in the bridgehead overnight were measured in hundreds of yards, but they were important ones since they were clearing the Germans from dominant heights.

Every yard gained decreased the accuracy of enemy artillery fire, which in the five days since the Americans crossed has been the main opposition.

This country into which the Americans are charging is known as the Westerwald, densely wooded hills 600 to 900 feet high guarding the south flank of the Ruhr and the north German plain.

The Americans were fighting under an umbrella of hundreds of warplanes, discouraging enemy bombers which made occasional passes at the bridge. Enemy supply lines east of the bridgehead, leading from Berlin and the Ruhr, were seared by 800 attacking warplanes.

A news dimout settled over most of the rest of the western front, where for 150 miles along the Rhine Gen. Eisenhower holds the initiative and has armies in position to cross at any number of points.

One enemy account said the British 2d army was making "frantic preparations" for a crossing between the Dutch border and Emmerich, nine miles to the east.

Artillery duels raged across the river, the enemy said, as German batteries tried to knock off balance what the Nazis apparently believed would be a large scale allied offensive.

There was little news seeping thru from the United States 3d army front, where Lt. Gen. Patton's forces drew up assault lines a mile from Coblenz and to the west had broken the once huge Eifel mountain trap containing 23,000 Germans into two small pockets.

Advance North of Moselle.

Third army troops advanced another 4½ miles eastward along the north side of the Moselle river to reach the vicinity of Reil, giving Patton's forces control of all the north bank of the river except for a 10 mile gap from Reil to Kochem.

Other units gained the same distance in an eastward drive across the tip of the Germans' dwindling Moselle salient. More than 10 towns were cleared during the day.

In the last week the 3d army has captured 16,000 of the 50,000 prisoners taken on the western front. Associated Press Correspondent Edward D. Ball said the 3d army had destroyed one-half the combat strength of the German 7th army during the Eifel operations now drawing to a close. Since the Ardennes collapse the Germans have lost 185,000 prisoners, or the equivalent of 20 divisions, Ball said.

Patroling flared on the dormant United States 7th army front at the foot of the Saar basin and in northeastern France.

NAZI WAR SUMMARY.

The German war report said yesterday:

"On the Rhine the situation between Emmerich and Bonn is marked by regroupings of both sides. Enemy movements and concentrations were shelled by our concentric artillery fire.

"East of Remagen fluctuating fighting continues without fresh enemy forces having been able to considerably extend their narrow bridgehead.

"In the Coblenz area, in the approaches to the Eifel and east of the river Kyll, American pressure in direction of the Moselle continues.

"Several localities northwest of Berncastel were recaptured in strong counter-attacks. A small battle unit of a volksgrenadier division beat back enemy forces who had broken into the German lines temporarily east of Trier and brought in many prisoners.

IKE CITES GREAT DAMAGE BY AIR RAIDS ON NAZIS

LONDON, March 12 (AP).—Allied armies advancing into the German Rhineland are everywhere confronted with striking evidence of the effectiveness of bombing campaigns, Gen. Eisenhower said in a message to Air Chief Marshall Arthur T. Harris, chief of the R. A. F. bomber command.

"City after city has been systematically shattered," Gen. Eisenhower said. "Here and there, possibly because of their relative unimportance as industrial centers, certain towns have been largely spared. These present a remarkable contrast to the ruins of Aachen, Juelich, Dueren, Cologne, and other Rhineland cities that have been targeted by our big bombers day after day and night after night.

"The effect on the war economy of Germany has obviously been tremendous—a fact that advancing troops are quick to appreciate and which unfailingly reminds them of the heroic work of their comrades in the bomber command and the United States air forces."

NEW TEMPEST PLANE FLIES AT 435 MI. AN HOUR

LONDON, March 12 (AP).—The Hawker Tempest Mark V., first of the Tempest fighter plane series to be put into production, has a maximum speed of 435 miles an hour and a ceiling of 36,000 feet, it was announced by the air ministry today.

Its tactical radius is 500 miles, altho this can be extended thru use of auxiliary fuel tanks. Armament consists of four 20 mm. cannon in the wings. The plane has a 2,400 horse power engine and a four bladed propellor, a bullet proof windscreen, and armor forward and aft of the pilot.

It scored its first victory in the air last June.

HODGES VISITS BRIDGEHEAD AND ESCAPES SHELL

Traffic at Span Is Like Oil Rush.

BY HOWARD COWAN.

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY ACROSS THE RHINE, March 11 [Delayed]—(AP).—From the traffic around this bridgehead, you'd think somebody had struck oil.

And in the thick of this traffic, Lt. Gen. Hodges came across for an hour's inspection of the bridgehead which his soldiers were pushing out on the flanks. He came in the midst of a shower of enemy shellfire, and one shell landed within 50 feet of the commander. No one was hurt.

The Germans still are shelling the entire countryside, refusing to give up the thought they can knock out the Remagen bridge. If planes could get one decent day in the skies, they could pulverize the perimeter of the bridgehead.

Remagen Heavily Shelled.

The little town of Remagen has taken a terrific pounding from German shells. But the streets are full of civilians and soldiers and vehicles.

I crossed the river in an artillery spotter's Cub, piloted by Maj. James Townsend of Stanton, Ky.

It's amazing the way these Cub pilots get around. They land anywhere. Maj. Townsend's outfit rushed down to the bridgehead with the big guns the morning after the 9th armored division seized the bridge. Since then, they have been all over the front lines.

Lt. Randall E. Pack of Indianapolis had a close call yesterday. He was flying on an observation mission when a Focke Wulf 190 whined in to make a pass at the bridge.

Fly Alongside Each Other.

Ack ack opened up and, Townsend said, "for a minute the Cub and Focke Wulf were flying alongside each other." The Cub slipped down and flew so low that it bounced off a hill. The German went on in with its bomb for the bridge, but missed."

Among other members of Townsend's force are Lt. W. A. Dilburg of Michigan, Lt. Richard Schroeder of Gary, Ind., and Lt. Herbert Keihler of Milwaukee.

Maj. Townsend made the first landing in the bridgehead, coming down "in a little old pea patch. It was too soft to take off from so I had to find me another one and taxi over to it," he explained.

Point System Used in British Housing Problem

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 12.—The Walthamstow borough council of east London has adopted the point system to help solve the housing problem for bombed-outs, it announced today. Big families and sick persons rate the highest priority under the new scheme. Children of school age rate one to three points, adolescents 16 to 21, five points, and persons over 21, 10 points. Persons suffering from tuberculosis are allowed 15 points, with two points added for each month of waiting.

NAZI SLAUGHTER OF OWN MEN IN RETREAT BARED

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY IN GERMANY, March 12.—Nazi SS [elite guard] troops blew up the Kronprinz Wilhelm bridge near Coblenz while their own comrades were crossing it and then machine gunned the survivors struggling in the water. This charge was made by eyewitnesses now captives.

The witnesses, including a German captain, three air force pilots, and 22 Ukrainians fighting with the German army, said a German column ambushed by American artillery was fleeing for the east bank of the Rhine across the bridge, which was suddenly blown up when packed almost solid with men and vehicles.

Guns Drown Out Cries.

The demolition charge wrecked the center span of the bridge, throwing dozens of men into the water, many of them wounded. Witnesses said they were crying for help while struggling to reach the far bank but their cries were suddenly drowned out by the vicious chatter of machine guns manned by the elite troops. The Nazi hatchetmen chopped down all in the water, including those who, realizing their own comrades were murdering them, tried to make their way back to the west bank.

The only reason advanced for the action probably is that it was an effort to force the remainder of the German troops in the Moselle-Rhine triangle to keep on fighting against the Yanks.

U. S. Officers Believe Story.

American officers do not doubt the veracity of the report since the four Germans told their tales separately while the Ukrainians' stories jibed in essential particulars. Then, too, the remains of the ambushed convoy, whose wreckage leads right up to the wrecked bridge, are mute testimonial to how near it was to safety when disaster finally hit on the morning of March 9.

Those who have seen it say the wreckage lines the road for a couple of miles—a horrible tangle of dead men, horses, smashed vehicles, many of the former crushed by the vehicles behind trying to force a pathway of escape from punishing shell fire.

1,700 Captured.

Some 1,700 prisoners were captured from this convoy while the counted list of equipment destroyed includes 137 trucks, 38 staff cars, 25 half-tracks, three Tiger tanks, dozens upon dozens of 88 and 20 mm. guns, 1,400 rounds of artillery ammunition, and a huge stack of small arms.

TAKE CANADIANS FROM OWN ARMY TO HELP BRITISH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., March 12.—At one time last autumn, there was not a Canadian division fighting in the Canadian 1st army, A. G. L. McNaughton, minister of defense, said today. The army was made up of British and other units, he disclosed.

Canadian divisions in northwest Europe were fighting at the time in the British 2d army. Two other Canadian divisions and an armored brigade were with the British 8th army in Italy, to which they still are assigned.

Gen. McNaughton said the Canadian 1st army has at times included Polish, Czech, Greek, Dutch, and American troops, as well as British.

SPORADIC FIRING BREAKS SILENCE OF ALPINE FRONT

Yanks, French Hold Forgotten Sector.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HDQ. AMERICAN FORCES ON THE FRENCH ALPS FRONT, March 12.—This "forgotten front" runs 200 miles along the Alpine frontier between France and Italy, guarded on one side by French forces of the interior and elements of the United States 5th army, and on the other by Germans and a sprinkling of Italians. It extends roughly from the Swiss border west of the great St. Bernard pass in an irregular line along the mountains down to a point between Menton, France, and Ventimiglia, Italy, on the Mediterranean.

Most of the time the front is quiet, but there are sporadic artillery duels and patrol clashes. Only then do the carefree burghers in luxurious resorts in Nice and Monte Carlo realize that war is nearby, and some one is making it possible for them to bask in the sunshine.

Peaks Fortified.

Our problem is one of defending a score of mountain passes, which are strongly guarded by forts on the peaks. Figuratively speaking, a platooon in one of these forts could prevent a division of Germans from getting thru. During two weeks in June, 1940, a handful of French soldiers in these forts held back heavy Italian forces and inflicted terrific casualities.

Only two railway lines go thru the mountains, one from Modane to Bardonnechia, and the other along the Mediterranean from Menton to Ventimiglia. Besides this, there are only six routes over which vehicles may pass and probably 12 to 15 narrow mule paths.

The fortifications built by the French can sweep the valleys with artillery and machine gun fire. Many of them are still intact. The retreating enemy did not have time to blow them up. Some of the crests have been fortified since Napoleon's day, but most of the forts date from the time Mussolini boasted he was going to grab Nice and Chambery from France with a Black Shirt army.

By Jeep to the Front.

Equipped with jeep and driver and K-rations, I have just spent several days visiting forts and positions held by Americans. The sector begins 25 to 30 kilometers [15 to 18 miles] up a winding mountain road thru l'Escarene, east of Nice. The jeep bounded over Braus pass, then bowled down to Sospel, where I found American front posts, manned by excellent Japanese American troops.

My Wisconsin driver and I lunched at the command post, and later the colonel commanding the sector sent us up to a crest where a fort commands the valleys running down to the Italian side. The fort is a Maginot line in miniature, deep underground with protruding turrets, advance observation posts in some and guns in others.

Fire Across Valley.

Our troops who had been out on patrol the night before were firing across the valley. The Germans did not return the fire, but now and then batteries farther north pounded out echoing salvoes. Sometimes there is sniping. Italians fighting with the Germans frequently give themselves up.

Menton, which has been considerably damaged, is evacuated. Its elegant hotel and villas are deserted or used as troop billets. It is in full sight of the Germans holding Ventimiglia, just around the bay on the Italian side. The streets between the empty houses are lined with tangerine and orange trees, now heavily loaded with ripe fruit and no one to gather it.

Out in the bay before Menton, a gunboat threw a smoke screen around itself and then began to fire at Ventimiglia. In the flat coastal stretch between Menton and Ventimiglia there is a wide no man's land.

From Menton, one takes a high crowned road back along the coast to Beaulieu, Nice, and Cannes, where there is music and wassail at night, soldiers on leave, and pretty girls—and little consciousness of war.

GERMANS IN ITALY ORDERED TO DEFEND EVERY INCH OF SOIL

ROME, Italy, March 12 (AP).—Field Marshal Kesselring has ordered German troops to defend every inch of Italian territory as if they were fighting on the soil of Germany itself, it was disclosed today as Nazi resistance stiffened greatly along the United States 5th army front.

"You do not defend Italy in these battles, but Germany itself," said the order, which was found on a German prisoner. "Not one inch of ground must be surrendered to our enemies without a battle."

Kesselring's order gave contradiction to rumors that the Germans planned to withdraw from northern Italy soon.

YANKS, BRITISH RAID RUHR AND BALTIC AREAS

LONDON, March 12 (AP).—Great fleets of American heavy bombers and the largest force of British heavies ever used in daylight formed a mighty armada of more than 2,550 planes which ravaged Germany's communciations and industries from the Ruhr to the Baltic sea today—partly in direct support of Russia's armies.

As the war's greatest sustained aerial assault raged thru its 28th day, the R. A. F. sent more than 1,200 Halifaxes and Lancasters to unload 5,000 tons of bombs on Dortmund. At the same time 650 American heavies blasted the German naval base of Swinemuende.

The British air ministry said the force hurled against Dortmund was even larger than the 1,200 plane attack unloosed Sunday on Essen—which would make the Dortmund attack the biggest yet in daylight by the R. A. F.

Tonight R. A. F. Mosquito bombers attacked Berlin.

BRITISH DRIVERS STRIKE; TROOPS HAUL WORKERS

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England, March 12 [Reuters].—With nearly 4,000 road transport workers out on strike here, more royal army service corps drivers were drafted into the Newcastle area to take war workers to and from shipyards, coal mines, and other essential establishments in military trucks.

Drivers and conductors of the four companies involved claim that an amendment of work schedules, extending services until 10 o'clock at night, brought about a dislocation of shifts and is unfair.

Firemen Tie Up Mines.

GLASGOW, Scotland, March 12 [Reuters].—Six thousand Scottish coal miners were still out today because firemen were on strike.

RESCUERS TELL OF TEARS, JOY AT CABANATUAN

The gamut of emotions and wild reaction that overwhelmed 513 allied prisoners when they were released Jan. 30 at Cabanatuan prison on Luzon was described here yesterday by four members of the picked detail of 6th battalion rangers which effected their rescue.

Flown from the Philippines, the men arrived in Chicago from Washington, D. C., where they were the guests of President Roosevelt and Gen. Stillwell. They are: Staff Sgt. Charles W. Brown, 29, of 1642 Thorne st., Chicago Heights; Pvt. LeRoy Myerhoff, 26, of 1207 1st av., Evansville, Ind.; Sgt. Robert G. Anderson, 25, of Trenton, Tenn., and Pvt. Charles S. Swain, 23, of 108 West st., Beaver Dam, Wis. All four wear the bronze star.

Tell of Hazardous Trip.

In a press conference at army public relations headquarters in the Civic opera house, the quartet told of the valiant march into enemy territory 25 miles beyond the American front line by the 121 rangers and 286 Filipino guerrillas who accompanied them. In the assault on the prison 523 Japs, including its whole garrison, were killed. The rangers' toll was two killed and three wounded.

"It was a moot question whether we or the prisoners were the happiest," said Sgt. Brown. "I know that I was happier than I have ever been before to see those prisoners when they knew they were free at last."

Pvt. Myerhoff said one prisoner, who had been bedfast, "stood on his feet for the first time in two years and told me, 'Don't leave me for I may need your help.'"

Came Well Provided.

Gaunt, haggard men with barely the strength to stand rushed up to the rangers and kissed them on the cheeks.

The rangers came well provided with cigarets and that was the first thing the prisoners received. An elderly man, who hadn't had coffee since he entered prison, was given a canteenful. He drank half of it, then broke down and cried like a baby.

A soldier called to another prisoner, "Come on, Dad, let's get going." And the prisoner replied "What do you mean, I'm younger than you are." He looked like an old man, but he was only 25.

Souvenirs Left Behind.

Another prisoner—once he realized rescue wasn't a dream—wanted to dash back to the barracks "to get some souvenirs." He was persuaded to give this up "if you want to get out of here alive."

Out of the prison, the rescuers said, came approximately 200 litter cases. These men were carried by the Filipinos to the river where they were placed in caribou carts.

One of the most touching scenes, the soldiers said, was at Quimba where hard-boiled Lt. Gen. Krueger of the 6th army greeted the prisoners with tears in his eyes. On the same date 44 years ago, they said, the general had received his commission as a 2d lieutenant at that spot.

Given 35 Cases of Beer.

The four soldiers laughed in recalling how they were presented with 35 cases of beer as a token of gratitude when they met the released men later at a replacement depot.

A series of talks in war plants and at community rallies has been arranged for the rangers in the 4th, 5th and 6th service commands. Later they will have 30 day leaves to go to their homes. They will report May 6 at a California replacement center and then rejoin their outfit overseas.

C. O. STOCKHOLM GETS NAVY RANK OF COMMANDER

Comdr. Stockholm.

Carl O. Stockholm, 5927 Washington blvd., formerly senior patrol officer of the 9th naval district with headquarters in Chicago, has been promoted to commander in the naval reserve, it was announced yesterday. Comdr. Stockholm is the senior shore patrol officer of the service force of the Pacific fleet and is stationed in Honolulu. He recently was appointed to the seven man joint army-navy disciplinary control board for the Pacific ocean areas.

15 FIRES RAGE IN NAGOYA 12 HOURS AFTER B-29 RAID

21ST BOMBER COMMAND, Guam, March 13 (AP).—Fifteen fires still were burning in Nagoya, chief aircraft production center of Japan, 12 hours after a night incendiary raid by more than 300 B-29 bombers.

Reconnaissance photographs disclosed today the greatest single item in the official list of targets was the Aichi aircraft works' Eitoku plant. A total of 358,000 square feet [nearly 14 per cent of the roof area] was destroyed. This included complete gutting of one of the main sub-assembly buildings.

Smoke still obscured a large portion of the city, but the 21st bomber command does not expect to find any extensive damage under the smoke, said Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay, commander of the 21st, after viewing the pictures.

Steel Plant Damaged.

Major damage was done in five areas centered two miles south of Nagoya castle, but the flames evidently were controled just as they started to merge. Moderate damage was reported at the Hokoku Machinery company plant and minor damage to the Atsuta factory of the Nagoya arsenal; to harbor facilities; to the Daido electric steel plant, Tsukiji plant; to the Nissan chemical plant and the Sumitomo light metals plant.

Lemay said, however, the strike was not as successful as the Tokyo mission 48 hours earlier, when more than 300 B-29s devastated the heart of the Japanese capital. Neither did the fires spread as rapidly as in Tokyo, he added. Latest information raised from 15 to 16.7 square miles the extent of destruction in Tokyo, Lemay said.

Additional targets destroyed in Tokyo were Nisso Steel Manufacturing company, Fujikura Electric Cable works, Tokyo Gas company [Suranachi branch], Tokyo Kozia company, and Tsukiji market and warehouse.

"Nagoya looked like the inside of a great furnace," said Lt. Clark Koller, McNabb, Ill., airplane commander who was on his fifth mission over Japan.

One B-29 was lost over Nagoya, it was announced here. Two were lost in the Tokyo raid.

As the first B-29s landed at their home bases from the Tokyo raid Saturday, ground personnel were informed the planes had to be made flyable again within less than 36 hours for the Nagoya raid. They pitched in to perform a maintenance miracle.

Besides refueling and "bombing up," the ground crews had to tune up and in some instances change engines. They had to clean and repair guns, repair battle damage, check and recheck all parts. Within 12 hours, more than 78 per cent of all B-29s getting attention were ready to go again. By zero hour, the total had been raised to 90 per cent.

Eight hours later the air crews were spilling fire on Nagoya.

40 B-29s Hit Singapore.

Another force of 40 Super Fortresses, flying from an India base, hit factories adjacent to the Japanese held Singapore naval base today. The raid followed by two days an attack on Kuala, Lampur, Malaya, 200 miles north of Singapore.

An imperial Japanese bulletin broadcast by Tokyo radio said the Nagoya raid continued from midnight to 3:20 a. m. and that fires started "at various points in the city" were "nearly brought under control by 10 a. m." Tokyo radio reported a lone B-29 kept the Tokyo air raid system in a state of alarm from 9 to 9:15 tonight.

Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May said after hearing Nagoya reports that "it apparently was a very good raid."

YANKS CAPTURE ZAMBOANGA AND SECOND AIR FIELD

fought for the historic city of Zamboanga today.

Jumping off at 7:30 a. m., two regiments crossed the Billiwasan river, two and a half miles from the city. By 9:30 one regiment had patrols two-thirds of the way across the San Roque air strip, another primary objective.

Two assault platoons, supported by medium tanks, were dispatched to Santa Maria, northeast of San Roque field. They were slowed by fire from 75 millimeter Jap guns, mortars, and numerous mines. The main highway to Zamboanga, along which the heaviest fighting has raged, is thickly planted with mines.

Mortars Hit LSTs.

Moving westward toward Calderas bay, a seaplane base, one company was pinned down overnight at the Sinogog river, but succeeded in getting patrols across after dawn.

Heavy enemy mortar and artillery fire curtailed LST unloading operations. One LST was hit on the bridge by a mortar burst, resulting in some casualties. Another mortar burst set fire to a small gasoline dump.

Lt. Gen. Eichelberger, 8th army commander, went ashore a few hours after the landing to confer with Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe, formerly of Chicago, 41st division commander. Gen. Eichelberger interrogated two Jap prisoners while Russell Brines, Associated Press correspondent and one of two newspaper men who made the Mindanao landing, served as interpreter. Brines once lived in Japan.

The prisoners were tattered, but apparently well fed. They knew of the fall of Manila and Bataan, but had not heard of the American capture of Corregidor.

Occupy Jap Trenches.

Wolfe [Calarian] air strip turned out to be a coral based field overgrown with grass three feet high. It was surrounded with double strands of new barbed wire. The field's only visible "protection" was a dummy Jap tank. Farther to the west, troops found abandoned Jap pillboxes and trenches. They promptly occupied them for the night.

Many Illinois men are members of a regiment of the 41st division. "It used to be a Montana outfit, but we moved in and took it over," said T/5 Frank Modla of 4856 S. Winchester av., Chicago.

Other Chicagoans on the beachhead were T/5 Benedict Boryszewski, 5335 S. California av.; Corp. David Leavitte, 1737 Latrobe av.; Staff Sgt. James Beggs, 1019 Keystone av.; Pvt. Andrew Jualand, 1142 Grand av.; Pvt. Raymond Huss, 2212 13th st., and T/5 Chester Stefan of 9105 Drexel av. With them was Corp. John Unger of Wilmette.

The outstanding individual fighter of the first day ashore was Sgt. Clarence Holmgren of Portland, Ore., who was credited with killing six of 12 Japs who ambushed his patrol.

LET MacARTHUR LEAD FINAL JAP DRIVE: CHANDLER

Senators Call Him the 'Best Strategist.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—Praise of Gen. MacArthur as "America's greatest military strategist" today followed a demand by Sen. Taft [R., O.] that the liberator of Jap held territory from the Solomons to the Philippines be brought home to help plan the final defeat of Japan.

Sen. Chandler [D., Ky.], member of the senate military affairs committee, said in an interview that Gen. MacArthur should be given the supreme command of the final drive against Japan. "He has proved he knows more than any other man about licking the Japs," Chandler declared.

"Greatest Strategist."

"In the Southwest Pacific commands, MacArthur has been America's greatest strategist," said Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.], another military committee member. "He has conserved American lives because he has gained all his objectives without making his doughboys expendable. I would be glad to see him in command of any operation against the Japanese."

"It is six years since MacArthur was in Washington," Taft told reporters. "But in recent weeks, Adm. Nimitz, Adm. Halsey, Gen. Wedemeyer [commanding the China theater of operations], and other leaders in the war against Japan have been here for consultations.

"I think it is high time MacArthur is brought here so that the high command can consult him on the strategy for the final push against Japan. He certainly has shown he knows how to fight the Japs as well as the navy knows how to fight them in its field."

Lot of Fighting to Do.

Sen. Johnson said he didn't think much could be gained by bringing MacArthur to Washington at this time because, he said, there was still a lot of fighting to be done in the Philippines and East Indies.

"I don't know the strategy planned, but it could be our forces will merely burn Japan to a crisp, destroy her navy and industrial economy, and not have to wage a land campaign," Johnson said. "In that event, it would be a navy job."

The senate military committee held a closed session today with Undersecretary of War Patterson, but committee members said there was no discussion of Taft's suggestion to bring MacArthur to Washington.

CHINESE BREAK UP JAP LANDING NEAR FOOCHOW

Chungking, China, March 12 (AP).—Chinese forces have frustrated a small scale Japanese attempt to land on the coast of Fukien province 40 miles south of Japanese held Foochow, killing 100 of the enemy and driving off the rest, Chinese dispatches said today.

The landing attempt was covered by two Japanese warships and probably represented an effort to expand the enemy's protective area around Foochow as a safeguard against a possible American landing, the dispatches said.

Other Chinese reports said Chinese forces had broken into the city of Suichwan in Kiangsi province, former site of an important advanced base of the United States 14th air force. Fighting was continuing inside the city.

GUNNERS BLAST A JAP TORPEDO RACING TO SHIP

Washington, D. C., March 12 (AP).—Gunners of the S. S. Robert J. Walker blew up one Japanese torpedo speeding toward it, but the Liberty ship was abandoned after two other torpedoes found their mark, war shipping administration reported tonight.

One crewman was killed and another missing after the action, which took place off Australia several weeks ago. The rest of the crew escaped in life boats and were picked up by an Australian destroyer.

MARINES SHRINK JAP IWO POCKET; FOE BATTLES ON

Warships Continue to Shell Foxholes.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, March 13 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's 5th marine division reduced the area of the last sizable pocket held by the Japanese around Kitano point on the northern end of Iwo Monday, but enemy resistance there still continued stiff, headquarters said today.

The 5th's gain was small and had to be made foot by foot against a bitterly resisting foe. However, there were indications that Japanese power to resist on the island is weakening steadily.

A smaller pocket on the northeast coast continued to hold out against Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's 3d marine division and Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' 4th division.

The navy bulletin's wording made it evident, however, that in a large sense the Iwo operation, 23 days old today, is in its mopup stage.

Warships Shell Japs.

Warships of the 5th fleet shelled the rugged portion held by the enemy on the north tip and the army fighters, based on southern Iwo, gave the leathernecks close support. Other army fighters flew north to keep enemy bases in the Bonins neutralized.

Eleventh army air force Liberators bombed the Kuriles north of the Japanese homeland Sunday, hitting Suribachi on Paramushiro and Kataoka on Shumushu, leaving fires which sent up smoke for 15,000 feet.

John Lardner Wounded.

IWO ISLAND, Feb. 26 [Delayed]—(AP).—John Lardner, injured by a rock sent flying into his groin by a Japanese sniper's bullet two days ago, was the 17th casualty among civilian and marine combat correspondents in the first week of fighting on Iwo. Lardner, 33, correspondent for North American Newspaper alliance and Newsweek and New Yorker magazines, was painfully but not seriously hurt.

Two marine enlisted correspondents have been killed and 11 wounded and two marine public relations officers wounded.

'WE SLAYED 'EM,' MARINE WRITES FROM IWO PEAK

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hermanek, 2406 S. Ridgeland av., Berwyn, were excited yesterday over a letter written atop Mount Suribachi on Iwo Island by their son, Corp. Thomas Hermanek, 21, with the 5th marine division.

Corp. Thomas Hermanek.

"I don't know whether you can read this or not," Corp. Hermanek wrote. "I'm writing this letter on the very peak of Suribachi. The battle for this 'gem of the Pacific' is still in full stride. Our Jap audience liked our road show a great deal. In fact, I'd say we really slayed 'em!"

Corp. Hermanek enlisted immediately after the attack on Pearl Harbor, and was inducted into the marine corps on Jan. 6, 1942. After basic training in San Diego, Cal. he volunteered for membership in Carlson's Raiders, and was trained under the personal supervision of Col. Evans F. Carlson. The corporal participated in the battle of Midway, Guadalcanal, and Bougainville before becoming part of the force invading Iwo. His parents said that Corp. Hermanek is proud of several "firsts." He told them he was one of the first men on Bougainville soil, and also one of the first to set foot on Iwo.

ward to the Baltic coast 16 miles north of Neustadt and captured a town nine miles northwest of Danzig. Other Russian gains left the Nazis only a strip along the coast eight to nine miles wide and extending 22 miles southeastward thru Gdynia to the edge of Danzig.

Berlin's Baltic port of Stettin remained under battering siege. German reports said the Red army was attacking Stettin from two directions with at least four infantry armies and supporting armored forces.

Berlin said the Swinemuende naval base and Stettin's outer harbor had been the target of air assault by allied heavy bombers, apparently in support of Marshal Zhukov's forces, which have wedged into Stettin's defenses at Altdamm and threatened to make amphibious crossings of the Oder above and below the port city.

Silesian Push Reported.

German reports again told of a Russian offensive on Marshal Konev's Upper Silesian front aimed at Moravska-Ostrava and said it apparently was timed to coincide with another soviet drive on the same city from southern Poland. This drive still has not been reported from Moscow.

Bitter fighting continued between the Drava river and Lake Balaton in Hungary.

GERMAN WAR BULLETIN.

Germany's broadcast war summary yesterday said:

"Between Frankfurt and Kuestrin our troops smashed continuous Russian attacks.

"In the battle of the Stettin bridgehead our forces withstood the onslaught of three Russian armies.

"On the Baltic coast a strong German battle group forced its way back to the bridgehead of Dievnow despite stubborn Russian resistance. Many enemy attacks collapsed before Kolberg.

"The heavy defensive battle in West Prussia for the accesses to the Bay of Danzig continues, the Russians having thrown in strengthened forces. In the Wejherowo area our troops foiled a break-thru of strong enemy tank forces toward Gydnia.

"The great battle in Courland continues with unabated violence in the area southeast of Saldus. Slight enemy breaches cost them heavy losses."

REPORT ALLIED PLANES ATTACK 2 NAZI CONVOYS

New York, March 12 (AP).—The Swedish radio said today that a "convoy battle," presumably between German ships and allied aircraft, occurred last night in the Skagerrak, separating Norway and Denmark.

The battle developed "far off" the Swedish coast to the southwest and was still on at 12:30 a. m. [Swedish time], said the broadcast.

The Swedish radio said yesterday that a 20 minute battle between a German convoy and allied planes had taken place in the Kattegat off Goeteborg. The Kattegat is between Sweden and Denmark.

SEE BIG THREE'S POLICY PERILED IN BALKAN LANDS

[By Cable to The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, March 12.—One month after the Crimea conference the policies framed there by the Big Three to govern the restoration of civil government in liberated Europe already threaten to break down, some observers here believe.

In Romania former Premier Nicolae Radesch has found sanctuary in the British legation because the British representative there believed his statement that Communist opponents had designs on his life.

In Greece, after a long silence while British bayonets were instaling the government of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, Moscow has begun to say what it thinks of the results.

In a broadcast to Greece, the Moscow radio complained that right-wing groups within the Plastiras government are trying to sabotage the EAM-Greek government agreement and to annihilate all left-wing departments of state machinery.

Reds Dominate Yugoslavia.

In Yugoslavia Communists under Marshal Tito are coöperating with those of the old democratic parties, but have taken care to secure for themselves a dominating position in the provisional government.

In Czechoslovakia, to which President Eduard Benes is now en route via Moscow, Gustav Husak, vice chairman of the Slovak Communist party, has prepared a troublesome issue by declaring that the new Czechoslovakia would be a single state of two nations, with a Slovak parliament and government responsible for all matters except those affecting both Czechs and Slovaks.

Will Cut Austria Thrice.

Over Austria so little agreement has been reached that the Big Three have decided that the only solution is to divide not only Austria but its capital, Vienna, into three zones of occupation.

The British public is puzzled by these happenings and particularly by Radesch's flight to the British legation in Bucharest. The British government is making strenuous efforts to settle the Romanian issue.

TELLS HARDSHIP OF PUTTING OUT MANILA TRIBUNE

Thomas Shafer, photographer in the Southwest Pacific for Acme News Pictures, Inc., said yesterday that the "Japs won't be licked until the last Jap is killed." Shafer, home on a 30 day leave, was with the 1st brigade of the 1st cavalry and one of 15 of the first war correspondents to enter Manila and Santa Tomas prison.

Thomas Shafer.

Holed in by the Yanks in their caves the Japs "even eat flesh from the bodies of their own dead comrades," Shafer said. He told how American soldiers encountered some of the Japs in caves frying human flesh over fires.

Shafer said he helped Donald Starr, Chicago Tribune war correspondent, get out the first edition of THE TRIBUNE'S overseas edition in the San Maguel brewery in Manila. The brewery's printing equipment, he said, had to be pumped by hand, without electrical current, while the building was under machine and mortar gun fire.

Shafer, in the Southwest Pacific for 18 months, covered 10 operations from New Guinea to Manila. His mother, Mrs. Hazel Gibbs, lives in the Norman hotel, Wilson av. and Beacon st.

'WHITE FIRE' GUN BURNS PATH TO ARMY VICTORIES

Capt. Douglas McConnohie, commander of the first army unit to use the dreaded new "white fire" mortar, or "goon gun," in actual combat told yesterday how it made possible victories that could not otherwise have been won. He spoke before the Advertising Men's post of the American Legion in Hotel Sherman.

Capt. McConnohie, who is attached to the Chicago chemical warfare service procurement district, wears the Purple Heart, legion of merit, and four battle stars on his tunic.

The 4.2 inch mortar, he said, fires either high explosives or white phosphorus, and the chemical warfare unit he commanded used it most frequently with phosphorus. It fires up to 30 rounds a minute and is larger than a 105 millimeter gun, making it unequaled anywhere in fire power, he said. He told of laying down 10,000 rounds in a 15 minute barrage, with only 40 mortars.

"Southern Sicily is a land of rocks," he said. "The farmers gathered them off the fields and built them into stone fences, sometimes 12 feet thick. It was impossible to get the Germans out from behind these fences. Even our heaviest shells would bounce off them.

"There were two German regiments on a ridge. Our men tried repeatedly to dislodge them, but nobody could get up that ridge. We chemical warfare men crossed a bridge under fire and set up our mortars at the foot of the ridge, firing a 20 minute barrage. When it was over, everything was silent and the point was taken."

Senate Votes 112 Millions for Army's Civil Tasks

Washington, D. C., March 12 (AP).—The senate today passed a bill carrying $112,450,940 to finance civil functions of the war department during the fiscal year starting July 1. The measure must go back to the house for action on senate increases totaling $13,285,000.

FIGHTERS' PEACE VIEWS INVITED BY VANDENBERG

Senator Acclaims Stand of Gov. Green.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], one of the three Republican members of the American delegation to the forthcoming San Francisco conference, today approved the reminder voiced by Gov. Green of Illinois that the Republican party is committed to give the Americans who are fighting the war a voice in the shaping of the peace.

The senator, replying to the governor's letter, said that speaking for the members of the fighting forces will be the senators and representatives in congress, in whose election the soldiers and sailors participated.

Sen. Vandenberg invited the views of service men for his own guidance in acting at San Francisco on the proposals for an international agency to enforce peace. He regards Comdr. Stassen, a Republican delegate to the conference, as their direct representative. He added that they should be directly represented at the eventual conference to define the terms of peace.

Text of Letter.

The text of the Vandenberg letter follows:

"Your fine letter recalls the service we were permitted to render together in September, 1943, when the Republican party wrote its great Mackinac charter and set the American pattern for post-war collective security on sound foundations. We committed ourselves, as you correctly state, to the proposition, among others, that 'the millions who fight the war should have a voice in making the peace.'

"That continues to be an axiom so far as I am concerned. It is elemental equity and fair play. It is the reason I supported, from start to finish, maximum opportunities for the armed forces to participate in the last election—since the chief 'voice' available to citizens in our republic is in the free choice of representatives to speak for them in the forum of the government.

Final Approval Urged.

"In this spirit, I shall also continue to demand that all peace settlements, including temporary decisions unavoidably required by the exigencies of war, shall finally be submitted to these representatives for approval by constitutional process.

"I take it that these attitudes serve to fulfill the basic pledge to which you appropriately refer. But if there is a more intimate way for 'the millions who fight the war' to 'have a voice in making the peace,' I shall welcome your concrete suggestions. I am glad they are directly represented by one of their own on our San Francisco delegation. I want them directly represented when we sit at the final peace table. Meanwhile, I invite them to a top priority in advising me of their immediate views in respect to my own duties as a delegate at San Francisco.

Yalta Decisions Considered.

"Thanks again for your sturdy letter. You made a splendid contribution to our historic labors at Mackinac. We have no cause to regret the pioneering work we did upon that occasion. I hope and pray that events will always vindicate the program to which we there dedicated our great party."

In saying that temporary decisions made in the exigencies of war should be passed upon by the legislators who voice the views of the men fighting the war, Sen. Vandenberg had in mind the disposition of Poland and other decisions of the Yalta conference.

LUBIN IS NAMED TO PARLEY ON REPARATIONS

Washington, D. C., March 12 (AP).—Dr. Isador Lubin, economist and statistician, was appointed today as American member of the reparations commission, which was created by the Big Three at Yalta and will meet in Moscow in about a month to decide how Germany should pay for the devastation caused by her armies. Names of other participating nations were not disclosed.

Dr. Isador Lubin.

The United States expects little or nothing from Germany in the way of reparations but every other country which has been actively engaged in the war with the Nazis and, particularly Russia, is looking to Germany for assistance in rebuilding.

Lubin expects to leave for the Russian capital in about three weeks. The 48 year old economist is a member of the White House staff on assignment as chief of the statistical analysis division of the munitions assignment board, working under the combined chiefs of staff.

Taxi Argument

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Eddie Polo, long haired stunt man, and his wife, Sheila, view clothing he said was torn during a scuffle with a cab driver.

Eddie Polo, professional strong man who pulls automobiles with his hair, will appear before Judge Joseph B. Hermes in Speeders' court today, seeking a warrant against a taxi driver he says ejected him from a taxicab and beat him in front of the Morrison hotel yesterday.

Polo's attorney, Samuel A. Rinella, said Polo and his wife arrived at the Union station yesterday from St. Paul, Minn., and were on their way to a hotel at 832 N. Dearborn st. when the driver ejected them in front of the Morrison hotel to take two other passengers, and drove off with Polo's two suitcases.

The cases were returned. The taxicab company refused to divulge the name of the driver, saying he is in a hospital.

VET LEADERS LAUD GREEN ON G.I. PEACE VOICE

Urge Fight to Uphold U.S. Principles.

Gov. Green's reminder to the Republican party that it is pledged to the principle that men who fight the battles are entitled to a voice in making the peace was applauded yesterday by numerous spokesmen for the veterans.

The governor's statement in behalf of the service men was contained in a letter sent to Sen. Vandenberg of Michigan and Rep. Eaton of New Jersey, Republican members of congress who will be delegates to the allied nations conference in San Francisco April 25.

Stresses Party Platform.

He stressed the party's platform on foreign relations and pointed particulary to a paragraph in the Mackinac declaration of September, 1943, which read:

"In all these undertakings we favor the widest consultation of the gallant men and women in our armed forces, who have a special right to speak with authority in behalf of the security and liberty for which they fight."

Among those who commented on the governor's statement were:

Atty. Arthur J. Murphy, past comander Marine post, American Legion, and past national president 2d Division association: Having served as an enlisted man in World War I, and as a captain in this one, I know that the men in the fighting forces have very definite ideas of what the peace should be.

Urges New Fight.

Atty. William J. Grace, past state comander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars: I commend Gov. Green for insisting that our fighting men have a say in planning the peace their sacrifices are bringing about, but I urge him to step out and take the lead in a fight against putting the United States back into Europe thru the Dumbarton Oaks peace proposals or any other proposals. Europe does not need the United States for peace; Europe needs the United States only for war.

Atty. Ferre C. Watkins, past state commander of the American Legion: It should be possible to collect the opinions on peace of the men in service, and a start should be made. I am pleased that Gov. Green has taken this position in the party, especially at a time when some others seem to be trying to have the party forget its pledges.

SMALL NATIONS SEE FREE PRESS AS PEACE BASIS

LONDON, March 12 (AP).—An international "bill of rights" probably will be sought at the San Francisco, Cal., world security conference by some of Europe's smaller nations, and a world free press will be high on their "must" list of safeguards against political, economic, or military subjugation.

Demand for removal of all barriers against untrammeled transmission of news has increased among the little countries' representatives here in direct proportion to disappointment over the Yalta agreement giving the big powers immunity against the league's military action in any war in which they are aggressors.

An informal survey of opinion among London's diplomats, however, showed an increasing tendency to regard the agreement on the league voting procedure as practicable, not utopian, on the theory that the future of the peace, as well as of the league, depends upon the big powers' continued accord.

Want Rules Established.

But while they may finally accept this conclusion the little countries contend that the chief purpose of the new league must be to set up international rules of good behavior among nations and find means for insuring adherence thru the pressure of world opinion.

How can this be done? Will it work?

An influential official of one small country, who asserted that he and diplomatic representatives of other European countries had been working privately on the problem, undertook to answer.

He contended the first step must be agreement on a formal charter, setting down in plain language the "rights" of all countries to security against military or economic agression and creating machinery for swift league decisions in all disputes between nations.

Public Opinion Held Key.

The league's ability to make its decisions stick, especially if they involve a "big power," will depend, he argued, on the strength of public opinion both inside and outside the countries involved in the dispute.

"That is where a world free press becomes an important factor," he added."

India Group Nominated.

BOMBAY, India, March 12 (AP).—A three man delegation, all British knights and including two members of the viceroy's executive council, has been nominated to represent India at the San Francisco security conference, it was announced today.

AMG CONFLICT DISCLOSED BY FORMER OFFICER

Conflict between the army and civilian agencies seeking to control the allied military government led to elimination of the conservation and reconstruction goals originally assigned to the AMG, it was asserted yesterday by Ralph W. Cessna, midwestern editorial manager of the Christian Science Monitor.

Cessna, who served as a captain in the AMG, told members of the City club at a luncheon meeting in the La Salle hotel that shortly after its organization it was apparent that the AMG, created to control civil affairs in territory liberated from the enemy, did not have unreserved support from all departments in Washington, D. C., or inside the army.

"Civilian agencies," he said, "appeared to feel that this essentially civilian work should be under civilian control, out of the army entirely."

In consequence of these opposing views, the army emerged victorious by "swallowing up AMG," after the main contingent of the latter service arrived abroad, Cessna related in his address on "AMG—Noble Experiment or Tool of American Fascism."

In the field, today, AMG has been completely reorganized and redirected and limited purely to a policing function, Cessna disclosed.

Sign of Spring

A real sign of spring was discovered yesterday at the Tribune Wheaton farm. The buds on a Carolina poplar, or cottonwood, have opened and are displaying their furry seeds. The tree is far in advance of others at the farm; it usually is not scheduled to open its buds until late in the month or early in April. City persons viewing a branch from the tree first took it for a pussy willow.

CONNALLY GIVES SENATE REPORT ON CHAPULTEPEC

Broadening of Monroe Doctrine Hailed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—All nations of the western hemisphere are now participants in the principles of the Monroe doctrine, Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, told the senate today on his return from the inter-American conference at Mexico City.

"The act of Chapultepec adopted at Mexico City by the American republics embraces the Monroe doctrine," Connally said in a senate speech. "Both as to attacks by non-American states or unjustified attacks by an American state, the act pledges the resistance of all the American states against the aggressor."

Reverses Opinion of U. S.

Connally said the conference recognized that the Monroe doctrine, announced 125 years ago by the United States to prevent foreign powers from establishing themselves in the western hemisphere, as a "wise and prophetic policy which has preserved the liberty and independence of the western world."

Sen. Austin [R., Vt.], also a delegate at Mexico City, hailed the agreement as a reversal of Latin-American opinion of the United States.

No Commitments Made.

In the debate that followed the two senators' reports, Sen. Taft [R., O.] asked if the United States had undertaken any specific obligations for post-war loans to Latin-American countries.

"I made inquiries of our delegates on the economic committee," Connally said, "and they assured me absolutely that there were no money commitments of any kind."

19,097 ENROLLED IN HIGH SCHOOL SPANISH GROUPS

The interest of Chicago's public high school pupils is focusing more and more upon South and Latin American nations, a trend that may be felt in future inter-American trade relations, Supt. of Schools Johnson said yesterday.

A statistical survey ordered by Johnson showed 19,097 high school pupils were enrolled in Spanish classes in 1944, against 16,892 in 1936, representing an increase of more than 13 per cent. Last year there were 140 Spanish teachers, compared with 116 in 1936, and 641 classes, compared with 564 in 1936.

Classes Are Increased.

"If economic opportunities open up in the southern republics there is no question that many young Americans will avail themselves of the opportunities offered," Johnson said after completing a study of the statistics.

Pupil interest in Spanish has been on the increase for several years and school board officials provide more classes whenever the demand is great enough. Most language teachers are qualified to instruct in two languages, and, if interest in one language grows at the expense of another, teachers generally are available for such classes.

Considerable of the increased pupil enrollment in Spanish classes has taken place at the expense of courses in French, in which enrollment has dropped from 13,089 in 1936 to 2,785 last year, the survey disclosed. The number of French teachers has dropped from 98 to 35 and classes from 446 to 102.

Promote Understanding.

Four years ago school officials organized a Latin America good will curriculum committee to determine what procedure would promote a greater understanding of South American nations among public school children.

Since then English classes learn something of the eminent writers of other American nations, science classes learn of great scientists, and other classes are introduced to South American people, customs, and geography.

Altho no figures were available for Catholic high schools in Chicago, Msgr. Daniel Cunningham, Catholic superintendent of education, said there now was a greater interest among pupils in South American relationships and a consequent rise in Spanish class enrollments. He forecast a great increase in travel between the Americas after the war.

Commandos Slay Nazis in Raid on Dutch Isles

..TWENTY-FIRST ARMY GROUP IN EUROPE, March 12 (AP).—A small force of British Commandos last night raided Schouwen Island, north of Walcheren, and Bebeland Islands off the Dutch coast, and killed several Germans.

ILLNESS BLAMED FOR SUICIDE OF SOLDIER'S WIFE

A verdict of suicide while despondent over ill health was returned by a coroner's jury at an inquest yesterday into the death of Mrs. Irene Foglestad, 23, of 5306 Pensacola av., wife of a soldier in France and mother of a 2 year old son. Mrs. Foglestad shot herself Sunday night while attending a house warming party with her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. Foglestad, with whom she lived, at the home of Policeman Clarence Benson of 5551 Osceola av. She used the officer's service revolver to shoot herself. Relatives testified that she had been undergoing treatment for a nervous breakdown.

...suddenly it DAWNED on me

Jerry's day starts bright and early. So there was a real point to his story. Let Jerry tell it himself.

"I had finished some shopping at a Stineway Drug Store. I was half way out of the door when, suddenly, it dawned on me. Clutching my packages, in my arms, I rushed back—seized the clerk by the lapels and almost shouted—"did you say 'yes'?"

The clerk seemed a little confused. I explained, "Just now, when I asked whether you had any alarm clocks—did you say 'yes'?"

The clerk smiled, —"Yes, sir—I said 'yes'—and in metal cases, too."

Yes, Jerry got his clanging announcer of a new day. What's more, he's wise to the fact that if it's new—if it's hard to get—whatever it is, Stineways are likely to have it.

P.S. Jerry has been telling his story so often—folks probably have cleaned us out of the clocks by this time.

BOND PROPOSAL HELPS CLARIFY AIRPORT PLANS

Suggestions for Site Are Under Preparation.

BY FRANK STURDY.

Mayor Kelly's plan to include an airport bond issue referendum in the June election clarifies to some extent the questions involved in choosing a site for Chicago's postwar super air terminal.

When the mayor said he wanted either a $25,000,000 proposition for financing an airport or one of $1,000,000 for engineering and planning, he also eliminated one of the five possibilities that have been under discussion for several years, expansion of the present airport at 63d st. and Cicero av.

Later Extension Opposed.

This terminal, when equipped with the new passenger building the city hopes to construct by fall, will suffice for traffic predictable within five years after the war, the airlines believe. To enlarge it to accommodate the greater traffic and larger airplanes expected later, the mayor said, would be uneconomical, involving as it would a second moving of the railroad tracks it took years to pick up and get out of the center of the field they once bisected, as well as the closing of streets, condemnation of many homes, stores, and churches.

The Chicago Plan commission, replete with studies accumulated for a decade, is preparing a recommendation to the city council, which in turn will designate the site where the city will build the terminal designed to make it a great national air hub for international travelers, as it is now for air passengers traveling within the country.

Douglas Airport Favored.

After a long analysis of all the sites proposed, a committee of airlines engineers about six months ago advised the plan commission that the Douglas airport near Park Ridge best would serve the operating needs of the air transport companies and the convenience of air travelers, and reduce demands upon the public till.

The airport is now used for testing Douglas C-54 Skymaster cargo planes built in the adjacent factory. The whole installation is owned by the army. There are 1,423 acres in the property, bounded by Higgins rd. on the north, Mannheim rd. on the east, Bryn Mawr av. on the south, and Lee st., extended, on the west.

There are 1,038 acres devoted to the landing field, which has two runways of 5,500 feet and one of 5,700 feet. All three are concrete, 150 feet wide, constructed to take airplanes up to 200,000 pounds.

The airport is in an area devoted principally to farms, and could be expanded readily south and west to include sufficient acreage for the laying of an extensive runway system for planes of all types, including several 10,000 foot strips for the largest planes now considered by the airlines for coast-to-coast and international flights.

Rerouting of Mannheim rd., the eastern boundary, is contemplated in the plan commission's ground plan. The road would be curved from Lawrence av. northward, slightly over one-half mile at the most easterly point on the curve.

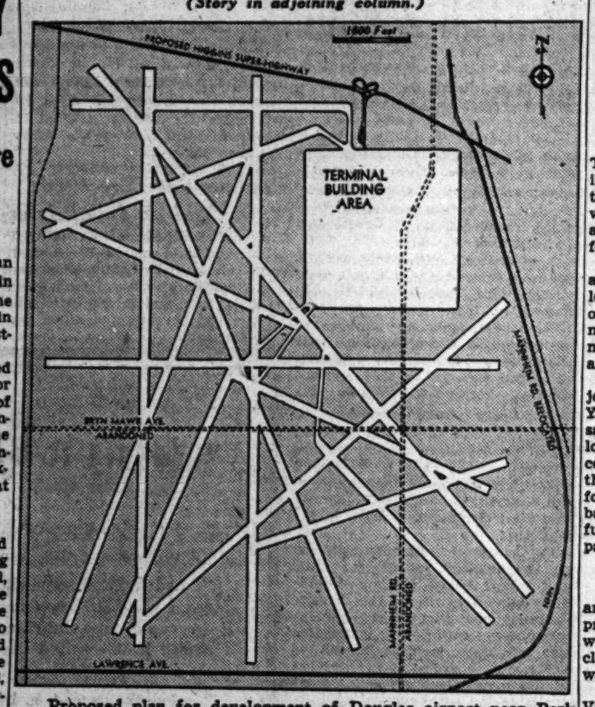
There are no obstructions to flight of any account for miles on all sides of the plotted area. Permanent zoning for low buildings along the runway glide paths would appear to mean no hardship to owners of surrounding property, an important point in developing any airport site.

Expressway to Airport.

Travelers using the terminal would reach it by way of the northwest expressway, a depressed high speed road among the city's postwar projects. The plan commission estimates driving time on the expressway from airport to the loop will be 27.4 minutes.

Proposed Douglas Airport Project

(Story in adjoining column.)



Proposed plan for development of Douglas airport near Park Ridge. Dotted lines show present southern boundary of Bryn Mawr av. and present eastern boundary of Mannheim rd., but under postwar project recommended by air lines engineers existing field would be considerably augmented as shown, with Mannheim rd. being relocated and Bryn Mawr av. abandoned where it now bisects field.

WOLL RENAMED TO POSITION OF U. S. ATTORNEY

President Roosevelt yesterday sent to the senate the nomination for reappointment of J. Albert Woll as United States attorney for the northern district of Illinois. The nomination was referred to the senate judiciary committee. Woll, son of Matthew Woll, president of the Photoengravers union [AFL] and vice president of the American Federation of Labor, was originally appointed by President Roosevelt in 1940, and his first term expired Oct. 22. Woll, who is 41, resides in Winnetka with his wife and three children.

SALON EMPLOYE ADMITS SHARING STOLEN MONEY

Mrs. Lorraine Kline, 23, pretty, black eyed graduate of Carl Schurz High school, confessed to Sgt. Jack Hanrahan of the robbery detail yesterday that it was two of her friends who robbed the Helena Rubinstein beauty salon at 666 N. Michigan av., where she was employed as a receptionist, on Feb. 28, and that she shared the proceeds.

Mrs. Lorraine Kline.

She said the robbery was planned by Tony Mareno, a Mexican and father of three children. Before Mareno and their accomplice, Harry Trader, 20, 1307 Adams st., entered the salon with guns, Mrs. Kline said, she took $135 from a cash box and went to a washroom. Mareno, who is sought, and Trader, who is under arrest, took the box, containing $146 and a quantity of war bonds, in the holdup.

"I thought Tony was joking when he talked about robbing the place," she told Sgt. Hanrahan.

Mrs. Kline, who said her husband is a soldier, also admitted she took $390 from the salon on March 5 and split it with Mareno and Trader. Later they went to the salon and broke a window to make the theft appear to be a burglary, she said.

AGREE TO BAN LEND-LEASE FOR FOREIGN RELIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—The New Deal administration, bowing to Republican demands, agreed today to legislation banning postwar use of lend-lease funds for relief and reconstruction donations to foreign countries.

The prohibition was written into a pending bill to continue the lend-lease program by unanimous vote of the house foreign affairs committee at a special session. The measure is slated for house consideration tomorrow.

The committee's Democratic majority, led by Chairman Bloom [N. Y.] previously had rejected such a safeguard. They acceded today following a warning by five Republican committee members last week that the bill as it stood left the door open for multibillion dollar post-war global relief spending with lend-lease funds supplied by American tax payers.

Acceptable to Officials.

The G. O. P. committee members announced they will support the proposed continuance of lend-lease with the protective amendment included. Bloom said the restriction was acceptable to lend-lease officials.

One of the five Republicans, Rep. Vorys [O.], said the new amendment flatly bars lend-lease "donations" for post-war relief, rehabilitation, or reconstruction. It provides, however, that commitments to ship goods, as contained in lend-lease agreements made before the end of the war, may be carried out after the war, provided the recipient nation pays for the materials.

Without the restriction requiring payment for post-war shipments, Vorys said, lend-lease could be continued for several years after the war on a "give-away" basis.

The bill previously extended authority to make lend-lease contracts until June 30, 1946, but authorized continued shipments for three additional years to fulfill commitments made before the above date. The new safeguard prohibits the latter shipments, if the war is over, unless the United States is paid for them.

Still Has Loophole.

Republicans conceded the revised bill contains a loophole in that the terms for payment of post-war shipments are to be fixed by the President, and not by congress.

Rep. Chiperfield [R., Ill.], a member of the foreign affairs group, declared he favored a stronger amendment giving congress authority to review and approve proposed payment terms, but said he would support today's "compromise" solution.

"The President has stated that lend-lease is a war measure and should end with the war," Chiperfield told reporters. "We must assume he will administer lend-lease as congress intends it shall be administered, and not use lend-lease funds for world relief."

It was learned that "negotiations" which culminated in today's amendment were started by chance last Friday at a party for Chairman Bloom on his 75th birthday. Vorys and Foreign Economic Administrator Leo Crowley, both at the gathering, put their heads together, and found they were close to agreement on a safeguarding clause. Over the week-end Vorys, Crowley, and counsel for the latter drafted the proviso, and Bloom accepted it on assurances from Crowley that it was acceptable to the administration.

SAILOR ACCUSED OF SEDUCTION IS CLEARED BY NAVY

New York, March 12 [Special].—Third naval district headquarters said today that Chief Pharmacist's Mate Frederick Brooks, 21, veteran of five major invasions, has been restored to full duty and removed to the naval hospital at St. Albans, Queens, for treatment of a nervous condition.

Brooks was arrested Feb. 5 while he was in the St. Albans hospital awaiting final approval of a recommended medical discharge, the arrest following a report to navy officials by Mayor LaGuardia that Brooks was under suspicion of seducing an Italian girl.

The mayor wrote to Navy Secretary Forrestal that he had received a letter from Fabio Scinia, a minor official in Italy, accusing Brooks of seducing his daughter. Brooks was placed in detention aboard a ship at pier 92 and ordered returned to Italy. This order was canceled last week.

The navy said that altho its official announcement did not specify that charges against Brooks had been dropped, "it is safe to assume so."

AVIATION PACT SENT TO SENATE BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., March 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt sent the international aviation treaty to the senate today amid indications Republicans will fight to force withdrawal of temporary world air agreements. The treaty, establishing an international aviation council, was sent to the foreign relations committee.

Sen. White [R., Maine] said he may ask the committee to act Wednesday on his motion requesting the state department to halt its attempt to put into effect interim agreements signed, along with the treaty, at a world aviation conference in Chicago last year.

Led by Sen. Brewster [R., Me.], a conference delegate, Republicans have contended the temporary agreements are in fact treaties.

THIS YEAR, in making its Annual Report to 31,000,000 policyholders, Metropolitan decided to try something new.

We asked Bruce Barton, a policyholder, and a well known writer, if he would write the report. He agreed.

So he visited our Home Office, asked a host of questions, looked into the facts and figures. According to his report, the things he learned about the Company confirm what the Examiners of the State Insurance Department found. Following their most recent official examination of the Company they had stated:

"From this examination, it becomes evident that the Company is in strong financial condition, that its affairs are ably managed, and that the business of the Company is being operated in the interests of its policyholders."

One out of every five persons in this country is a Metropolitan policyholder. If, like Mr. Barton, you are one of this group, you'll be more than interested in the things he learned. Even if you're not a policyholder, you cannot help but enjoy reading Mr. Barton's account of what Metropolitan did in 1944 for the benefit of policyholders and public.

If you'd like a copy of this Annual Report to Policyholders, send in the little coupon below. It's yours for the asking.

WARD FIRM SUES TO DISMISS U. S. APPEAL ACTION

Moves After Supreme Court Steps Aside.

Attorneys for Montgomery Ward & Co. yesterday asked the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to dismiss the government's appeal from Judge Philip L. Sullivan's decision holding Presidential seizure of the company's plants illegal. The request was based on the ground that the government failed to file a brief with the court within 20 days of the filing of the transcript, as required under court rules.

This latest step, which took government attorneys unaware, came a few hours after the Supreme court had refused in Washington, D. C., to accept a direct appeal from the federal District court in Chicago on a writ of certiorari.

In preparation for its appeal of the decision the government filed with the Circuit Court of Appeals a printed transcript of the record on Feb. 9. Under court rules, it should have filed a supporting brief within 20 days, or by March 1.

Government Goes to Top Court.

Instead, however, the government elected to go before the Supreme court with a petition for a writ of certiorari, which, if granted, would have had the effect of removing the case from the Appeals court. Subsequently, Ward's joined in the petition to speed up a decision.

Harold A. Smith and Stuart S. Hall, Ward attorneys who filed the petition for dismissal, said the government should have gone before the Appeals court within the 20 day period to ask for additional time in which to file its brief, if it desired to delay filing until after the Supreme court ruled on its petition. This, however, the government neglected to do.

Ward attorneys conceded that their plea for dismissal was based on a technicality, but insisted that it is a technicality of which the company is entitled to avail itself.

Well to File Answer.

United States Atty. Woll, upon whom a copy of the petition also was served, said he will file an answer to the company's petition today. Previously he had said he would appear before the court today or tomorrow to ask the court to set dates for filing briefs, and for argument. Government attorneys worked late last night, preparing their answer to the company's petition.

Should the Appeals court uphold the company's petition, Judge Sullivan's decision would stand, and the army would be occupying Ward's plants under an illegal order.

The Supreme court, in refusing a review, said that the petition to that end was filed "prior to the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals."

The justice department and Ward had asked for a speedy final determination whether President Roosevelt had authority under the war labor disputes act—or the Constitution—to order the army to take possession of Ward facilities in seven cities.

Seizure Held Illegal.

The United States district court in Chicago on Jan. 27 ruled the seizure was illegal.

The District court decided the mail order house was not a war industry within the meaning of the act. The President's action followed Ward refusal to comply with board directives ordering, among other things, maintenance of union membership.

The justice department told the Supreme court that unless the District court's decision was reversed quickly "the government would stand stripped of power to deal with consequences [labor disturbances], which might develop into the most serious crisis in the history of the war outside, but connected with the area of actual military operations."

Ward in asking an early decision said the army kept possession of its properties "despite the District court decision."

In another order the Supreme court denied a request by the United States Gypsum company that it rule on limits of WLB powers by reviewing lower court decisions.

The company complained that lower court decisions had left it entirely without protection against "threatened unlawful action" by the board.

Actions Only Advisory.

The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia held recently that no statute authorizes court review of WLB orders and that WLB action in notifying the President on noncompliance with its orders is merely advisory.

Gypsum lost in the District of Columbia Appeals court in a suit seeking to enjoin WLB from taking any action to compel the firm at its Warren [O.] war materials plant to comply with an order requiring maintenance of union membership. The company also asked in vain for a judgment defining its rights and legal relations with respect to the order.

THE QUESTION.
What is wrong with most of us?
WHERE ASKED.
Michigan av.
THE ANSWERS.

Corp. Jerome Sehnke, 4720 N. Austin av.—More and more I find that people are living only for today. War seems to encourage that attitude. They don't look far enough ahead—I don't mean a month or a week ahead — I mean the future. A time is coming when a few dollars saved now will come in very handy.

Nancy Fox, student, 517 Oakdale av.—People are too vain. They can't walk past a show window or a mirror without looking at themselves. If they were as particular about what's inside of their heads and hearts as they are of their appearance from the outside, things would be much different than they are now.

Harry F. Ried, salesman, 405 Madison st. — A little more courtesy wouldn't hurt any of us. Every one, I think, takes too many things for granted. They're in too much of a hurry to be polite or too thoughtless to say a simple "thank you" when some one has done them a favor. We're all ungrateful.

Joann Mans, student, 5310 W. 24th pl., Cicero—We're critical of everything and every one but ourselves. We go to a stage play or a movie and pick out the bad parts. We do the same thing with people — always belittling and picking out faults in our daily associates rather than praising their better side.

Florence Svolba, student, 4124 Grove av., Berwyn—This, I believe, is a fault in every one, including myself. I read an article in a newspaper — a friend tells me some gossip about another friend —I hear a news broadcast over the radio—then, without sufficient knowledge of the subject, I form an opinion, quite often not a correct one.

BLASTS PEARSON FOR 'SLANDER' OF HOSPITAL VETS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—Drew Pearson, columnist and radio commentator, was denounced on the senate floor today by Sen. Bilbo [D., Miss.] for slandering soldier patients at Walter Reed Military hospital here.

Bilbo put into the record sworn statements by 85 patients at the hospital declaring false an article by Pearson which stated soldiers under treatment had become drunk and disorderly after buying liquor from ward attendants.

"Not only is Pearson recognized as the biggest and most notorious liar in America today but as the most perfect smear artist of the press and radio," said Bilbo. "He will go down in history as Pearson the 'sponge' because he gathers up the slime, mud, and slander and lets it ooze out thru his radio broadcasts and daily contributions to a few newspapers which have not yet found him out."

Bilbo also was wrathful because Pearson wrote that there was a religious and racial issue involved in the opposition to Aubrey Williams' appointment as head of the rural electrification administration. The nomination was disapproved by the agriculture committee, but may come up for a senate vote late this week.

Bilbo asserted he was not against Williams solely on racial issues because he would otherwise not have voted for confirmation of Henry A. Wallace as secretary of commerce.

TRY ADMIRAL WHO RESISTED YANKS AT TUNIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 12. — Adm. Jean Pierre Esteva, Vichy resident general in Tunis up to the time of its capture by allied forces, defended himself before a specially created court of the Algiers regime against charges of treason here today.

Adm. Jean F. Esteva.

The charges were based on the fact he carried out orders from Vichy to defend the coast against all comers at the time of the American landings in North Africa in 1942. Esteva's defense was that Vichy was still the recognized government of France at the time and all neutral governments, including the Vatican, had representatives there.

Esteva said that the American ambassador Robert D. Murphy called on him in 1941 and spoke of Petain with admiration and deference.

Letters from Roosevelt.

"Here's the real truth,' he explained. "American Consul H. A. Doolittle called on me on Nov. 8, 1942, to announce the landing. He gave me two letters from Roosevelt, one for me and one for the Bey of Tunis. I said to him, 'I receive orders only from the French government.' 'That is perfectly natural,' said Doolittle."

Esteva said he did not call on Admiral William D. Leahy, President Roosevelt's special representative, in Vichy when he was there in 1941 because he was afraid he was being shadowed. He said he had, however, seen S. Pinckney Tuck, United States charge d'affaires and now minister to Egypt, there.

Just a Soldier.

Judge Pierre Mongibeaux, who with a jury of 12 senators and deputies of the pre-war parliament and 12 resistant delegates, including one Negro, is trying Esteva, told Esteva he ought not to have been so forthrightly loyal to his superiors in Vichy.

"There are times when one must know how to refuse discipline," the judge said. "Sometimes insurrection and revolt become sacred duties."

"I was only the local commander. I did not know what Petain knew and what Darlan knew. They told me to defend the coast. I was just a soldier," the bearded admiral replied.

He said he hated Germans and secretly tricked them and resisted them in every possible way.

60 Others Face Trial.

The high court will suspend for several weeks after this case and then will try other Vichy ministers in what seems a reversal of the Riom trials of 1942. Next to be tried is Gen. Henri Dentz, military governor of Paris and commander of French forces who resisted the British and Free French in Syria in 1941.

Sixty-odd Vichy ministers and high officials, many of them now in jail in Germany and some in flight, are due to be tried. Petain and Laval will be tried in absentia unless the allies have apprehended them in Germany by the time their cases come up.

Held in Fraud

Tripped Up by Navy Allotments.

San Francisco, Cal., March 12 [Special].—With the former Alvergia Beatty of Macomb, Ill., marriage was a habit which she developed into a career, federal agents said here today when she was arraigned on a charge of fraudulently obtaining service allotment checks.

The agents said Alvergia, now 31, picked up nine husbands during a 14 year excursion along the road of matrimony. The last four, they said, were navy men who gave her both money and pay allotments.

Only one of Alvergia's husbands, Robert Summy, was standing by when she was brought before United States Commissioner Francis St. J. Fox, who fixed bail at $2,500. Summy, who married her at San Diego in October, 1942, said he would try to get her a lawyer.

It All Began in Peoria.

Nat Pieper, local FBI chief, said Alvergia was 17 when she made her first trip to the altar. This was in Peoria in 1931, and the husband was John Jorgensen of Peoria, whom she says she divorced six months later.

From then on, the list went as follows, Pieper said:

2. Lloyd Duncan—married him in Chicago in 1933. He was killed six months later in an automobile accident.

3. Jack Washam—married him in Dallas in 1937, divorced him a year later.

4. Lawrence Paul Nelson—married him in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1940 divorced him two years later.

5. William Carpenter—married him in Reno, Nev., in July, 1941, thinks it was annuled a few days later.

Four Are Navy Men.

6. Robert J. Stahlheber, navy seaman—married him in Las Vegas in October, 1941.

7. Summy, pharmacist's mate first class.

8. Paul Epoch, electrician's mate, 2d class—married him at Reno Oct. 10, 1943.

9.—Thomas Mellott Ryder, navy seaman—married him in Yuma, Ariz., Aug. 6, 1944.

Pieper said Alvergia took $612 from Stahlheber; $288 from Summy plus monthly allotment checks of $100 since the marriage, and two $68 allotment checks from Ryder. He said she told navy men she was the daughter of an "Adm. Nelson" who had been killed attempting to escape Jap captors.

REVEAL PRO-RED OFFICER HOLDS KEY ARMY POST

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—A pro-Communist army officer, who assailed Hitler and Churchill as equally guilty "tyrants" during the period of the Stalin-Hitler pact, holds a key post under the joint chiefs of staff in the office of strategic services, it was learned today.

This latest evidence of communism in the army was disclosed as a house military affairs subcommittee prepared to reopen hearings tomorrow into the new army policy permitting commissions for men whose loyalty is divided between the United States and soviet Russia.

The name of Lt. Alexander Vuchinich was added to the list of more than a dozen officers with communistic affiliations made known to the subcommittee since Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell, head of the army intelligence corps, asserted on Feb. 27 that he knew of no commissioned Communists.

Held Post in Cairo.

Vuchinich was former editor of the Yugoslav American Herald, foreign language newspaper which has plugged for soviet domination of the Balkan state. Altho the OSS is said to have a long dossier on his pro-Communist activities, he was stationed in Cairo, where he was said to have exercised full censorship authority over all dispatches there.

The copious writings of this officer before he entered the army show him extolling the soviet union while bitterly criticizing the United States and Britain. On May 30, 1941, when the nonaggression pact between Germany and Russia was still in force, he wrote:

"This war is war against liberty and for the purpose of continuing the history of slavery. This is known by Rome, Berlin, and London. On one side are the German, English, and all other peoples over the world and on the other side are Hitler, Goering, Halifax, Churchill, and others similar to them. This is the war of political tryants against the broad national masses."

The New Deal's lend-lease bill was harshly criticized by Vuchinich as an act to intensify the conflict between the warring powers and the continuance of European bloodshed. The Roosevelt administration, he wrote, was "willing to sacrifice everything for the magnates of war industry."

Changed His Tune.

The soviet union, he wrote, by contrast was a country which considered "peace as a basic principal for its internal as well as its foreign policy."

After Hitler invaded Russia, Vuchinich switched over to zealous advocacy of America's entry into "the war against liberty."

A subcommittee member said it appeared evident there were a large number of pro-Communists in the OSS with access to the most closely guarded security operations. Demands have been made on the house floor for a thoro house cleaning of this hush-hush agency.

WALLACE STILL COMMITTED TO 60 MILLION JOBS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—Secretary of Commerce Wallace, in his first press conference today since taking cabinet office, said he hasn't changed his objective of 60 million jobs after the war. He said he is still looking forward to full employment.

Asked what he intended to do about providing the United States with 60 million jobs, Wallace said he will meet Wednesday with the executive committee and members of the business advisory council for the department of commerce.

The new secretary of commerce said he is busy with plans to promote post-war foreign trade.

The suit was filed by Atty. R. D. Osgoodby. Miss Green, who lives in New York, was awarded a settlement of $250,000 two months ago in her claim to half of Thompson's estate of $2,000,000. The lost coats were a mink, valued at $2,000, and a sheared beaver, valued at $500.

CHARGES NLRB ACTS TO MUZZLE LABOR ORGANS

House Asked to Probe 'Intimidation.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 12.—The national labor relations board was charged in the house today with attempting to "muzzle" an independent labor publication by intimidating its subscribers and advertisers.

Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.], who asked a house investigation of the NLRB action, said the agency, thru one of its examiners, was carrying on the "intimidation" drive in an apparent attempt to aid a CIO union's organizing campaign.

The congressman told the house the target of the NLRB in this instance is the Labor Digest, an independent monthly published in Indianapolis, Ind., which in a recent editorial supported company unions as against the CIO and other labor organizations.

Tells of Woman's Letter.

Hoffman said Miss Dorothy Craig, an NLRB examiner, in St. Louis, Mo., wrote to a Michigan manufacturer asking whether the concern subscribed to the Labor Digest or bought advertising in it, and whether any employe subscriptions were paid for by the company.

Hoffman said the NLRB Washington office informed him that Miss Craig was investigating charges by the CIO United Furniture Workers, St. Louis, that the Labor Digest was engaged in "unfair labor practices" thru "vilification of bona fide labor organizations."

"It would appear," Hoffman told the house, "that Miss Craig of the NLRB is attempting to aid a CIO labor union in its organizing campaign, to muzzle the Labor Digest, to diminish its revenue from advertisers, and to intimidate all who oppose the activities of the CIO Furniture Workers union.

Challenge to Publication.

"On the theory advanced by the NLRB, its examiners have the right to control the editorial policy of any paper which ventures an opinion in conflict with that held by the board's members or the members of a union.

"Apparently, it also claims the right to intimidate advertisers of any publication by threatening to show the paper is engaging in unfair labor practices."

Hoffman's resolution for a house inquiry calls for an investigation into the incident and the authority of the NLRB to interfere in editorial policy and circulation of publications.

MAN DISCOVERED ON CROSS HAS INFECTED HAND

Questioning of Fred Walcher, whom police say permitted himself to be crucified Friday morning by three of his followers in order to win attention to his world peace plan, was deferred yesterday when it was discovered an infection had developed in the nail wound of his left hand.

Dr. J. M. Houston, resident physician at the Bridewell hospital, said he had administered penicillin and expected that Walcher would be released today. He was to have been subjected to lie detector tests yesterday by police anxious to learn the identity of the men who collaborated in the crucifixion.

Capt. Patrick B. O'Connell, in charge of the investigation, said he had learned that Walcher, who advocates an industrial democracy ruled by a group of middle class men, was once an ardent supporter of communism.

RED CROSS SPEED-UP URGED BY KENNELLY TO GET CITY QUOTA

Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman of the Red Cross war fund campaign, yesterday appealed to workers to speed solicitation to bring in the remaining $8,475,000 of the Chicago area's quota of $11,300,000.

Four communities in the drive have reported 100 per cent so far: Edison Park, $2,500; Norwood Park, $4,000; Forest Glen, $1,300, and Mt. Greenwood, 1,000.

"It is apparent that with only 19 days remaining in March, our workers must step up the whole tempo of the campaign," said Kennelly. "Each worker must see himself or herself as a crusader with a personal responsibility to show the men fighting . . . that our city's support of the Red Cross is a demonstration of appreciation for their sacrifices."

All unsolicited articles, manuscripts, letters, and pictures sent to The Tribune are sent at the owner's risk, and The Tribune company expressly repudiates any liability or responsibility for their safe custody or return.

A LONG EDITORIAL ABOUT A DULL TOPIC.

The elevated system in Chicago is a hopeless bankrupt. It barely earns its operating costs and nobody can remember when it returned so much as a nickel to those who invested their money in it. The surface lines are in better shape but nobody would call them gold mines. They earn the interest on their first mortgage bonds, generally with a fairly comfortable margin to spare, and over many years have accumulated nearly $30,000,000 in cash for improvements.

A good many people in Chicago, knowing these facts, must have been puzzled when they read Mayor Kelly's letter to THE TRIBUNE which was published not long ago in the Voice of the People. We had asked in an editorial how, under the public ownership plan agreed upon by the mayor and the governor, the proposed transit authority was going to raise the $200,000,000 or more that everybody agrees will be needed to buy the lines and extend and equip them to the point where the people will get better service.

The mayor replied that the first $100,000,000 would be borrowed by the sale of income bonds and the other $100,000,000 would be derived from operating profits over a period of 10 years. The transit authority as owner of the properties would get the profits, and would plow them back. As the profits now come nowhere near $10,000,000 a year it was not easy to see why the mayor expected them to become so much larger thru a mere change of ownership.

The mayor threw some light and the bills introduced the other day at Springfield have helped, also, toward an understanding of the proposal. Present profits are to be increased by these means:

1. Lower interest charges. The expectation is that the transit authority can borrow $100,000,000 at less cost than the surface lines now borrow $72,000,000. Under the present arrangement, the interest rate is 5 per cent and the annual interest bill, $3,600,000. The backers of the public ownership plan believe that the present low level of interest rates, and, more especially, the fact that the interest paid on the authority's bonds would be exempt from federal income taxes, will permit the new government to borrow at perhaps 3 per cent or less and thus save a substantial sum, maybe more than a million a year.

2. Exemption from all local taxes. For the last 10 years, the surface lines have been paying $3,000,000 a year toward the cost of local government and the elevated system has paid more than $800,000 a year. These expenses would cease under public ownership, but, of course, the rest of the local taxpayers would have to make up the difference. In effect, the plan calls for a subsidy of $4,000,000 a year, more or less, from general taxes.

3. Exemption from federal corporation taxes. The profits, if any, of the companies under the existing ownership are subject to federal corporation taxes. The authority, as a municipal government, would be exempt from them.

4. Raising fares. The authority is required to raise fares if that is necessary to meet its obligations. The investors in the new bonds are given the right to mandamus the authority to raise fares if defaults occur, but even without a default the raising of fares is permitted. How much additional revenue, if any, is expected from this source no one has said.

5. Federal loan funds. The mayor has said he hopes the RFC will come across. The bills before the legislature authorize the city to borrow money from the federal government.

From this summary it is apparent that if the plan is adopted a substantial part of the cost of new cars, buses, tracks, and subways is to come from higher general property taxes on the community. Additional sums will come from the federal treasury thru the sale of tax exempt bonds. Together these savings fall far short of the $10,000,000 a year desired for improvements, particularly if a sinking fund and adequate reserves for depreciation and obsolesence are set up. Any additional sums that will be needed must come, it would seem, from increases in the fare.

These proposals should not be condemned out of hand merely because the plan provides for municipal ownership with a subsidy at the expense of local taxpayers, and foreshadows fare increases. The need for improved transportation can hardly be exaggerated and the only way to get it is to spend a great deal of money on the physical plant.

At the same time we don't believe the plan should be accepted out of hand merely because for once in a generation a governor and a mayor find themselves in agreement. We have yet to see a candid account of the financial program. We estimate that it will entail something like a 2 per cent increase in taxes but what increases in fares are contemplated, if any? It's time the backers of the plan discussed these points. The mayor has received letters from a number of investment banking groups disclosing interest in the program, but nothing like a firm offer has been forthcoming. Now that the bills are in the hopper at Springfield, the bankers ought to be in a position to talk with more precision about what terms they are prepared to accept.

There is, of course, another point that requires the most careful exploration, and that is the question of operating costs. The whole calculation will be upset if the prices of materials and labor advance sharply after the war, as is not unlikely, once the controls are released and the inflationary effects of war finance are felt thruout the economy. In this connection it is well to remember that our local governments are a pushover for union agents in wage negotiations and generally pay materially more for services than private employers do.

The time has come when proponents of the plan should lay their cards on the table. They should inform the legislature just what they think their plan will accomplish at what cost, and why they think it will work better than to give the surface lines a new franchise and the power to spend the $30,000,000 now in the surface lines treasury for extensions and improvements.

GOV. GREEN'S LETTER.

Gov. Green's letter to Sen. Vandenberg and Rep. Eaton is a reminder to them that the Republican party has a foreign policy, which they in particular are pledged to follow, since they both helped draft it.

It is likewise a reminder to the whole American delegation that however secluded a chamber they may select for bargaining or intrigue, some one will be looking over their shoulder. When Gov. Green asserts that the men who are fighting the war must make the peace, he is preaching not simply justice but practicality as well. Even if the American delegation were possessed of super-human vision and unselfishness, and their colleagues from other nations were equally disinterested and wise, the San Francisco conference could only propose, not dispose.

The disposal will be at the hands of the 13 million men who are now bearing arms for this country. No formality, no empty promulgation of treaties, no congressional ratification under pressure, can alter this fact. Any undertakings by this nation will be valid only in so far as they appear wise to the veterans, who upon their return are going to be the predominant political force in the United States. It is they who are acting while the planners are talking. They know the realities of the war. They have a clearer picture of our allies, and our enemies as well, than have the people at home, who must depend for that picture on the distorted glass of a dozen propaganda bureaus.

Gov. Green conceded in his letter the impracticality of taking a poll in the army and navy to determine whether its members want an international organization and, if so, what kind they want. They can only express themselves when they regain the complete political freedom that goes with civilian life. It may be contended, by those anxious to commit the United States to a course which they mistakenly view as irrevocable, that it is impossible for the veterans to express themselves. The answer is that nothing done now can be irrevocable. The veterans will hold the veto.

Yalta stripped most of the sham from the proposals to be presented at San Francisco. It is not a league of nations that is to be constructed, but a new Holy Alliance. The voting arrangement that came out of Yalta makes it certain that no one can use the proposed new international organization to question or dispute the spoils of the strong. The charter recognizes that only the voices of the strong shall be effective. The little countries can debate but they cannot act, nor can they force action against the will of any one of the Big Three. There are only three, Russia, Britain, and the United States. France and China do not count. They have not and will not have for decades the military power to put weight behind their words. And of the three, Britain's only hope of survival as a major power is to play its two partners off against each other. The United States and Russia will hold the real power in the post-war world. The hope of peace rests not in any debating society but in the fact that as yet we and the Russians have no large or irreconcilable conflicts of interests.

The proposed league has lost its reputation before it is formed. The partition of Poland, the other day's unilateral action of the Russians in restoring Transylvania to Romania, the refusal to honor the British pledge to the Lebanese and Syrians that they would be treated as free nations if they would renounce the authority of Vichy France, have thoroly disillusioned the world. The little nations know before they sign that the league will never save them. At the best it will be only a paternalistic force to prevent them from cutting each other's throats.

Some of our internationalists have mourned plaintively that their propaganda has fallen on stérile ground among our armies fighting in Europe. The soldiers there are interested in only one thing, to whip the Nazis and come home. They do not feel themselves to be saviors of all the nations of the world. It is well that they feel as they do. Their disillusionment will be less bitter when they return and see the fraud enacted in their absence.

THE BATTLE FOR FREE EXPRESSION.

(Springfield (Mass.) Daily News.)

There is no freedom in America today more genuinely threatened by political encroachment than the freedom of the press. With governmental censorship of anything that might be harmful to the conduct of the war effort, has also come political attempts to muzzle newspapers which are outspoken in their criticism of the evils of politics.

Altho many journalists vigorously oppose the opinions of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, chief critic of the Roosevelt regime, nevertheless the right of this newspaper to so criticize is as sacred as is the right of other newspapers to defend the President's policies. Certainly in demanding freedom of the press, those who enjoy this freedom should be above reproaching those who exercise it in disagreement with their beliefs.

For this reason, and because of the constant political encroachment of the freedom of the press, Philip Kinsley's "Liberty and the Press" [THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE], is timely, telling as it does the history of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S fight to preserve a free press in this country.

Regardless of a person's political convictions, he should read this book, for in reading it he may gain tolerance of others to exercise the same rights and privileges which he enjoys.

BEETHOVEN'S ATTIC.

We have been looking at a picture of Beethoven's birthplace in Bonn, reported "virtually" destroyed in the recent capture of that town on the Rhine. It was a plain dwelling for humble folk, crude mansard in design, set back from the street at 20 Bonngasse, facing the side yard of another house much like it. The three stories and attic provided fairly commodious premises for the museum that it sheltered, but the Beethovens themselves had to be content, for the first five years of the life of their wunderkind, with one room in the attic.

* * *

Albert Goldberg of THE TRIBUNE'S concert-reviewing department has made the pilgrimage to the Beethoven shrine, like many other American musicians. He reports having seen among the museum's exhibits a set of Stradivaris which had been given to the composer by his friend and patron, Prince Lichnowsky. We failed to cross-examine Albert about the types of instrument in this set, but it might include violin, viola, violoncello, violino piccolo, and violone [contrabass]. The collector's value of these items would run into extremely fancy figures.

* * *

Beethoven mentioned these choice possessions in the autobiographical document which he called his will, addressed to his brothers, thus:

"I should much like one of you to keep as an heirloom the instruments given to me by Prince Lichnowsky, but let no strife arise between you concerning them; if money should be of more service to you, just sell them."

* * *

Beethoven left Bonn in his 20th year and never saw the town again, but he seems to have dreamed about it often, for many of his letters were written to friends there in a nostalgic vein. The story of his life in Bonn was closely followed by Romain Rolland in the first volume of "Jean-Christophe."

THE RED ELEPHANT.

He brought it proudly home and placed it there
Upon the mantel shelf. "Mother," he said,
"I won it throwing balls out at the Fair;
It was their swellest prize, so big and red!"
And there it stayed all thru his gawky teens;
Callers would eye it with a puzzled frown,
For on each side my priceless figurines
With slant, disdainful eyes stood looking down.

It fell one day—he had been gone a year—
And I have worried lest it be a sign,
But, O, today his letter stilled my fear:
"Remember that red elephant of mine?
Somehow it used to mean security.
Now I have learned I can face anything.
I guess I've outgrown elephants, you see,
But, dear, it brings you close, remembering."

"Let 'Em Eat Pigs' Ears."

There they lay, a solid mass of frozen pinkness, on the enamel tray in the market. Customers hurried in with the hopeful question, "Any meat today, Elmer?" "Sure," he would answer, pointing to the tray. At their cries of amazement, amusement, or horror, he would explain with a gleam in his eyes, "Pigs' ears."

The questions they asked always brought a prompt come back. "But what would I do with pigs' ears?" "If I were you," he'd say solemnly, "I'd French fry 'em and use 'em for fly swatters." "But how does one cook them?" "Well, now," he'd drawl, "I'd toss 'em in a kettle of water and add a few seasonings. Then after they're cooked done I'd pour 'em out and eat the kettle." To the little bride's question of how she might serve them attractively he suggested that she pierce a hole in each lobe and insert an earring. But this was his prize: "Why don't you ladies make silk purses out of them? No luxury tax."

As I left the market, clutching the inevitable package of fish, I wondered what would happen if a certain queen in Washington were told, "M'lady, the people cry for meat." Would she answer, "Let them eat pigs' ears"? One could understand her irritation. After all, hundred pound crowns are heavy.

F. E. P. writes: "I was II-C until recently and when my draft board put me in 1-A I appealed and am now waiting for the verdict. A year and a half ago I received a preinduction physical and was found acceptable. Would it be possible for me now to make a try for navy radar or must I wait until I have heard from the board of appeals? Does a person have to be in 1-A before the navy will consider him for radar? Is there some way a preliminary radar test may be taken to find out if a person is short in some important subjects?"

Any perlon under 18 years of age may take either the navy pre-radar aptitude test or the regular Eddy aptitude test at any time before he becomes a selective service registrant. Persons in the age group 18 thru 37 may take either test as soon as classified 1-A if at some time they have taken a physical examination, either the pre-induction physical or the regular physical, and been found acceptable. The pre-radar test is given for the purpose of enabling the candidate to estimate his possibility of passing the Eddy test and if he finds himself shy in mathematics, physics, or some other subject he can set about to remedy it. He can take the pre-radar test more than once without prejudicing himself, but the regular Eddy test may be taken only once. It is suggested you visit the nearest navy recruiting station and talk with the officer handling radar enlistments for full details. The Chicago station is at 321 Plymouth ct.

BODY ENERGY.

A BALANCED diet furnishes the proper proportion of carbohydrates [starches and sugars], proteins [meat and certain vegetables], fats, minerals, and vitamins to keep the body functioning. The process is referred to as "nutrition" or "metabolism." This means the food we consume, the way in which it is handled, and its effect. In this connection, "anabolism" refers to the building up or constructive tissue changes; "catabolism" to the breaking down or destructive changes.

We cannot live without energy. Unless ready sources are available, even breathing would be impossible. This vital principle comes from the sun by way of our nutriment. When fuel [food] combines with oxygen, combustion takes place—thus liberating energy and heat.

How much energy is produced by a given food? This is measured by the calorie, which is the amount of heat required to raise a kilogram of water [approximately 1 qt.] from zero to 1 degree centigrade. Thus, 1 gram [1-32d of an ounce] of carbohydrate contains 4 calories; 1 gram of protein, 4 calories; and 1 gram of fat, 9 calories.

Since muscular activity utilizes energy rapidly, we can understand why those doing hard manual labor must eat more than sedentary workers. But exercise is not the only factor. Weight must be considered, as well as age. Growing children, for example, demand three times as much protein as their mothers. Furthermore, the state of the digestive and the endocrine systems must be taken into account.

In general, however, a simple way to figure your needs is to say that an adult at leisure requires 11 calories per pound per day; with light exercise, 20, and strenuous exercise, 38. Thus, a woman weighing 110 pounds, at rest, could get along on 1,200 calories; with average activity, 2,200. A man of 150 pounds at rest would require 1,650; for average exertion, 3,000. A lumberjack, weighing 200 pounds, would demand 7,600 calories daily.

In a diet containing approximately 2,500 calories, between 55 and 60 per cent may be made up of carbohydrates; 10 to 15 per cent, protein; and 30 per cent fat, depending upon activity and climate. Minerals, vitamins, and bulk must be considered.

Here are basic daily requirements, with the calories varying according to the need: Cereal and bread, milk [1 pint for adults, 1 quart for children], 1 egg, lean meat [fish or poultry may be substituted], potato, cooked vegetable, salad, fruit [juice, raw, or cooked], and butter.

Variety constitutes a margin of safety in nutrition and stimulates appetite. This régime will meet the demands for fresh foods [milk, eggs, fruits, and vegetables]; protein [egg white, meat, peas]; fats [butter, meat]; carbohydrates [cereal, bread, fruits].

Casual Day of a Casual.

A spy from the tobacco country reports that an outfit in Winston-Salem, N. C., employs prisoners of war from a near-by camp to do the heavy work in breaking up tobacco. The prisoners come by the day and are transported to and from their camp by truck. One evening as the trucks were going back to camp one of the prisoners hopped off the back end and took a little stroll around town. Around midnight, pretty tired of it all, he turned up at the local police station. "I'm a prisoner of war," he explained calmly, "and I want to go back to my camp." The constabulary raised their eyebrows in utter disbelief. They knew very well, they said, that no man with PW stamped on the seat of his trousers, the front of his shirt, on his arms and knees, could wander around their town six or seven hours and not be detected. In an attempt to prove him wrong they loaded him into a car and took him back to the vicinity in which he said he had been wandering. Eventually they passed an old man on a stoop. The prisoner of war said he had talked to the old man earlier in the evening. The constabulary drew up with a flourish and, pointing to the p. o. w., asked the oldster if he had ever seen him before. "Yeah, sure," the old man drawled. "See him wandering around?" "Yeah, sure." "Didn't you know he was a prisoner of war with PW stamped all over his clothes?" "Prisoner of war?" rasped the startled old man. "Naw. I thought he worked for Planters' Warehouse."

Nomenclature.

One of our spies wonders if the fact that Henry Tough is president of the United Auto Workers' union at the Dodge plant in Chicago has any bearing on the chronic friction there.

Eitel on Island.

Apparently it doesn't make any difference where you set the Eitels down. They're always feeding some one. Ann, the sister of Otto of the Bismarck hotel, operates a Red Cross canteen in the South Pacific and operates it by extraordinary remote control. At her canteen she has a little plug-in radio with four wave lengths and with it is able to pick up planes. The incoming pilots, well aware of this, make fine use of it. One army plane that comes in regularly gives her a long wolf howl when coming in. A navy pilot gives her a "Hello-o-o-o-o-Annie" call, and the marines, never to be bested, call in their orders for hamburgers, cheeseburgers, or toasted cheese. Not long ago a marine pilot brought her some tenderloin steaks to fix for him and his crew. He told her he would give her a call when 10 minutes out so she could put them on the fire. Suddenly she heard, to the tune of "Milkman, Keep Those Bottles Quiet," a voice singing, "Annie, get those steaks a-frying." She did.

Qualifications.

It is no new story that the domestic help rather than the employer sets the qualifications these days, but the former, we report glumly, are getting more and more strict. Consider the reply received by a Chicago couple who, poor dreamy mortals, advertised for a chauffeur:

"Man, 39, draft exempt. Good, careful driver. Will get license if employed. Also would like position as custodian or as armed guard on estate. Prefer to work for sober people. I will not work for people who use alcohol as beverage. My ideal employers are people who love the better music and art or literature. For pleasure they may play billiards or go to the races. [N. B. What races?] I am a good handicapper. Care to see me?"

THE YOKE OF YALTA.

Middletown, O., March 5.—In a radio broadcast on Feb. 26, Secretary of State Stettinius and Assistant Secretaries Archibald MacLeish and Dean Acheson attempted to define the foreign policy of the United States. Mr. Stettinius sketched a beautiful, idealistic picture of a world steeped in peace, harmony, and security "for generations to come," after the defeat of Germany and Japan. At the very moment that Mr. Stettinius was delivering his Utopian discourse, word was flashed from Washington that Gen. Arnold has issued a call for America to "build the greatest air force in the world."

With Germany and Japan "smashed," and in the words of President Roosevelt, occupied by the allies "possibly for 50 years," who is America afraid of? Surely not of the smaller nations who will not want to attack "Santa Claus." They will be too, too happy, basking under the Dumbarton Oaks in Bretton Woods in the shadows of the world bank [mostly American financed].

As was expected, Mr. MacLeish and Mr. Acheson vigorously defended the "decisions" at Yalta where the Atlantic Charter and the four freedoms—which had already been given the death blow at Teheran—were finally interred in the soil of the Crimea. They declared that the "great majority" of the people and the press of the country applaud the "Big Three" decisions. The gentlemen must have been reading PM, The Daily Worker, etc., and of course, moving about in the "pinkish" Washington atmosphere these many years, they wouldn't be expected to know what the "people" think.

The dominant question before America and the world should be: Do the Polish people approve of what went on at Yalta? Do Messrs. Stettinius, MacLeish, and Acheson think that the 7,000,000 Poles east of the Curzon line approve? Do they think that the 150,000 Polish soldiers fighting in Italy under Lt. Gen. Anders approve, when the President, thru the state department, pledged them the "political independence and the territorial integrity" of their country? Do they think that the American and the British soldiers, whose commanders in chief documented the Atlantic Charter and the four freedoms, approve? Do they think that the subjugated peoples of Estonia, Latvia, and the Balkan states approve? Do they think that millions of dead soldiers and civilians are shouting their approval from heaven? Can they believe that any American who subscribes to the four freedoms approves?

Spurred on by promises of help—which never came—from England, and with the moral backing of America, Poland dared to defy the Nazi aggressor. When the German hordes marched into ruined Warsaw, the Polish patriots—again inspired by the Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin promise of the fulfillment [without strings] of the Atlantic Charter—went underground, resisting to death their Nazi oppressors. Today, on all battlefronts, they continue to fight and die for the honor of their homeland.

In efforts to explain away the Atlantic Charter, and the four freedoms, certain peculiar sounding privileged radio voices will be heard frequently and persistently, trying to sell the Crimean crime to the American people and to the world, but the pleading voices of a betrayed people—many of them living as outcasts in remote parts of the world—will not be heard.

The yoke of Yalta will indeed be heavy!

JUST FOLLOW THE SQUAD CARS.

Chicago, March 8.—When returning from a business trip in Michigan Feb. 28, I had occasion to enter Chicago via Indianapolis blvd. I stopped at a store that handles cigarets in normal times, but was told that their supply had been exhausted at 6:05 p. m. This was about 6:30 p. m. Before I could leave the store, two Chicago police squad cars, Nos. 103 and 108, drove up and five policemen in uniform entered the store. They each received a full carton of cigarets, altho the limit to a civilian is three packages.

I'm wondering why Chicago taxpayers have to furnish automobiles, gasoline, tires, etc., for their policemen to drive over the state line into Indiana, at least a mile on cigaret hunts. After leaving this store, squad car No. 108 drove directly to another Indiana store where the same scene was reënacted.

Sheboygan, Wis., March 9.—Just what was the idea back of Frank Hughes' article in today's TRIBUNE? It couldn't be that you are deliberately trying to fan the embers of hate toward these conscientious objectors. Surely, you must know the danger of such sport when the history of the world is blotted with the blood of abused minorities.

It would be foolhardy of me to defend the morals of all C. O.s. Of course, they are not every one the fine upstanding, high principled, young men these beautiful ideals of peace and good-will should make them. These camps of slave labor are not conducive to bringing out the best in them. And, of course, I have always said that it is dangerous to segregate young people of marriagable age and give them no hopes of normal, moral sex life. This is bound to lead to immorality.

This isn't even their war, for killing is not their way of life, nor do they believe that you can give a man "democracy" by killing him.

DETROIT LABOR CHIEF OPPOSES DRAFT SCHEME

Says It Will Strip Plants, Help Fill Jails.

Detroit, Mich., March 12 (AP).—Testifying before the senate subcommittee investigating war production, Frank X. Martel, president of the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor, asserted today that proposed work-or-fight legislation probably would result in "more men in jail and fewer men in factories."

Frank X. Martel [top] and G. T. Christopher.

"We are suspicious that proponents of the bill have not told the people its real purpose," Martel said. He said he did not believe a local draft board and a man's employer should determine whether he should be "jumped into the armed services."

There should be, he said, "some over-all authority" to determine whether a man temporarily unneeded might not in a couple of months be urgently required in some other work.

Blames WMC for Shortage.

He said there might be some shortage of labor in the Detroit area but asserted it was largely the fault of war man power commission officials in not making full use of women workers.

George T. Christopher, president of the Packard Motor Car company, told the committee that part of his company's contracts were on a cost plus fixed fee basis.

"Under that arrangement does the government pay the entire cost, including wages of workers?" he was asked by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.].

"Yes," he replied.

Christopher replied checks were made by the government after the work was done.

Asleep on Assembly Line.

It was in the Packard plant that Sen. Ferguson said he saw a man asleep on an assembly line and others playing checkers before quitting time.

M. M. Macauley, Packard plant control manager, said the plant's present efficiency was 70 to 72 per cent. He said the last hour of both 10 hour shifts is practically wasted.

"Would you say that management has lost the right to manage?" Senator Ferguson asked him.

"If we attempted to discipline the men we'd have a strike tomorrow," Macauley replied.

Plant Officials Barred.

Macauley also testified that Packard officials had not been allowed in their own factory for two years to make time studies.

"Who kept you out?" asked Sen. Ferguson.

"Union stewards," Macauley replied. "They objected every time we wanted to make a time study.

"Our auditors have made floor studies from time to time. They inform me there is idleness and loafing from 17 to 19 per cent of the time."

Col. Raymond C. Anthony, army air forces representative at the Packard plant, said a survey by A. A. F. auditors showed there was an average of 17 to 19 per cent of idleness in the aircraft engine division.

75 Strikes in Year.

Col. Anthony said Packard had experienced 75 strikes during 1944. He said he believed management was meeting "considerable resistance" in its efforts to exercise managerial functions. This, he said, came largely from union stewards.

"Do stewards work at Packard?" Sen. Ferguson asked.

"I would say very little," Col. Anthony replied.

Richard Bohn, a plant department foreman, said stewards in his department work "about two hours a day."

To a question from Sen. Ferguson he said these stewards devoted the rest of their time to handling grievances.

Norman Matthews, regional grievance director of the UAW-CIO, told the committee, "very favorable" relations existed between the union and the Packard company.

"How do you account then for the fact that eight hours of a steward's time is taken up with grievances each day?" asked Ferguson.

March 12, 1945.

ANY ONE visiting a typical midwestern farm on a cool March morning will gain more impressions thru the sounds to be heard than the sights to be seen. The eye catches the golden color of the willow branches and the swelling of the lilac buds, but the ear detects a variety of rural sounds which combine to produce a symphonic overture to spring.

There's the whining rhythm of a hand saw being used by a farmer in pruning the dead limbs from his apple trees. Early morning visitors to the barnyard first feel and then hear the crisp sound of their footsteps on the frosted grass near the poultry fence. The white guinea hens are huddled together along the south wall of the smoke house, and their raucous, alarmed cackling could provide a substitute brass section for any symphony orchestra.

Tinkle of Tags.

You might expect the Aberdeen-Angus cattle in the near-by barn to produce the bass sounds from the barnyard, but they're standing side by side at the feed bunks, so intent on their ensilage breakfast that the only sound coming from their headquarters is the tinkle of their metal identification tags attached to chain collars.

In the turkey lot are seven white Holland gobblers strutting back and forth in a premature display of their pure white fans and distended wing feathers. The wings scrape against the graveled lot, and the resultant crackling sound is accompanied by the gobbling of the near-by hens.

Bleating of Lambs.

Walk north from the barnyard toward the Half Moon pond and the crows in the surrounding oak woodlot fly up and issue a series of four short caws, their danger signal, issued incessantly when any stranger approaches their territory.

Circle back to another barnlot and the first batch of spring lambs will greet you with their pitiful but unneccessary bleating. A cardinal, whistling from the top of a near-by pear tree, adds variety to the farm music and an assurance of approaching spring weather.

The GARDEN

THE vegetable growing season already is underway in the greenhouse on the Wheaton farm, with several types of seedling emerging from wooden flats.

The first tomato seeds [Crimson Cushion and John Baer varieties] were planted March 6. This is earlier than most home gardeners start tomato seeds, but the farm gardener believes in early planting in order to produce 36-inch plants for transplanting to the garden in early May. This sort of culture results in the production of ripe tomatoes in the first week of July, a month ahead of the time most gardeners start their tomato harvests.

Some commercial greenhouse men start a limited number of tomato seedlings in early March. These usually are transferred to 7-inch pots for sale as individual plants for an early yield.

FARMERS CALL MEETING TO GET FACTS ON DRAFT

Marion, Ind., March 12 [Special].—A committee of Grant county farmers has called a mass meeting in the city hall auditorium here for Wednesday night at which sponsors said they will attempt to obtain a clarification of draft rules and regulations and at the same time seek to establish responsibility for the conditions.

Notices regarding the meeting were signed by Otto Rigsbee as chairman, with Samuel Blinn, Fred Pulley, and Ora Rice as other members of the committee. All are widely known farm leaders. The action followed the drafting of many young farmers heretofore deferred and the sending of induction calls to many others.

100 WIRES WARN OF BLOODSHED IF SMITH TALKS

A hundred or more telegrams warning of possible bloodshed if Gerald L. K. Smith is permitted to speak Thursday night in the plasterers' union's Temple hall, 330 S. Marshfield av., were pondered yesterday by the union's board of directors. The messages varied only slightly in phraseology. A typical one read:

"Community shocked to learn that Gerald L. K. Smith of Detroit rented Temple hall. He is a disseminator of racial and religious hatred, and if this contract is not revoked it may cause bloodshed."

Members to Decide.

The union directors indicated they regarded the telegrams as challenging their right to rent their hall. Smith, they said, is nothing to them; in fact, they knew little or nothing about him until the outbreak of protests. After an all-day session, the directors decided to place the matter before the membership at a union meeting tonight.

Smith telephoned the directors yesterday and said his prepared speech was devoid of statements offensive to racial or religious groups. He suggested to Secretary Thomas Dowling that the union appoint a committee to sit on the platform, with authority to stop the meeting at the first objectionable word.

Dowling said the hall was rented for the meeting by Maximilian J. St. George, attorney at 10 S. La Salle st., one of defense counsel in the Washington, D. C., sedition trial.

Hall Available to All.

"Our hall is available for public meetings of all kinds," said Dowling. "We rent it to Republicans and Democrats, American Federation of Labor unions and CIO groups. St. George told us Smith was going to discuss the Polish question."

Dowling said he learned later that Smith was to speak on "nationalism," but he said that topic did not appear offensive.

Protests against the meeting also were made by the Chicago Council against Racial and Religious Discrimination, the Rev. Preston Bradley, chairman; the Chicago Civil Liberties committee, and the B'nai B'rith.

In Detroit, Smith made public a telegram sent to Ira Latimer, executive secretary of the Civil Liberties committee. It read: "Numerous attempts made to prevent America First rally in Chicago Thursday night to be addressed by myself. Do you favor free speech and free assembly for my followers and myself?"

KELLY TO FACE SENATE TODAY ON TRANSIT BILL

First Hearing Is Called; Green Absent.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Springfield, Ill., March 12.—Early arriving senators indicated today that they do not want to rush consideration of the Chicago traction authority bill, which will have its first hearing tomorrow before the senate committee on public utilities and railroads.

Gov. Green, it was learned, will be in Chicago and won't have an opportunity to appear on the senate rostrum with Mayor Kelly, who is scheduled to arrive with a retinue of traction experts and metropolitan officials. The bill, which would permit Chicago's street car and elevated lines to be merged under public ownership, is the outgrowth of conferences between Green and Kelly, heads of rival political parties.

Brownell in City.

The governor, who normally stays at his desk when the legislature is in session, found business in Chicago and got reservations on a late train. Herbert Brownell, Republican national chairman, will be there tomorrow.

Werner Schroeder, Republican national committeeman, who helped draft the traction bill, also will be absent tomorrow, which will let the Chicago contingent take the spotlight when it comes to explaining the plan for a traction board of seven with authority to issue revenue bonds to finance acquisition and improvements of transit facilities in Cook county.

Gov. Green, however, expects to return in time to appear at the biennial corned beef and cabbage dinner, at which Kelly and his associates also will be guests. The dinner, a major social event for legislators, is being held four days in advance of St. Patrick's day. Rep. Franz [D., Chicago] is head of the committee on arrangements.

House Appearance Doubtful.

Whether Green would appear before a similar hearing in the house chamber Wednesday before the utilities committee was uncertain tonight, but some state house sources said he would assign Schroeder the job of appearing there with Kelly.

Kelly is expected to be flanked by State's Atty. Tuohy; Philip Harrington, city subway commissioner; Joseph Grossman, assistant corporation counsel; Ald. James R. Quinn, chairman of the council's local transportation committee, and Joseph D'Esposito, federal works engineer.

Sentiment in the senate, which has a big Republican majority but has specialized in being independent of the Green administration, was that traction was a big problem and that the bill should be thoroly studied. Sen. Knox [R., Chicago] is committee chairman. Tomorrow's hearing will be in the senate chamber, since a big crowd is expected.

"My mind is open but I definitely will not vote to send the bill out of committee until I know what is in it," said one downstate member, asking that he not be quoted by name.

$100,000 Fund Sought.

Close attention was given a provision, about which Schroeder said nothing last week when explaining the bill to reporters, to appropriate $100,000 from the state's general revenue fund to help organize the Chicago district. Elsewhere it was cited that the senate would not have opportunity to confirm traction board appointments by the governor who would name three of the seven members. Kelly's four men will be confirmed by the city council.

PROPOSED LAWS: TAX ON TOMCATS, QUAIL ARCHERY

Robin Hood Bill in Legislature.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Springfield, Ill., March 12.—The rumor that some one wants the legislature to order all cats in Illinois to wear license tags spread thru the state house today, greatly disturbing the proponents of the bow and arrow bill.

"I hope John Ryan wears a green suit tomorrow," said Theo Ponting, assistant director of conservation. "It is pretty close to St. Patrick's day, and a costume of forest green would be appropriate when the fish and game committee meets tomorrow."

In modern Robin Hood style, Rep. Ryan [D., Chicago] has promised to carry an archer's six foot bow and one arrow into the committee room. He is sponsor of the bill to make it legal in Illinois to shoot pheasants, quail, rabbits, and squirrels with bow and arrow.

Osborne Favors Bill.

"Only two other states refuse to permit hunting with bow and arrow," said Livingston E. Osborne, director of conservation. "This is a good bill, and might help to get out the voters of archery clubs. Besides, there is a man in northern Michigan who can hit small game with an arrow."

Osborne, who had been strictly neutral when a fox and a pack of hounds appeared at the state house last month during debate on an open season bill, didn't take a stand on the bell-the-cat proposal, which has been reduced to legal terminology, but hadn't yet acquired a legislator to sponsor it.

That cats kill young birds was one argument in favor of requiring them to wear license tags. Another was that they howl on back fences, just outside bedroom windows.

Cats Kept Out of Bill.

A passing taxpayer suggested that the licensing of cats might be incorporated in the bow and arrow bill, but friends of Ryan refused to permit it.

Gov. Green had signed into law a fish code amendment which permits persons serving in military and naval forces to fish with hook and line without being required to buy a state license.

The house fish and game committee, headed by Rep. Thornton [R., Chester], hasn't yet acted on a bill to permit service men to hunt without state licenses.

War Houses Left Off Tax Roll; Des Plaines Fights

The Des Plaines city council at a special meeting last night directed the city attorney formally to protest to County Assessor Clark the failure of the assessor's office to include more than a million dollars' worth of new war housing property in the suburb on the 1944 tax rolls. The suburb's tax rate was increased 67 cents per $100 of assessed valuation as a result of the failure, said Mayor Charles H. Garland. The 1944 tax rate is $4.77, compared with $4.10 in the preceding year.

DARROW SPIRIT HAS 7TH DATE IN PARK TODAY

Friend to Try Anew to Communicate.

Is there life after death, and if so can the spirit communicate with friends on earth?

For the seventh year, Claude D. Noble, Detroit business man and amateur magician, will seek the answer to that age old question today and try to keep an appointment with the spirit of the late Clarence Darrow in Jackson park. At 12:30 p. m., Noble will call upon Darrow's spirit to communicate with him. He will kneel, holding an autographed picture of a mutual friend, and intone, "Clarence Darrow, I am here in fulfillment of our pact. If you can manifest yourself to me, do it now."

For six years the effort has been fruitless. Noble hopes his failures will explode the claims made by so-called mediums.

In normal times, Noble said yesterday, the mediums' business netted 80 million dollars a year. He estimated that today, because of the sorrows caused by war deaths, the business has more than doubled.

"My advice to war widows and others is to seek solace and comfort from God," he said. "Fake mediums have nothing but headaches to offer."

Noble will make a pilgrimage to Columbus, O., April 13, to keep a similar pact he made with Howard Thurston, famous magician, who died in 1936.

The ritual in both cases is the same. He kneels near the tomb of Thurston, and near the spot where the ashes of Darrow were scattered, and repeats the Lord's prayer. The time is always the same, 12:30 p. m., the hour both friends died. Then he asks the spirits to manifest themselves.

"Neither Darrow, Thurston, nor I ever believed in spiritualism," he said, "but we were deeply interested in trying to discover the true phenomena. I'll keep my pact with my two friends until I'm positive they cannot communicate with me."

FIRE KILLS BOY, BABY; 2 OTHERS ARE OVERCOME

Leon Graves, 5, a Negro, and his brother, Andrew, 7 months old, died yesterday in a fire in a third floor apartment at 3602 Federal st., while their mother, Edna, was shopping. The baby's body was found in his crib, and Leon died of burns in Chicago Memorial hospital.

Two other children in the family, Carzell, 4, and Anita, 3, were overcome by smoke in the rear of the apartment, but were rescued by Fire Lt. Frank Hendon of truck company No. 11. They were recovering last night in County hospital.

Chief Joseph Walsh of the 10th battalion said the fire was caused by a defective pipe in a stove used to heat the rooms. He estimated the damage at $1,000.

French Class Carries On in Old Tradition

BY JUDITH CASS.

At tea time tomorrow a small group of women will arrive in the Lake Shore dr. apartment of Mrs. Joseph L. Valentine. They will be laden with books and notepaper, much as college students might be, and for two hours they will speak only French.

Their class, the continuation of one formed about 25 years ago by the late Mrs. Edward Eagle Brown, is a stimulating one, its members feel, and, with George Cauuet as prefect, the women study grammar, make translations, and find themselves with plenty of homework to do in the following week. In conducting the class M. Cauuet does not permit a word of English to be spoken, but there always are plenty of laughs around the tea table.

Mrs. Brown is greatly missed by her fellow students, who met in her home at the start of this season last fall even tho Mrs. Brown then was ill. Her traditions of hospitality and serious study are being carried on. Mrs. Valentine, Mrs. Harold Amberg, and Mrs. John F. Hagey are long time members of the class.

Others currently studying in the group, which meets Wednesdays in members' homes, are Mrs. Paul Walker, Mrs. Howard Ellis, Miss Helen Sullivan, Mrs. William Woods Jr., who lived 10 years in Paris during her first marriage; Mrs. Donald MacMurray, and Miss Ursula Brown. The class recently lost another member, the late Mrs. Horace O. Wetmore.

M. and Mme. Cauuet's daughter, Mrs. Arch Farmer [Suzette Cauuet] and her infant daughter, Merle, born Feb. 28 in Presbyterian hospital, are at their home in Wilmette, where little Philip Farmer has welcomed his sister.

Wedding News.

The news that Mrs. William George Lee and Douglas Pardee Street were married yesterday will come as a surprise to their many friends, for altho arrangements for the wedding had been completed for some time, Mrs. Street and her bridegroom had agreed not to reveal their plans until after the marriage Sunday of the bride's daughter, Roxa Emmons Lee, and Ensign Wallace Peakes.

The Street-Lee ceremony took place quietly at 4 p. m. in the Bishop's chapel of the Episcopal diocese building, with only the families present. Mrs. Peakes gave her mother in marriage, returning the service her mother performed for her Sunday. Her two younger sisters, Miss Ruth and Miss Mary Alden Lee, who had come from eastern colleges for the Peakes-Lee ceremony, stayed over to see their mother married. Kenneth L. Cooper of Winnetka served his cousin as best man. Mr. Street and his bride will live in Chicago and Winter Haven, Fla. They plan to go south soon.

Mrs. Lillian R. Sigrist of Kenmore av., formerly of Highland Park, announces the marriages of her daughters, Joanne and Caroline. Miss Joanne Sigrist and Robert J. Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Snyder of Chicago, were married March 1 in Thorndyke Hilton chapel of the University of Chicago, and Mr. Snyder and his bride are at home on the south side. The bride is a graduate of Stephens college and Mr. Snyder was graduated from the university.

Miss Caroline Sigrist and Lt. Robert L. Imboden, son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Imboden of Cleveland, O., were married March 3 in the Country Church of the City and have gone to California, where Lt. Imboden will report for duty. The bride was graduated from Stephens college, the University of Michigan, and the Career institute. Lt. Imboden, a graduate of the University of Michigan, spent two and a half years overseas with the army air forces.

Here and There.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger S. McCormick [Annette McLaran] became the parents of a daughter, their first child, yesterday in Presbyterian hospital. The baby will be named Charlotte Deering after her uncle, Lt. Charles Deering McCormick of the naval reserve, who was on the Hornet and who now is stationed in Patuxent River, Md. The infant is a grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and of Dr. and Mrs. James W. McLaren of Jackson, Tenn. Mrs. McLaren is here to welcome her new granddaughter, but Mrs. McCormick will not see the baby until she returns from a holiday in Coconut Grove, Fla.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Owen Priest [Edith de Groot] became the parents of their second child, a son, Saturday in Presbyterian hospital. The baby, who will be named for his father, has an older sister, Kathe, who is celebrating her third birthday today. The youngsters are grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius M. de Groot of Sedgwick av.

Mrs. Edward Cullen was elected president of the Evanston Junior league at its annual meeting yesterday in the Orrington hotel, Evanston. Other officers elected were Mrs. Thomas Coulter, Mrs. G. Sheldon Fox, Mrs. Darwin Deaver, Mrs. Ralph Condee, and Mrs. Chester Taylor Jr. Department heads elected were Mrs. Joseph Hibben, Mrs. George Fairweather Jr., Mrs. Wallace D. Mackenzie, Mrs. Carl B. Davis Jr., and Mrs. Roger Barrett.

Proceeds from the league's Thrift House, open the year around, are used to support its dental clinic and other charities. Members also are active in the out-patient department of the Evanston hospital and the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society in Evanston.

Son Requires Understanding After Second Child Arrives

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Parts of an interesting letter I recently received should find numerous enough echoes to warrant its being printed today:

"I am having a great deal of trouble with my 5½ year old son. He was a beautiful baby and adored by every one, and his smallest wish was a command to his doting grandparents.

"When he was 3 years old a brother arrived, and son has steadily grown naughty since then. We hoped for an improvement when he started to school last September, but he has only grown worse. He is sassy and hateful to us, mean to his brother, and constantly teases the baby, and flies into a rage if any one attempts to tease him. He is noisy, nervous, and fidgety, yet the school doctor said his health is fine. His father and I felt there is a lot of jealousy toward his brother and have tried correcting it, but got nowhere. We have tried various ways of punishment, tried talking to him, spankings, or just let him alone, but get no satisfaction out of any of these. Where does our trouble lie? Is it with the child or in our management of him?"

Altho this subject has been touched upon here more than once, it needs [apparently] to be discussed again and again.

Naturally, since human nature, young or old, is a pretty complex affair it is not always possible to put your finger on any one single cause for a child becoming a real problem. But there is no doubt that, unless a child is prepared for a new baby and carefully handled after its arrival, he may suffer [subconsciously] from what we might call a "psychic shock."

Within the confines of this short daily article I can make only brief comments.

No talk on jealousy, nor correction of it, has any place in this problem. Also general correction, scolding, punishment, and discussion of this little boy's faults and misdemeanors should cease at once and for some time to come.

Instead, he should be made to feel himself restored to favor in his parents' eyes and also in the eyes of his formerly doting grandparents.

He needs interest, too, as well as praise. He also should have plenty of rest.

Besides all this, it is well to keep in mind that 5 years of age is a turning point. Little boys often get "fresh" and "feel their oats" in a new independence. Love and tact are needed.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 12.—I called on the gang making "Bells of St. Mary's," with Bing Crosby, Ingrid Bergman, and Leo McCarey, and walked into a scene where half a dozen sisters were sitting around listening to Bing. They all started laughing—all except Ingrid. She tried to shush them. They couldn't be shushed. What she and Bing weren't seeing, but the others were, was that in putting down his hat on the mantle back of him he put it over a cat. The cat was trying to get out of his hat. Finally Ingrid saw it and became hysterical, but what she looked at, as the closeup was taken, was that cat plunked on top of my new spring bonnet while I stood beside the camera. She really roared. When the scene was over, Bing said, "Unlike Hope, we can't be sure that our words are funny. We have to make certain there's something funny in the scene that folks will laugh at."

You Just Never Know.

Ruth Donnelly, playing a sister on the set, said, "This is a far cry from playing the mother of Betty Hutton, which I've just finished." Also there was Eva Novak. She was the star of Leo's first picture "Society Secrets," made 24 years ago. The makeup man was E. Mason Hopper, one of our ace directors of the silents. He should be called "The King of the Kitchen." Cooking is his passion. I'm told he knows a thousand ways to cook an egg. In the old days when he had a swank office and beautiful desk, his boss, Thomas Ince, came in, sniffed around and said, "What is that foul odor?" Hopper pulled out some drawers in his shiny desk. They were filled with manure. That's where he was raising his mushrooms. . . . William Flannery, who built the set for Leo, has just ended 12 years at Paramount. They'll miss him—he's that good. . . . George Barnes, camera man, said, "Do you remember when we made 'Zander the Great,' Hedda?" Do I? It was because of that one that I remained in Hollywood. In it I did my only death scene. Marion Davies was the star and the late George Hill directed.

These Gals Are Getting On.

June Allyson and Gloria de Haven, who did right smart jobs in "Two Girls and a Sailor," get "The Joy of Living" with Joe Pasternak producing and Richard Thorpe directing. Jimmy Durante, I'm told, will play an unusual role. I asked, "This time does he hide his nose?" . . . Since spring is here, Sam Wood and Harry Cohn are huddling again over "Jubal Troop." . . . Darryl Zanuck's Show Boat will be the musical version of "Cameo Kirby," story of a Mississippi river gambler. It was produced as a silent and will probably star Dana Andrews and Jeanne Crain, with William Perlberg producing in Technicolor. . . . Michael Strange gets her wish. She'll read the Bible in San Francisco, with the symphony orchestra as a background. . . . Mickey Rooney's mother was lonely, so she rounded up Mick's friends and gave them a party at the old homestead. Speaking of Mick, he'll be glad to know his friend Les Peterson, of Metro, who used to travel with him, will be a father, too, in May—his first.

He's Not Much Help.

I asked Charles Brackett if he didn't regret William Wilder's going off to Germany without him. He said, "I'd love to go, but fear I might be handicapped. Only German I know is 'don't roll so fast, dear pancake, said the giant to the cook.'" . . . Cecil de Mille was talking about doing a psychological story, but now I believe he's changed to make it early American. So far it's called "Opus 65." Indians will be used as heavies. Pardon me for saying it, but where the Indians are concerned, Americans have been heavies for lo, these many years. . . . Ex-President Batista of Cuba wants to take Emil Coleman back to Cuba as his guest, to entertain our soldiers stationed there. . . . Don't let that Barbara Hutton and Phil Reed twosome fool you. He ain't the man. They went to see the Beatrice Lillie picture. Even Bea's antics didn't wipe the shadow off Miss H.'s face. . . . Now it's Alan Curtis that Betty Newling is getting her name mixed up with.

Miss Lehmann Sings Brahms' Songs Superbly

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Not since the days of John McCormack's universal popularity has an audience packed both stage and auditorium of Orchestra hall to hear a singer, as one did last night for Lotte Lehmann's recital of the songs of Brahms, the second in her series of three. The phenomenon was heartening, for the Chicago public's discrimination in musical matters the past few seasons has been decidedly less than encouraging.

Some one once said that Brahms would have been a great composer had he written no songs at all, and conversely that he would still be a great composer had he composed nothing but songs. Of the truth of this the American public has had little opportunity to judge, its acquaintance with this large and important body of Brahms' music being limited by the indolence of singers to discover any of his songs save those which the personal taste of various editors has included in popular anthologies.

Miss Lehmann's program covered a wide range, bringing to hearing a number of masterpieces which almost never appear on other singers' recitals, and devoting ample attention to many of the beloved favorites without which such a program would be unthinkable.

So rich and varied, so subtle and complete is this singer's art, that it defies analysis or preference. Miss Lehmann's is the gift of perfect understanding. Each song lives a life of its own. Whether she catches the humor of "Der Jäger," with its O. Henry tag line, or sounds the brooding tragedy of "Auf dem Kirchhofe," her art is one of profound penetration.

Vocal display, which means so much to other singers, means nothing at all to Lehmann. Meaning and projection are the keystones of her art. But in the course of these plumbing voyages of discovery there is incidentally a vast lot of sheer vocal beauty, tho no one, least of all this compellingly honest artist herself, would assert that the voice has retained all of its one time glory. But when it curves to such a melody as that of "An ein Veilchen," the tender "Trennung," or the famous "Cradle Song," an encore for her audience on the stage, it takes on a radiance that lives in the mind with an intensity that outshines the memory of all the vocal virtuosi.

This vocal happiness was less in evidence at the beginning than later, when matter and manner became one in an ecstatic outpouring of tone in "Wir Wandelten" and the touching "Immer leiser wird mein Schlummer." But if you should say that "An die Nachtigall," the delightful "Ständchen," or "Botschaft" were of equal stature, we would not be the one to quarrel with your choice.

Miss Lehmann was liberal with encores, adding besides the aforementioned "Cradel Song," "Der Schmied," "Mein Mädel hat ein Rosenbund," "Die Mainacht," and wittily dismissing the insatiable throng by stressing the "Gute nacht!" of "Vergebliches Ständchen."

Modern Guise Fails to Save McLaglen's Old Routine in Film

"ROUGH, TOUGH, AND READY."

Produced by Columbia, directed by Del Lord, featuring Victor McLaglen, Chester Morris, Jean Rogers, Veda Ann Borg, and Robert Williams, and presented at the Oriental.

By Mae Tinée.

Here's some of the same old stuff that Victor McLaglen used to do with Edmund Lowe, the only difference being a time-worn story, dumb lines, and modern guise.

McLaglen still is the big sap who picks up the gals and invariably loses them to his old pal—Chester Morris, in this case. The boys are in the army, but as salvage men in the engineering corps. They're both deep sea divers, which gives them the opportunity to wise crack in diving suits under water, in compression chambers, etc.

The cast is too good for the story, which is trite and tiresome.

ON THE AISLE

By Claudia Cassidy

Mae West as a Connoisseur, Pronounced Sewer, of Amour; or, Romance with Bunions.

Little did I suspect, when first Mae West intoned the slumbrous "Come up and see me sometime" that I would be doing exactly that the very night Lotte Lehmann was singing Brahms just a few doors down the same street. But once having arrived at the Studebaker domicile of this undulating empress of all the Russians, I wondered if maybe Miss West hadn't picked the wrong Catherine. Russia has so many.

Heaven forbid that she should have chosen any of the six saints by that imperial name, but maybe when she asked for that history book her minions opened it at the wrong empress. Maybe she should have been Catherine the First, who was even more to Peter the Great than Forever Amber to Charles II.—at least, she married the man and wore the crown. I have no trouble following Miss West as the patron of love, forever amorous or even amberous, but I can't quite make the grade when as Catherine the Great she reads Voltaire and is the patron, among others, of Diderot. Mae West is forever Mae West when she calls it connoisseur, which is not only rare but in this case right, and when she rhymes Ivan with divan, that being the prisoner who has never before seen a woman and who celebrates by adding some new verses and business to Willie Howard's "Rigoletto."

On the whole, you can not count on "Catherine Was Great" for the subtle stroke or the deft flick. Since the days of "Diamond Lil" Miss West's powers as a playwright have been in a steady decline and now they are standing in a hole which by any other name might be that sewer. Her powers as an actress remain unchanged, tho perhaps a mite mature. Her gait is that of an opulent damsel with bunions, her lustrous orbs lurk beneath leering brows, and like Pooh Bah, she was born sneering. In fearsome garb and barbaric settings to match, she marches thru history so repetitious you might easily go home after the first act, because her methods in amour have a monotony that soon begins to look oddly like boredom.

Aside from Miss West, the play creaks with its load of leading men, most of them ornamental and some of them equal to being more than stooges. Charles Martin has an air about him for Potemkin, and Jack Richards is a credible Pugacheff for all his groveling. Ray Bourbon is there, of course, primped and painted for the "modiste" who makes effeminate a word women ought to be able to sue.

Mike Todd's production cost a lot of money and is in the worst possible taste, which suits the shoddy show. I suppose he gave up trying to be too credible when he learned that Catherine's lovers cost Russia 25,000,000 pounds. The whole thing is deliberately, I hope, ridiculous, seldom uproarious, usually dull. When Miss West sings "Strong, Solid and Sensational" she is not, alas, describing her play.

"CATHERINE WAS GREAT."

Desire Defauw Is Engaged for Third Season

Désiré Defauw has been reëngaged for a third season as conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, it was disclosed at a luncheon of the Friends of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in the Crystal room of the Palmer House yesterday. Hans Lange will continue as associate conductor.

Vocal music will be given greater prominence on next season's programs, according to Mr. Defauw. The first act of Wagner's "Die Walküre" will be presented in concert form with three soloists to be announced; Martial Singher, French baritone, will sing Ravel's song cycle, "Don Quichotte a Dulcinée," and the season will include a cycle of Brahms' orchestral works, closing with "A German Requiem" for chorus and orchestra, with Eleanor Steber, soprano, and Mack Harrell, baritone, as soloists. The chorus which will participate was not announced, but it is understood that it will be one of the city's established organizations.

Chicagoans who are enrolled as sustaining members of the symphony orchestra for next season, as well as those already on the everlengthening list, will be invited to a gala Saturday concert and broadcast at 2 p. m. April 21, followed by a reception for Mr. Defauw, Mr. Lange, and members of the orchestra, Edward L. Ryerson, president of the orchestral association, announced at the luncheon.

Mr. Ryerson had some interesting figures to present on the eve of this spring's drive for sustaining members to raise funds for the orchestra's annual deficit. Chicago's orchestra has a smaller deficit than any other orchestra in the country, he said; also the concert season of 28 weeks is longer. It will be extended two weeks next winter, according to present plans, for during a two week break in January the orchestra will go on tour to some 14 midwest communities.

Of the $36,140 raised to defray expenses this last season, 10 friends of the symphony contributed $1,000 each, Mr. Ryerson revealed. Eight others contributed between $500 and $1,000, and 886 went on the rolls for sums between $10 and $25. While mentioning the fact that in a similar drive for the Detroit Symphony 21 persons contributed $1,000 or more each, Mr. Ryerson reiterated that an increase in the number of subscribers is important for sustaining interest in the orchestra, a statement in which George Kuyper, business manager, backed him up.

Other speakers at the meeting were Norman Chester, here from Milwaukee, where the orchestra gives 10 concerts yearly, and Mrs. Telfer MacArthur, chairman of the woman's committee, which raised 59¼ per cent of this year's deficit fund. The committee also brought in 6,000 new season subscription ticket holders.

Teen-Age Girl Finds Petting Does Not Pay

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Here it is—the inside information from a gal who knows what she's talking about. When advice against necking comes from teachers, that's teaching; when it comes from parents, that's preaching, but when it comes from a high school girl, well—that's worth listening to.

on the SOLID Side

Her story gives out this way:

"I've often wondered why, when teensters write in to you, they beat around the bush, shade down, and generally minimize their faults as much as possible. I am referring to the touchy subject of necking. Many ask questions and express a slightly Victorian attitude but are definitely modern in practice. But I have some ideas of my own.

"I am 17 and was graduated from high school last May. I am pretty, as most high school girls now are, and often went with a crowd older than I. When I was in school I went for about 10 months with a fellow who was wonderful. But he liked me too much and when I went with him, I'll frankly admit, I indulged in necking, but good. When I finally broke up with him and started going with other boys, I didn't stop. I knew a lot of nice girls who necked. Or I thought I did. Sure, I had a lot of dates and often with the smoothest boys. But I never had more than one or two dates with them. I wasn't invited to most of the parties or big dances at school, but I filled my Friday nights.

"Then, joyful day, I was a senior. But a sad one. I had a grand total of three dates that year—and one of them was with a freshman. I stayed home with my thoughts the night of our senior prom. And all those thoughts boiled down to the final fact: It doesn't pay.

"It took me a longer time to realize I had been wrong and a longer time to swallow my pride, but here I am, getting ready for college, and feeling good inside. I have dates now, not an overwhelmingly large number, but enough. Best of all, most of the fellows tell me they think I'm tops. What I'm trying to say is, it's easy to get a fellow to neck with you, but it makes you feel much better to have him respect you."

No girl wants to be rated in the "she'll do in the clinch" department and, tho "good gals these days are hard to find," fellows are still looking!

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 club	Pass
1 diamond	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of hearts.

The point has frequently been stressed, that the instant the dummy is spread upon the table, declarer should go into his huddle before playing to the first trick. It is presumed, of course, that the huddle is for the purpose of formulating a campaign of play, and not as it sometimes appears, to decide what dress to wear tonight or which is the best horse in the second race. This advice applies with equal force to the defending players. One should not wait until the hand is developed before devising defensive measures. Otherwise a sharp declarer early in the play, may "put over a sleeper." In today's hand alertness by West at trick two, prevented a game that would have been stolen, had he relaxed for even a moment.

The bidding conformed to current practices. East could hardly risk a spade overcall, with a four card suit, especially when vulnerable. When North rebid the clubs South having passed a hand that was almost an opening bid, was justified in trying two no trump without a spade stopper. It will be noted that while it is not good policy for the opening bidder to chance an unstopped suit in trying for no trump, this is entirely proper in the case of a responder who may gamble that suit as part of the opener's side values.

The opening lead was the three of hearts. East played the jack and South false carded with the ace. West, of course, could read declarer for ace king ten since East's play of the jack denied both the ten and the king. Declarer immediately led the two of diamonds. Thoughtlessness by West in playing second hand low would have permitted declarer to get away with the contract. West drew a mental picture of South's hand. Ace, king, ten of hearts, the queen of diamonds, and the fact that declarer did not go for the clubs suggests the likelihood that he has the queen. He can hardly have a high spade as well, since then, he would have had an opening bid. At any rate if he has it all is lost, so West ran in with the ace of diamonds and shifted to the queen of spades, with gratifying results.

Journey Underground

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.)

By Flight Officer David G. Prosser

SYNOPSIS: The author enlisted in the Canadian air force in 1941, at the age of 20, and won his wings as a navigator. In 1943 he transferred to the American air force. On his ninth combat mission, Prosser's flying Fortress was shot down over France, and the crew bailed out. He landed alone in a field, seriously injuring his ankle. A kindly French family hid him in their attic for 13 days, until he was able to walk. Them they gave him civilian clothes to wear over his uniform, got him a false identity card, helped him go to Paris by train, and bought him a railroad ticket to Nevers, 135 miles south of the capital. There Prosser met a young Czech worker who introduced him to his employer, the director of public works for the township. The director took him to the home of a business man, who kept him overnight, then turned him over to Raymond, an automobile battery repair man. Raymond took Prosser in a truck to a house behind a factory building, and then entered Raymond's room.

INSTALMENT XV.

Once we were inside the room Raymond immediately walked up to this table, started the gramophone and played "America" at a deafening volume. Before the record finished, he had explained, "This is also a radio; when you listen to America or England be sure you close the windows and shutters, for German officers are billeted next door, and pass right under our window."

The window was open and strains of "America" floated, God knows how far, into the neighboring properties. I said rather meekly, "But shouldn't the window be closed now with this music?"

"O, the Germans don't mind music," he replied.

Finally Raymond showed me my bed chamber. In going there, we had to go back thru the kitchen, across the vestibule and first into a dining room, then a library, and lastly my room. The most amazing thing I noticed in these rooms was the wallpaper. It was designed and colored fantastically—orange zigzags crossed by yellow, brown and purple stripes, covering the dining room.

Opposite the door there was a large window with shutters. To the left of the door, a large double bed stood against the wall and next to the head of the bed there was a marble fireplace. In the room there were two large overdecorated armoires. Raymond immediately drew my attention to another door, to the left of the main entrance.

"This door," he explained, "leads into my sister's room. We must lock the door immediately."

He paused and looked at me sharply, and evidently noted the expression on my face, for he continued, "No, not for that reason. There are three young girls who live here: one 18, one 17, and one 12. I don't want the one 12 years old to know you are here—it is too great a risk with a girl of that age. The other two are old enough to keep their mouths shut. However, tonight the youngest will come here with the others, and will probably try to enter this room, so you must keep the door shut and make no noise when she knocks. We will send her to her grandmother's house before dinner, and she will stay there during your visit, so you will not again have to stay locked up in your room."

As Raymond spoke, his father came into the room. He was an old man, small in stature, and very pleasant and friendly.

"I am glad to see an American airman," he said. "We are tired of the Boches, you know."

More than an hour passed before I heard girlish giggling and laughter in the next room. "This is where I lie low," I thought, and for a quarter of an hour, I didn't make a sound, then I tiptoed to the window and peeked into the garden below. Grandfather was talking to the girls, who were evidently standing at their window just to the right of mine.

When he saw me, he said, "It is all right now, Monsieur, the little one has gone." I poked my head slightly out of the window and looking toward the girls' room saw an attractive simple, dark haired girl leaning as far as possible over her balcony in an effort to see into my window.

When she saw me, she spoke in English with the most charming French accent, "I speak a leetle English, Monsieur," modestly radiating an enormous amount of sex appeal at the same time.

I felt I could not open the door quickly enough, and when I saw her, she seemed to be as sweet and enchanting as she had been at first sight. She wore a simple light gray frock that suited her extremely well, but before I had a chance to look at her more closely, she was pushed aside by a tomboyish, chubby, blonde haired girl. This was Yvonne, the younger of the two; she looked me over from head to foot and then remarked to Marie, who had first seen me, "Il est joli, n'est-ce pas!" [He is attractive, isn't he?]

When conversation lagged, the girls decided to entertain me, and took me into Raymond's room to play the gramophone. The girls picked out all the French jazz music in Raymond's collection. Before the supply of records was exhausted, Yvonne suddenly rushed out of the room and returned a few seconds later with the family photograph album. We went thru this very carefully; each person in it was carefully characterized and located in the family tree. I learned that Marie was Raymond's sister, and that Yvonne was cousin to both of them, but still Yvonne's parentage seemed vague. There was a picture of her mother who lived in the south of France, and was unable to support her daughter, but there was no evidence of her father which appeared to be only explainable by the fact that Yvonne was illegitimate.

"I am learning German," Marie said, "and make a habit of dropping in on the officers [billeted next door] for about 15 minutes each night to practice my German. Occasionally, I go to the cinema with one. It is a good practice to go to the films, altho these Germans don't know how to make a good picture."

"I thought French people were not allowed in the German cinema—how is it you can go?"

"A French person has to have a special pass to go, or to be taken by a German officer. Soldiers cannot take women to the cinema. They have to stay in the orchestra, and the officers and N. C. O.s sit in the balcony."

"But is it not rather dangerous for you to be seen by Frenchmen in the company of German officers?" I asked.

She replied in all sincerity, "O, I never do anything with them other than go to the cinema and come right home afterward. The maid at the officers' billet said that some people called me a collaboratrix, but they are wrong." She added vehemently, "That is unjust."

Just before dinner the girls went out for a few minutes. Raymond returned with his mother. She was a sweet old woman who seemed to be incapable of saying anything without laughing at the same time. She had come to get some butter and sugar that Raymond had for her. She told me, "You know, now it is becoming more and more difficult to buy food on the black market—et alors, it is so expensive."

The dinner was amazing—better than any I had had in England. We each had two fat lamb chops, white bread and abundant butter, wine, and excellent pie and peaches to follow. This food surpassed that given to me by my last host.

Raymond said he knew a great many farmers and was able to get almost all the food he wanted from them, or on the black market. "France," he continued, "is a rich agricultural country, and Nevers is right in the center of the most fertile part, so there is no reason to have a food shortage here. Of course, the Germans take all they can, but we keep something for ourselves."

At the end of the meal, Raymond told me what I most wanted to hear, but did not dare to ask him for fear of arousing suspicion that I had more than a personal interest in the resistance movement. Of my future, he said, "You will probably stay here two or three days; if at the end of that time, you cannot go to Paris, then you will go to a farm outside the town.

I awoke late the next morning, and when I had finished dressing, wandered into the kitchen. The cook was there, and bade me a pleasant "Good morning," and asked if I wanted my breakfast. Marie soon came in and sat down with me.

I asked her where Yvonne was. "O, she is still asleep. She never rises before 10:30 or 11, but I have to go out and do the errands, so I am always up quite early."

Just before lunch Raymond brought in what he said was a doctor. This man was one of the most unusual I met in France. He had a complete old world air about him. His clothes were neat and well tailored, but designed in 1900 style. He had a perfect handlebar mustache and a small goatee, and long, white flowing hair. He spoke so quickly that despite the fact that he continually addressed me, I could not understand a word he said. He usually answered his own questions, so I did not have to worry about making any errors when replying to him. I described the trouble I had had with the ankle. When he understood, he burst out, "Pas pour moi [Not for me]—I am only a chemist—for your foot you need a specialist." After telling Raymond just what sort of specialist I needed, he quickly departed, wishing me good luck as he went out the door.

About 5 o'clock Raymond returned with the doctor, who wore a pincenez that made him look as impersonal as he really was. He was fussy, and the girls said after he had gone, "He is a regular old woman." However, he was efficient and massaged my foot so well that after two days of his treatment I could walk on it almost as well as I had before it was sprained.

Thru the Looking Glass

Several readers have written to us in the last few days asking how to get rid of horny, cracked skin on the backs of the heels. Such inquiries are the first signs of spring to this department. They mean the gals are beginning to think about going stockingless and how unattractive that roughened skin will look peeking over their shoes.

They're perfectly right in assuming that something has to be done about it in a hurry if they wish to be ready for the first balmy day that will let them don leg make-up. And they're not starting any too soon on the project, for it takes a little time to bring the skin to a pretty smoothness after a few months of neglect.

The first tool needed is a good, stiff brush to use when bathing. Plenty of soap and water and lots of scrubbing will help remove the dry, thickened cuticle. Of course, it isn't wise to try to get rid of it all at once and risk the chance of making the under skin tender and sore. But a few sessions with the brush will bring about a decided improvement.

After bathing and before retiring, get out your richest cream and massage it generously over the heels. The skin will respond nicely, and if you're afraid the cream will soil the bedclothes, dig out some of your old socks and slip them on. They'll protect the sheets and add to the effectiveness of the lubricant.

All this takes a little persistence, but after a short while the heels will lose the dingy, gray look and have a nice marble-smooth, pink finish. After they've been restored to a normal condition they can be kept that way with daily application of your ordinary hand cream or lotion, ready to greet the first warm breeze that blows this way.

Charcoal broiled, juicy hamburgers are now going to our front lines everywhere as part of the field ration. They're canned, of course. The quartermaster corps thinks they'll please our warriors. Now if they'll just find some way of sending apple pie a la mode in a can, the field ration should be perfect!

A drunken oyster is a relaxed oyster. Get this bivalve slightly "stewed" on carbon dioxide, and he'll let go his hold on his shell. Some recent experiments have shown that an oyster immersed in carbonated water for 5 minutes becomes intoxicated, relaxes that large muscle that holds the shell closed, and is easy prey for the oyster shucker.

Homemakers don't have to be "sold" on margarine any longer. They've found by experience that it is a wholesome, palatable spread. A survey has disclosed that 61 per cent of American housewives now use margarine on the table. This fat, formerly scorned by the well-to-do, now is found on the tables of high and low income families alike.

Most women dislike the time and bother required to color margarine and would prefer to buy it colored. But present federal and local laws require that it be sold white. Few consumers realize that many of the oils used in margarine are naturally yellow, and that this spread wouldn't need artificial coloring if the manufacturers weren't obliged to bleach the fats white, in order to avoid a federal tax of 10 cents a pound.

There are two bills before congress now, seeking to lift the restrictive taxes on margarine which were originated to protect the butter interests. If either should be passed, we'd be able to buy colored margarine.

Peanuts are the cheapest and most widely available of our nuts, and women are finding more ways to use them every day. They make a good nut bread when coarsely ground or chopped.

Peanut Quick Bread.
[One loaf.]

3 cups sifted flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
1 cup salted peanuts
1 egg
1¼ cups milk
½ cup melted shortening

Sift dry ingredients and add coarsely ground peanuts. Beat egg and add milk. Add to dry ingredients and stir enough to blend. Stir in shortening. Turn into greased loaf pan and bake at 325 degrees for about 1½ hours.

TURN IN WASTE FATS FOR POINTS AND PENNIES!

Young Artists' Paintings Gay and Animated

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A gay, vivacious, colorful, and decorative show is that of work by pupils of high schools and other schools in Chicago and neighboring territory, which opened yesterday in galleries arranged on the eighth floor of the Fair store.

The youth of America has an amused and wakeful eye that misses little of interest in current events. The pictures, in various mediums, cover a wide range. There are jungle paintings and paintings from the zoo, sidewalk rope jumping, and sidewalk jitterbugging, army scenes and store scenes, imaginative fantasies and practical backyards, portraits and cartoons. Everywhere color is splashed in generous measure, and an enthusiasm that bubbles from even the most awkward drawing gives meaning to the crudest effort.

Two hundred of the pictures wear a gold key. That emblem means they have been selected by a jury to be sent to the Carnegie show in Pittsburgh later in the season. There were five jurors, among them the two well known artists, Ivan Le Lorraine Albright and Ethel Spears. It must have been a difficult task to select the best 200, for there are double that number of excellent pictures.

One which is as fine as a mature painting is a street scene in a little foreign town with a group of sauntering Yankee soldiers. Another outstanding painting, wearing the key, is of a herd of running horses, a splendid piece of action, and still another is the friendly group of mother elephant and little baby trotting along in the jungle.

The exhibit shows American youth as light-hearted and color-minded. These young artists have turned out a remarkable lot of really good work, and they and their instructors are to be congratulated. The exhibition will continue to March 24 and is well worth seeing.

The Cordon club, Fine Arts building, opened an exhibition of portraits by members last Friday to run thru the month. It is a clever show. There is some good painting in it and at least one fine piece of sculpture, the head of Mrs. Michael Mason by Agnes Fromen.

Marie Blanke walks off with high honors for her very amusing and skilful "Cordon Tea," a group of tiny portraits in cut-out. Nan Rice has several interesting likenesses, and Winnifred Pleimling has a stunning, stylized portrait of Ethel Crouch Brown. Alice Mason shows a large portrait of Miss Herma Clark, in costume, one of the most impressive portraits in the show. Miss Clark is author of the "When Chicago Was Young" column in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Covered Wagon Biscuits.

2 cakes compressed yeast [small size]
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup lukewarm water
4 cups flour
2 teaspoons salt
4 tablespoons shortening
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup buttermilk

Crumble yeast into a small bowl, stir in sugar and water, and let stand while preparing other ingredients, about 10 minutes. Sift flour, measure, and sift again with salt. Cut in shortening until fat is in small pieces. Stir baking powder into buttermilk and add immediately with yeast mixture to the dry ingredients, mixing to a stiff dough. Turn out on floured board and knead lightly a few seconds to make a smooth dough. Roll out about ½ inch thick. Cut with biscuit cutter and place biscuits in a greased baking pan. Prick top of biscuits with a fork, brush with melted shortening, and let rise in a warm place, covered with a towel, until biscuits are light and doubled in bulk, 30 to 40 minutes. Bake at 425 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. Recipe makes 2 dozen raised biscuits 2½ inches in diameter.

Army Transmitter Ready to Broadcast to U. S. from Berlin

A 60,000 watt transmitter, more powerful than any standard broadcasting station in the United States, mounted in sections on 17 army trucks, is in the vanguard of American troops driving toward Berlin, Broadcasting magazine reported in its current issue yesterday.

Over this transmitter, it was reported, the first broadcasts from the German capital will be beamed to pick up points in America. If American troops should reach Berlin ahead of the Russians, the United States signal corps will have facilities operating from the city thru Rheims and Paris within 48 hours, an army spokesman was quoted as saying in Washington.

"It is believed that Gen. Eisenhower will employ radio to announce any cessation of hostilities to our troops first, even before reporting to the war department in Washington," the magazine asserted. In 1918 the armistice was signed at 5 a. m. Six hours elapsed before the word reached the men in the field. Many died or were wounded during this interval.

Easter Magic! White Hats of Angelic Allure

BY REA SEEGER.

White hats for Easter! They're white as whitewash, romantic as perfume, ethereal, angelic, and dramatic. Nothing seen in years equals the lure of these breathtakingly beautiful white hats. One look and susceptible shoppers turn out their pockets to own one. You'll see the madonna-like models, fashioned in a coif outline in white jersey, that make a halo round the headline; the fragile airy sheers of either horsehair braid, chiffon velling or ruched net, and the spectacular hats composed of three gigantic white roses, each a good six inches across, securely fastened to a tiny disc of fine smooth straw.

A white straw with drooping wide brim has a pearly luster to the plaited straw. It is a picture hat if there ever was one because the brim bends gracefully, almost hiding the eyes, and the flat crown is banded with a simple white ribbon around the base. Hats of tiny blossoms, such as valley lilies, stephanotis, frezia, and tiny hyacinths, and those of crisp cutout designs of embroidery or pique are whitewash for navy blue, black, and all dark street suits and coats. They'll top fur coats and jackets with the same fresh appealing charm.

If you ask for color with your whitewash, see the lush creations with green, deep, romantic dark green, like the waxed gardenia or magnolia leaf. Satin ribbon of this deep color trims a white straw bonnet, accents dizzy little sailors and is used for the veiling or net ruching around the outer edge of a wide brimmed straw. This green and white contrast is one of the most beautiful and becoming imaginable. You'll feel and look like spring in any of them, a real spring of warm sun and gentle breezes.

EVEN MEAT HOPE SLICED BY DIRE TRADE FORECAST

Conditions to Get Worse, Packers Report.

There's no hope that the meat supply will get better this week. If anything, it's going to get a little bit worse. This was the considered verdict yesterday of every one connected with the industry, from the government planners to the neighborhood butcher who closed his store rather than face hungry housewives.

Packers, merchandisers, and grocers to whom THE TRIBUNE talked in surveying the meat supply for this week had a different theory about the shortage, but the American Meat Institute, representing more than 400 meat packers thruout the country, summed it up: "The government is buying larger quantities out of a smaller supply."

Long Shortage Predicted.

The long term outlook, said the war food administration, is no better than the chances of getting a savory roast for next Sunday's dinner. It expects the shortage, save for temporary alleviations, to continue until next fall, when the first of this spring's porkers will begin to arrive at the markets.

The run of hogs from last spring is tapering off more quickly and earlier than had been expected on the basis of production estimates, one large packing firm said. Fall pigs will help the situation in spring and early summer, the firm said, but supplies will drop off from July to October.

Beef Supply to Drop.

The cattle supply, a second packing firm said, is running in fair volume, which should keep up for another six weeks. The cattle aren't as heavy because of lack of feed, and this supply will drop in the middle of May. In answer to the question, "If the supply isn't enough to go around now, and it's going to drop, what will the people eat?" the spokesman shrugged.

It's a fair assumption that they won't eat beef," he said, adding that pork supplies will be better by May. Grass fed cattle will not be in the Chicago stores until August or September, with no real increase until October and November.

No Poultry Received.

Other packers offered elaborate technical explanations of the lack of meat, citing huge federal buying for military and lend-lease purposes against intricate production and planning figures; but in the final analysis they said, "Just help us to let Chicago housewives know there isn't any meat and it's not the butchers' fault."

For the first time in many months, no live poultry was received on the wholesale market in Chicago yesterday, reflecting a nation-wide shortage. Receipts in legitimate channels have been extremely light all winter. The WFA urged increased production for military and civilian supplies, pointing out that military requirements of about 670 million pounds of poultry are nearly double the amount purchased last year. Nearly all broilers and canned chicken go to the fighting men.

Fish Supply Waning.

Fish merchants also reported a smaller supply of food. Some unusual varieties are on the market here, but all are edible and wholesome.

Reports of producers and processors were echoed by chain and independent stores. Three major chains operating hundreds of stores in Chicago gave this answer: "Supplies short and outlook not bright." Independent stores were resorting to closing one and two days a week to make the supply last till the week-end and get fairer distribution.

Fred's Market, 5909 Irving Park rd., was closed. The Jarvis Meat Market, 1505 Jarvis av., was closed yesterday and will be closed Thursday. "Nothing to sell," reported S. P. Krick, the owner.

Mrs. Janet Hays Divorces Rail Executives' Counsel

Joseph H. Hays, general counsel for the Western Association of Railway Executives, with offices at 204 S. Canal st., was divorced in Superior court yesterday by Mrs. Janet Hays, 801 Hinman av., Evanston. She testified that her husband struck her, twisted her wrist, and thrust her against a wall. Judge Joseph Sabath awarded Mrs. Hays $300 a month alimony and $150 a month support for her daughter, Janice Flo, 16.

HOW TO TRAIL WIFE SHOWN IN 1 EASY LESSON

Walter D. Jones, 40, of 3116 Diversey av., a machinist on the day shift, was granted a divorce yesterday on a charge of adultery after he testified in Superior court that he trapped his wife, Eleanor, 38, a night shift worker in a war plant, with a man in a north side hotel room.

On direct examination for more than half an hour by his attorneys, Joesph H. and Norman Becker, Jones said he was married Aug. 24, 1930, and became suspicious of Mrs. Jones' conduct last November.

"That," he said, "was when she began missing the bus."

Would Hear Bus Stop.

The Diversey av. bus always let her off in front of the house at 2:30 a. m., he said, until November. Jones would hear the bus stop and his wife come in a minute later from work. It became a routine, and Jones kept waking automatically at 2:30 a. m. even after the bus got out of the habit of stopping last November.

He would hear it whiz past his door, then he would go back to sleep, and some time later in the morning Mrs. Jones would come home, he testified.

By deduction, Jones reasoned that Mrs. Jones no longer was coming home by bus.

Traces 50 Car Owners.

"I went to the plant parking lot," he told Judge Joseph Sabath, "and copied down all the license numbers. There were more than 50. I traced the owners thru state license records. Some of the cars were owned by women, and some of the men were eliminated for one reason or another. It took me some time, but gradually I worked it down to two cars."

He called the home of one of the two men still on his list, and talked to the man's wife. She said her husband had been getting home late. On Feb. 1 Mrs. Jones left home. Jones learned that the suspected car owner on the list had left home also.

"Feb. 28 was pay day at my wife's plant," Jones said. "I went there in a taxi, and waited. After a while she came from the pay office with a man and got in his car.

Carried Gift Bag with Her.

"I followed them to a hotel on the north side, and when she went in with this other fellow she was carrying a bag I had given her as a present. I had them arrested."

"You handled this case like Sherlock Holmes," Judge Sabath commented. 'You should have been a policeman."

"I was a Chicago policeman for three years," Jones said, "and a G-man for seven before I went into war work."

Child Falls Into Water Hole, Dies in Hospital

Helen Lowe, 3, of 10130 S. Homan av., Evergreen Park, died yesterday in Little Company of Mary hospital less than an hour after her mother, Mrs. Charles Lowe, found her floating in four feet of water. The child at play had fallen into a 12 foot sewer construction hole near her home. The father is a chemist for Swift & Co.

PANDEMONIUM! DR. PAN (CHINESE) DISPUTES A LADY

It Ends in Gutter with Prosecutor.

Washington, D. C., March 12 (Special).—William Power Maloney, special assistant to the United States attorney general and original prosecutor in the mass sedition case, was in District court today on a disorderly conduct charge arising from a street fight with a Chinese.

William P. Maloney.

The Chinese was in court also on a similar charge. He is Dr. Stephen Pan, vice director of the museum of Chinese culture here. Locale of their tussle was described as a gutter at 14th and F sts.

Competition Over a Watch.

Maloney told the court he was at work in the justice department when he got a summons from his wife to hasten to Garfinckel's specialty store where she was having trouble with three Chinese. This trouble, according to testimony, resulted from a simultaneous desire on the part of Mrs. Maloney and the Chinese to buy the same wrist watch.

B. D. Riggs, a buyer for the store, said Mrs. Maloney had been attempting to make a selection from several watches and that Dr. Pan picked up one of them.

Riggs said he told Dr. Pan he was "sorry, but the lady wanted that one," and that Dr. Pan replied, "Lady? She's no lady. Not even a woman."

Enter Mr. Maloney.

Maloney caught up with Dr. Pan at the corner. Dr. Pan rolled over an ash receptacle into the gutter, both agreed, and Maloney was on top when a policeman separated them.

DIESEL ENGINE'S PART IN WAR IS TOLD BY W-G-N

How one small element in the vast American war industries cooperated with a naval unit in the South Pacific to win a smashing victory over the Japanese was illustrated last night in the sixth program of America Unlimited, a series of broadcasts over station W-G-N telling how each war worker shares in allied victories thruout the world.

The story, told thru the medium of Steve Grayson and his father, one a sailor on a landing ship and the other a railroad engineer on a diesel locomotive, explained how each move by allied military forces depends upon the support of the entire pattern of American industry, production and transportation alike.

Tells Story of Diesels.

The program served to emphasize the importance of the production of diesel engines in American industry and on the battle fronts by also telling the story of the electromotive division of General Motors in La Grange, one of the nation's major manufacturers of diesel equipment.

Many more workers are needed at this vital plant if production is to meet the demands of civilian industry and the military, the program pointed out.

The series America Unlimited is presented each week over station W-G-N by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, W-G-N, and a selected high priority war industry in Chicago, in coöperation with the army, navy, and war agencies.

Successive broadcasts on each Monday night from 9 to 9:30 will tell the story of another essential product and the part it plays in the general panorama of war production.

War Pictures Shown.

Coöperating companies are the Republic Steel company, Ingersoll steel and disc division of Borg-Warner corporation, Pressed Steel Car company, Aluminum Company of America, Western Electric company, the Buda company, and Hallicrafters company.

Last night's broadcast was written by Sherman Dryer, who produced the show, and original music was composed by Robert Trendler, who directed the orchestra.

IOWA SENATORS VOTE TO OUTLAW RADICAL BOOKS

Des Moines, Ia., March 12 (Special).—A strongly worded amendment banning school books advocating subversive activities was attached to a school bill which was passed by the Iowa state senate today.

The amendment by Senators A. L. Doud of Douds, Fred Cromwell of Burlington, and J. T. Dykhouse of Rock Rapids, all Republicans, was accepted on a voice vote without a single negative vote.

It provided that no school board member or county superintendent may be actively engaged in a teaching profession or be associated with any firm selling textbooks or school supplies, and that no textbook which contains subversive theories may be used.

HUNT PARENTS WHO LEFT BABY WITH NEIGHBOR

The boy and his sister, about 3, were left alone recently in their home, on the second floor of the cottage in the rear of 3245 Broadway by their mother, known by police variously as Roberta and Gertrude Carter. The father, Frank, a war worker, placed the children in care of a neighbor.

Sunday noon Carter called for the girl but left the baby behind. When he failed to return by nightfall police were called and they took the infant to the orphanage. Orphanage officials said the child was in a healthy condition.

TAXPAYERS JAM COURTHOUSE TO BEAT DEADLINE

Corridors of the United States courthouse were jammed yesterday as several thousand taxpayers sought aid in filling out their returns before the deadline Thursday, while other hundreds crowded the cashier's office on the 4th floor of the building to make their payments. Nigel Campbell, collector of internal revenue, said that more than 100,000 pieces of mail were received by his office yesterday. He said that his office as well as the seven divisional offices thruout the city would remain open each night until 9 o'clock thru Wednesday and until 5:30 p. m. Thursday.

FASTEST JET PLANE

Installed in the sleek, propellerless P-80 fighter, the new G-E turbine engine is more than twice as powerful as previous models, first produced for the Army Air Forces by General Electric.

The tremendous power of this relatively light engine, and its simplicity of operation, will give U.S. pilots new margins of speed for aerial combat.

Pilot fatigue is reduced by the lack of vibration. In flight, the pilot never hears the noise from the jet. The noise, like the roar of a fast freight train, is behind him. And because the G-E turbine engine has few movable parts, it is simple to service and maintain.

MAJORS SEEK ODT RULING ON SPRING GAMES

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, March 12.—Gen. Manager Jim Gallagher of the Cubs, who works from 12 to 16 hours a day, recently was the target of an attack by the Daily Worker, of all sheets. . . . Larry MacPhail's investment in the Yankees approximates $250,000, about 9 per cent of the value of the club. . . . Tulane university has designated Nov. 24, the date of its football game with Notre Dame next fall, as Alumni day. . . . The series between the two teams will be continued thru 1946 and 1947. . . . Maj. Ernie Nevers, who will assist Lt. Col. Dick Hanley in coaching the Chicago club in the All-America conference, was one of the most consistent 60 minute players in the history of the National Football league. . . . Red Patterson, new publicity director of the National league, is a puppy fancier and former dog page editor. . . . His mother and brothers conduct one of the largest orchid ranches in this country. . . . Lynn Waldorf, who with Ed McKeever, Ray Eliot, Lt. Paul Brown, and Elmer Layden recently made a record in the studios of W-G-N for overseas broadcast, got off this crack: "We have a new plan for football at Northwestern after the war. We're going to eliminate the negative and accentuate the positive." . . . One of the reasons that 15 major league clubs waived on Lou Novikoff, a circumstance which some commentators tried to steam into a charge of manifestation of the "gentleman's agreement" manipulation, may have been that Lou's military status is especially uncertain. . . . He has some sort of fancy deferment and is not a 4-F. . . . It is said he will get $4,500 with Los Angeles. . . .

It is said the "bird dog committee" delegated to flush a new baseball commissioner is considering a high coast guard officer for the job, but it's not Jack Dempsey. . . . Hotel facilities will be so limited San Francisco baseball operators are considering an appeal to fans to house traveling teams in their homes while the allied nations peace conference is in session. . . . G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York publishers, announce that "Frank Leahy and the Fighting Irish" has gone into its fifth printing. . . . The midnight curfew affects the White Sox more than the Cubs. . . . Normally things just begin to get good in Terre Haute at midnight. . . . In French Lick they roll up the sidewalks as soon as the movie is out, curfew or no curfew. . . . St. Sabina gymnasium on Chicago's south side, where the Golden Gloves preliminaries are held, has done its part to keep sports going thru the war. . . . Erected at a cost of $241,000 in 1937, it has been the site of an annual basketball tournament which has engaged 1,936 players.

Wasn't spotted by old Grandpa Plass.

And when it has come to an end,

Stretching their promise ahead,
Seem to offer a sort o' new lease on life
To each gentle, old, snow covered head.

O, Grandpa Plass, and the rest of you,
Who yearn for the coming of spring,
May many more years be vouchsafed to you

EAST'S GOLDEN GLOVES FISTIC MILL STARTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 12.—Sixty-one amateur boxers, champions of Puerto Rico, Buffalo, Miami, Jacksonville, Charlotte, Washington, Newark, and New York, tonight began their quest for Golden Gloves titles in a tournament that covered the length and breadth of the eastern seaboard.

The preliminary rounds tonight and tomorrow night are being held in the Ridgewood Grove arena in Brooklyn and the finals Wednesday evening will be conducted in Madison Square Garden. Out of the competition will come the team of 16 that will move into Chicago Stadium on April 4 to fight Chicago's champions in the 18th annual Intercity bouts.

The eastern field includes several army and navy entrants. Tonight's program in Brooklyn presented boxers from the navy, marines, coast guard, and merchant marine. Contestants from those units were not allowed to participate in the Chicago tournament, because of an edict by Adm. Carpender, who is allergic to sports events promoted by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Profits Go to Red Cross.

Francisco Garcia of Puerto Rico, who won an Inter-City match for New York last year, won the first contest of the evening by stopping Puggy King of Washington in the second round. King was a member of New York's squad last spring, but did not fight against Chicago.

Other flyweight survivors were Vic Eisen of Buffalo, a high school senior with a record of 13 straight victories; William Simon of New York, who whipped Billy Howard of Jacksonville, and Andy Pecora of Newark, who drew a bye. Eisen whose father runs a string of tire stores in Pennsylvania, and upstate New York, won a decision from Dominic Palermo of Charlotte, N. C.,

First Bantamweight Qualifies.

Bobby Temple of Charlotte was the first bantamweight to qualify for tomorrow's semi-finals. The 18 year old high school student, who recently won the National A. A. U. junior flyweight championship, had the edge on Sammy Butera of Buffalo, also an 18 year old high school student. Temple soon was joined as a survivor by 16 year old Sal Puzzo of Newark, who knocked out Lenny Sousa from the Miami naval training center in the first round. Before entering service Sousa used to put time fuses on bombs, but tonight was the first time one exploded in his face.

The other 118 pound winners were Adolfo Castro Calderon of Puerto Rico, whose early lead was too much for Frank Stefano of New York and Jimmy Binz of Washington, who defeated Ken King of Jacksonville.

John Pembridge of New York, 27 year old checker in a navy yard, had to maintain a whirlwind pace all the way to keep ahead of Jimmy Esposito, a 17 year old high school lad from Newark, to earn a decision in the featherweight ranks. Both were unusually effective body punchers. Marvin Marshall, a deaf mute from Washington, outpointed Leroy Hubbard of the Miami naval training center in another 126 pound contest.

Marine Floored Three Times.

Nick Poppo of Buffalo popped Jack Blount of Jacksonville on the chin near the end of the second round and the Floridan was unable to come out for the third round, altho the bell had saved him from a knockout. John Byrnes of Charlotte, a marine from Cherry Point, N. C., was knocked down three times in the first round by Rafael Reverton of Puerto Rico, a handicap his late rally couldn't offset and the decision went to the islander.

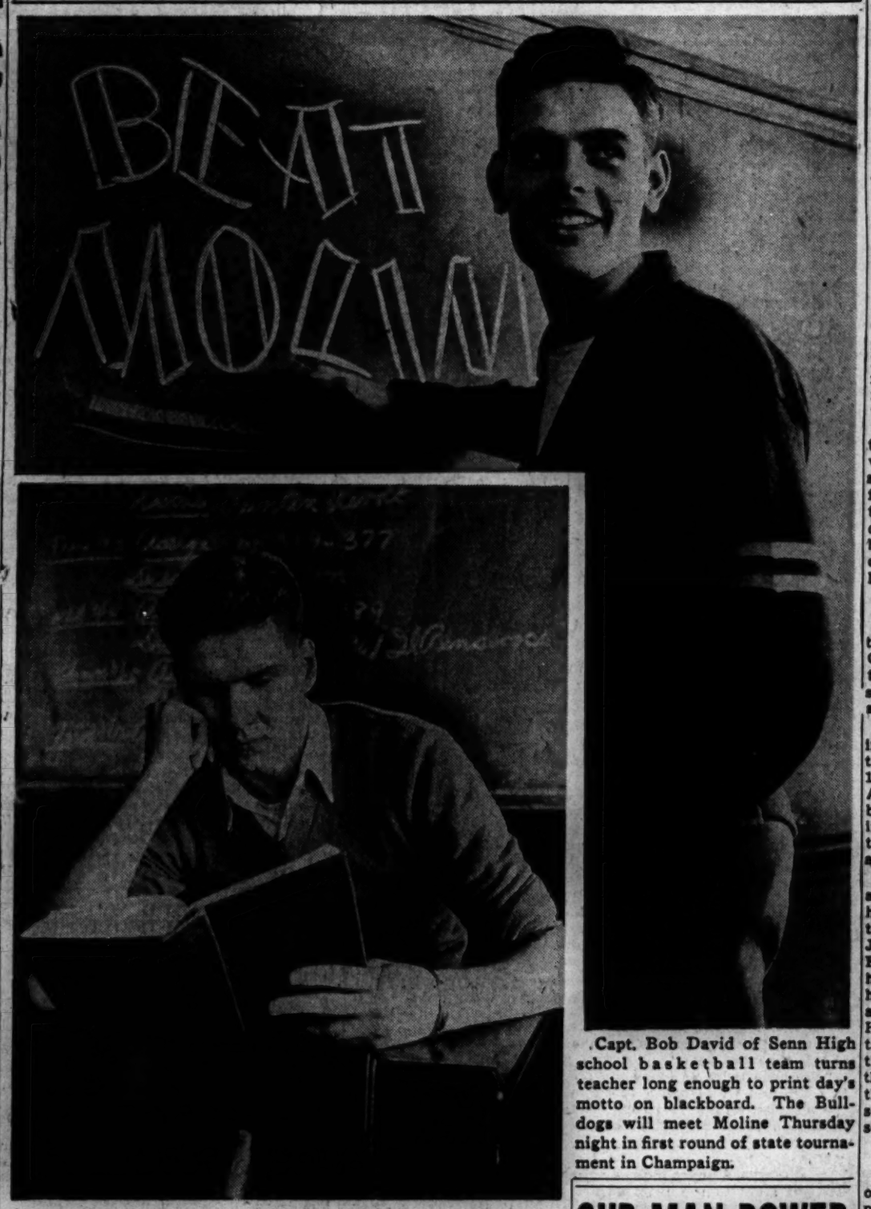
Fowler Defeats O'Neill Bell in Marigold Bout

Robert Fowler, employe of the Chicago Rapid Transit lines, upset O'Neil Bell, Detroit welterweight in an eight round bout in Marigold Gardens last night before 1,414 spectators who paid $2,928.

A right to the jaw floored Bell for a nine count in the third, and the latter won his first round when he sent Fowler to one knee for no count in the fifth. The decision was not unanimous, Referee Tommy Gilmore voting for Bell with Judges Arthur Oberg and Carl Witt scoring for Fowler.

Coast Guardsman Eddie Lander of the west side stopped A. C. Lee, Indianapolis lightweight, in the fifth round of a scheduled six round semi-windup. Three preliminary matches also ended in knockouts: Jerry Pittro, west side welterweight, knocking out Robert Weatherly in the first round; Billy Sparks, Indianapolis featherweight, stopping Nick Kachardus in the fourth, and Luther Brent knocking out George Taylor, Waukegan 150 pounder, in the second.

STATE MEET IS CHIEF STUDY THESE DAYS



It's a book on American authors which Jack Wulf, Senn's 6 foot 6 inch center, is studying, but doubtless he is giving more thought to ways and means of winning the state championship than he is to literature. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Capt. Bob David of Senn High school basketball team turns teacher long enough to print day's motto on blackboard. The Bulldogs will meet Moline Thursday night in first round of state tournament in Champaign.

Senn Won't Be Sucker for Those Small Town Slickers

Chicago, since the state basketball tournament took up business in 1908, has failed to produce a title winning quintet in the downstate doings. Now, in this fourth war year, the Senn High school Bulldogs, who last week settled the City league title question for keeps by defeating Von Steuben, 32 to 20, are being watched closely.

Senn, coached by Harry Leighton, made it clear almost from the season's outset that it had its eyes on the title. After losing three of eight practice games, the Bulldogs found themselves in the University of Chicago holiday tournament and won the meet. Once accustomed to victory, the Bulldogs found the experience to their liking and stretched the string of triumphs to 20 straight as they captured the north section and City league titles in stride.

Take Chicago Teams Lightly.

This, while it naturally thrilled the Senn boosters, who had been title hungry for 32 years, would, in normal times, cause no flurry of excitement downstate, where Chicago champions generally have been little more than an additional burden on overtaxed housing conditions at the tournaments.

Prior to last season, Chicago's only claims to fame were that Harrison Tech finished third in 1931, and Von Steuben ranked fourth in 1938. Then South Shore won third place in the 1944 meet, and came within two points of entering the final game.

Uncle Sam Takes Older Boys.

One of the reasons big city basketball is more highly regarded these days, aside from the lesson South Shore demonstrated last season, is that Uncle Sam has had first priority on the older and more mature athletes who previously sparked some downstate combinations. This has not affected Chicago, for the City league enforces an 18 year age limit.

Now, with all the prep basketball boys of more equal age, there has been more than a bit of suspicion that a Chicago entrant could sneak in and win the title. With Senn, it's a possibility.

The Bulldogs have not performed too spectacularly during the season, but have risen to each occasion as it came along, and won with comparative ease. In the finals, where it was believed Von Steuben had a fine chance of upsetting things, Senn scarcely was troubled.

Pose Problem for Moline.

Defensively, when Von Steuben played the ball close to the floor, Senn's defense broke up the plays and started an offense of its own. When Von Steuben played the high shots, Jack Wulf, 6 foot 6 inch Senn center, was under the basket to take the rebound. Wulf also worked effectively under the Senn basket, making 15 points to lead the scorers.

Moline's Maroons will provide the first round competition for Senn. Coach Leighton, who has worked the whole season on the idea that while some members of his team might be stopped, no opposition can stop all the players, indicates that is what may happen against Moline. If the Maroons spend too much effort attempting to check Wulf, they may find that Frank Murphy, Frank Walters, Bob David, and Roy Baskin have taken matters in their hands, as has happened before.

BILL MOSIENKO WINS LADY BYNG AWARD; SMITH 2D

MONTREAL, March 12 (AP).—Polling 95 of a possible 100 points, Bill Mosienko of the Chicago Blackhawks today won the Lady Byng trophy annually awarded to the National Hockey league player for best combining sportsmanship and playing ability.

Bill Mosienko.

Clint Smith, also of the Hawks, finished second with 81 points, and Syd Howe of Detroit third with 75. Buddy O'Connor of Montreal and Bill Cowley of Boston tied for fourth at 62.

CUB MAN POWER DIAL FREEZES ON NUMBER 12

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., March 12.—Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs kept his dauntless dozen intact today but incoming buses failed to lift the total to even so much as 13, come sundown of the fifth day of the training camp here.

The 12 who so bravely have come right out into the public panorama worked out on the practice field this afternoon for the first time. The field was in good shape, considering it was under several feet of water when the first squad of nine arrived here last Thursday. The batting cage, the home plate and base bags all were in place, the grass was green and the skinned portions dry and smooth, thanks to the extra curricular efforts of the tireless trainer, Dr. Andy Lotshaw.

Ostrowski Stays in Camp.

It developed today that Johnny Ostrowski will not have to go to Chicago as previously announced. He was to have gone for a checkup by his draft board but arrangements were made to have his papers transferred to near-by Paoli, a preliminary to subsequent examination in Louisville. Johnny is sans a kidney and also has an ear injury, and may be continued in his present 4-F classification.

In the meantime there was no indication here that Vice President Jim Gallagher in Chicago had relaxed his mystery pose or his adamant censorship of news pertaining to stragglers.

Grimm's in Dark, Too.

There has been nothing from Gallagher approaching informative data recently made public by Vice President Harry Grabiner of the White Sox anent the status of absentee personnel. There is evidence that even Manager Grimm is a victim of Gallagher's mystery didoes. Every morning at 7 o'clock Grimm rushes to the hotel desk to see if any players have slipped in during the night. The last three mornings he has not seen a familiar new name on the register.

There are no casualties on the squad and most of the routine muscle soreness has worn away.

16 White Sox Show Up for Opening Drill

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Terre Haute, Ind., March 12.—James J. Dykes opened his 1945 White Sox baseball school today with a grand total of 16 registered pupils and while there was some question as to the quality of the assemblage it was just about high in quantity for this spring's major league training camps.

Wally Moses.

The bulk of those in on the first drill, which was a mild affair, were utter strangers to Dykes and his two man faculty, but given a few more days they promise not only to be able to call the boys by their given names, but some other names, the latter depending on how good or bad they handle their work.

Dykes Talks to Holdouts.

And Mr. Dykes, even tho busy trying to figure out which guy was Gus and which was Joe, etc., had time to retouch the holdout picture so that it didn't look half as depressing as originally shown.

When Vice President Harry Grabiner published his scratch sheet on the squad last Saturday it included 10 names in the unsigned column. Apparently Dykes, since then, has been dropping dimes and quarters into phone boxes. It's an old custom of his to track down fellows alleged to be a bit balky over salary.

Dykes now is pretty definite there aren't more than five or six who haven't agreed to terms. He's certain Orval Grove, Bill Dietrich, Johnny Humphries, Joe Haynes, and Ed [Lefty] Lopat can be labeled holdouts. The boss man is confident he'll have 'em satisfied very shortly altho a couple of them, Dietrich and Humphries, claim they are entertaining thoughts of not playing ball this year. Dykes' stock answer to this one is that this is just what he thought some of them did last season, thus accounting for the team's seventh place finish.

Moses Has His Reasons.

Outfielder Wally Moses, who is one of the few pre-war regulars still possessed by the Sox, has been reported holding out for a wage boost but rumors infiltrating from the east indicate the 33 year old fly chaser is remaining at home because of doubt about his draft status. Wally, who personally discovered several times that a human couldn't budge a modern concrete grandstand, is pretty well wired together so the army probably wouldn't take him, the scarcity of wire notwithstanding.

His curiosity over Hal Trosky's threats to quit the game caused Dykes to include the big first baseman on his phone list. Trosky continues to say he'll stay in his present job as an icebox maker somewhere near his Norway, Ia., home. Catcher Tom Jordan, previously listed as a holdout, has agreed to terms according to Dykes but is doubtful about reporting. So is Mike Tresh, who hasn't signed. Bill Nagel, third baseman purchased from Milwaukee, is missing but his contract status isn't definite.

Seven Pitchers Report.

Here's the class register of opening day: Pitchers—John Johnson, Bob Mistele, Frank Papish, Lee Ross, Ralph Strem, Clay Touchstone, and Al Treichel. Catchers—Art Michalski, John Nadvornik, and Parish Thaxton. Infielders—Bob Dalrymple, Le Roy Schalk, Cass Michaels, and Charley Weitzel. Outfielders—John Dickshot and Oris Hockett.

There was a 17th man in the school, but he wasn't an official member. A slatlike fellow showed up to watch the practice and informed Dykes he was on his way for a tryout with the Cubs at French Lick. Dykes handed him a uniform as well as a cigar and the athlete decided to travel no farther. He's a left handed pitcher named Chester Kurowski from Mosinee, Wis. Before going into the army, from which he was discharged last January, he pitched minor league ball in Wisconsin.

One man who failed to appear today as scheduled was Infielder Joe Orengo. He advised Dykes he is still in San Francisco and that a letter of explanation is on the way.

Red Cross to Get $185,093 World Series Check Today

St. Louis, Mo., March 12 (AP).—A check for $185,093 will be presented to the Red Cross war fund tomorrow as major league baseball's contribution from receipts of the 1944 All-St. Louis world series last October. Leslie M. O'Connor, chairman of the major leagues' advisory council, will come here from Chicago for the presentation ceremony.

HARRIDGE AND FRICK TO VISIT CAPITAL AGAIN

They'll See Johnson Thursday.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Whether major league baseball teams will play exhibition games this spring will be determined in Washington Thursday, when the two presidents, Will Harridge of the American and Ford Frick of the National, confer with Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the office of defense transportation.

This will be the second visit this year of the two league chiefs to the capital. On each occasion Harridge and Frick, in the hope of shunning publicity, had made no advance announcement of their proposed missions. But last night an ODT source told the Associated Press that the meeting would be held this week. With this report made public, Harridge said last night that the conference has been arranged for Thursday.

All-Star Game Dropped.

When Harridge and Frick visited the capital a few weeks ago to talk on manpower and transportation problems, they volunteered to eliminate all exhibition games during the season, except those played for entertainment of service men in military camps. This made the annual charity All-Star game a casualty because of the transportation involved in playing it.

Baseball people interpreted the agreement as making exhibition games played on home training fields within bounds. Most of the 94 games scheduled by American league teams this spring were to be played on the practice field of one or the other of the contestants.

They Want to Be Sure.

Those which were scheduled between major league teams in a neutral city, such as the White Sox and Reds in Louisville, were canceled.

Always careful to coöperate with the government, baseball now will seek a definite ruling on all spring games.

The competitive angle, rather than any financial gain, is the basis of spring training games. Big league clubs feel that these exhibitions are necessary more than ever, since intra-club games will be next to impossible because of the man power shortage.

"Baseball appreciates the serious transportation problem," said Harridge, "and we want to do what is right. I am sure we will be able to clarify the situation."

Pledge Big Reduction.

In their previous visit to Washington the major league chiefs pledged a 25 per cent cut in travel this year as compared to 1944. The Associated Press quoted an ODT source in Washington as declaring:

"There has been no indication that we know of that baseball will violate in any way the spirit of the understanding reached on exhibition games in our recent conference with Frick and Harridge. If there is any confusion on this particular point we can straighten that out quickly in the approaching conference."

The first exhibition games are scheduled a week from Saturday. The White Sox are to meet Detroit in Evansville, Ind., where the Tigers are training and the Boston Braves, training in Washington, D. C., have a contest with the Philadelphia Athletics in Frederick, Md.

EXPECT USUAL TWIN PROBLEMS AT STATE MEET

Champaign, Ill., March 12 (AP).—Champaign-Urbana officials, confronted with the perennial state high school basketball tournament problems—room shortages and ticket scalpers—hope to lick them both this year.

An appeal to citizens brought a list of 800 rooms to accommodate the overflow from jammed hotels but 1,500 more are needed, University of Illinois housing authorities said.

Nelson K. Tull, deputy internal revenue collector, recalling that only 2,500 of 20,000 mail applications for tickets could be filled a month ago, has 10 federal agents ready to mingle with crowds outside George Huff gymnasium and watch for ticket scalpers.

SPORTS QUIZ: ARE THE HAWKS IN RACE OR OUT?

Problem Takes a Heap of Figurin'.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

"Are the Blackhawks out of it?"

"Do the Hawks have a chance to get in the Stanley cup play-offs?

"Yes, I know the Hawks lost to Boston Sunday, but does that put them out of the play-offs?

"Now that the Hawks are out, when can we get tickets for next season?"

These were among the hundreds of queries which flooded the Chicago Blackhawk headquarters' switchboard thruout yesterday, following the 7 to 2 licking the boys took in Boston Sunday evening. Fending off the questioners with his usual tact, Joseph C. Farrell, the Voice of the Hawks, finally thrust his long fingers into a desk drawer and hauled out a dictionary.

'Twill Be a Miracle.

The Farrell digits flipped thru the book until they landed among the "M's." Then, adopting his best mortician's mien, Mr. F. stated in funereal tones:

"Here it is — 'MIRACLE — An event or effect in the physical world, deviating from the known laws of nature.' And it will call for a miracle for us to get into that final four teams. But don't forget our young men have engineered hockey miracles before."

In any second guessing Hawk loyalists may care to commit before their favorites meet the Bruins again Thursday night in the final Stadium game of the regulation season, they should first consider tonight's important battle in Boston, where the Bruins will entertain the second place Red Wings.

Tonight's Game a Big One.

By their 7 to 2 Sabbath victory over the Hawks, the Bostonians took possession of fourth place with a one game advantage over the Hawks. By beating Detroit tonight, the Bruins could increase their advantage over Chicago to four points, or two games. If Boston should win this evening, the Hawks would have to win all of their remaining three games or win two and tie one to nose out Boston for the last play-off spot, provided the Bruins did not win one or gain a tie in their last two contests, one with the Hawks in Chicago Thursday, and the last against Montreal in Boston Sunday.

Elmer Lach, Montreal's brilliant center, took a firm grip on the individual scoring lead over the week-end. Going into the final week of regular play, the leaders are:

	Goals.	Assists.	Pts.
Lach, Montreal	25	51	76
Richard, Montreal	48	22	70
Blake, Montreal	27	38	65
Cowley, Boston	25	39	64
Kennedy, Toronto	29	24	53
De Marco, New York	24	29	53
Howe, Detroit	16	35	51
Carveth, Detroit	23	26	49
Mosienko, Chicago	25	23	47

MANAGERS FIGHT OVER LAMOTTA, COSTNER PURSE

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Chairman Sheldon Clark and Commissioner Lt. Gen. Roy D. Keehn of the Illinois athletic commission yesterday voted to withhold 33⅓ per cent of Jack Lamotta's purse for a 10 round bout with George Costner after receiving information that indicated the New York middleweight may have two managers.

The commissioners made it clear Lamotta would be paid his full share of his earnings for the contest scheduled in Chicago Stadium March 26. Jack is to collect 30 per cent of the net receipts.

Fight Between Managers.

"This is a fight between two managers and until we learn the one to whom the manager's end rightfully belongs we will not release it," Commissioner Keehn said.

The commission's action followed receipt of a notification from Louis A. D'Agosto, New York attorney for Mike Capriano, former manager of Lamotta, that his "client still is legal manager of Lamotta and is entitled to a part of the fighter's earnings." With the notice was enclosed a photostatic copy of an agreement between Capriano and Lamotta which indicates it does not expire until 1949.

Signed Own Contract.

However, according to information from New York, Capriano signed a release which made Lamotta a free agent.

Jimmy Murray, Lamotta's manager of record at the Illinois commission when Jack first took out a license to fight in Chicago in 1941, is present representative of the 23 year old New Yorker. However, Lamotta signed his own contract for the encounter with Costner.

The Illinois commission approved management contracts at yesterday's meeting between Lou Redzienda, Catholic Youth organization boxing director, and Curtis McDaniel, former C. Y. O. middleweight champion, and Hubert Hood, ex-Chicagoland Golden Gloves heavyweight title holder. Each agreement is for five years. . . . Karl Pojello will promote a wrestling show in Joliet tomorrow night.

CO-FAVORITES IN ST. SABINA TOURNEY LOSE

The co-favorites were defeated in first and second round games of the eighth annual Central A. A. U. basketball tournament in St. Sabina community center last night.

They were Illinois Tech, which lost to Danly Machines of Cicero, 42 to 31, in a first round game, and Leo High school, which was beaten, 25 to 23, in an overtime contest with the St. Sabina C. Y. O. quintet.

The Danly Machines spurted in the second half to defeat the Tech team after the score was tied at 17 all at the intermission.

Bob Baggott, forward on the Iowa Pre-Flight team, and former member of the St. Sabina five, was home on leave and scored 7 points for St. Sabina. Leo led, 8 to 7, at the half, Ray O'Donnell, Leo forward, led the scorers with 10 points.

The Wood Lawn Rubicons beat Buda Co., 47 to 30, in the concluding game of the first round.

Tonight three games are carded, with the Mount Carmel High school team meeting the De Paul freshmen in the opener at 7:30 o'clock. De La Salle High school meets St. Ignatius High at 8:30, and Danly Machines meet the Rubicons at 9:30.

Browns Voice Optimism in Opening Drill

Cape Girardeau, Mo., March 12 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns, American league champions, opened spring training today on a note of optimism.

As eight squad members ran thru a brisk workout, Secretary Charles DeWitt commented that "things look almost 100 per cent better than at this time last year."

"We have twice as many players in camp and we've had a break in the weather that gave us our first opening day workout outdoors since we moved north to train."

Manager Luke Sewell, who last year guided a team almost wholly without stars to the Browns' first pennant in American league history, said "we all had a good workout. We couldn't have done much better even in 70 degree sunshine."

50 Degree Temperature.

Clouds hung over Houck stadium, but no moisture fell. The temperature was about 50 degrees.

After watching Pete Gray, his one armed outfield sensation from Memphis of the Southern association, for the first time, Sewell commented:

"It's almost a miracle how easily he can catch and throw with the same hand. You certainly have to see him to believe it possible."

Jakucki Joins in Drill.

Joining in the opening workout were Pitchers Sig Jakucki, Al Hollingsworth, and Earl Jones; Infielders Vernon Stephens and Len Schulte; Gray and Catcher Frank Mancuso of the regular roster, and Les Arnold, a free agent catcher from Moline, Ill.

Outfielder Milton Byrnes, a 1944 regular, arrived in time to work out with the Toledo Mudhens, a Brownie farm club, this afternoon.

CUBAN JOINS SENATORS.

Washington, D. C., March 12 (AP).—The first of a dozen Cubans on the Washington Senators' roster showed up today when Joe Redondo, 6 foot, 170 pound outfielder joined the former quartet which had been working out for five days.

Cochran, Hoppe Split Opening Series Matches

New York, March 12 (AP).—Champion Welker Cochran of San Francisco and Willie Hoppe of New York split their first two matches today in their challenge series for the three cushion billiard title, but Hoppe took a slim lead on total points, 116 to 114. Hoppe won the afternoon block in 43 innings, 60 to 54, while Cochran took the night meeting, 60 to 56, in 51 innings. Each had a high run of six in the night block.

THIS MELODY'S DIFFERENT; A'S ACCENT YOUTH

Frederick, Md., March 12 (AP).—Major league baseball teams were supposed to be made up principally of old men this season, but Philadelphia's Athletics are different—they will accent youth, at least temporarily.

Of 17 players who reported for the start of spring conditioning today, only one, Outfielder Joe Cicero, admits he has seen more than 29 winters.

Before the week is over, approximately three dozen Athletics will be here, and club officials say only eight are 30 and up.

GIANTS SIGN MUNGO.

Lakewood, N. J., March 12 [Special].—If these were the good old days, now would be the time for headlines to scream: "Mungo signs and promises to win 20 games." But these are different times—and evidently a different Van Lingle. The former speedballing playboy merely has signed, sans promises, except for the serious statement that he'd prepared to pitch himself in to a starting berth for the Giants.

DODGERS SIGN GREGG.

Brooklyn, N. Y., March 12 (AP).—Harold Gregg, 23, right hander who won nine games and lost 16 last year, signed his 1945 contract in the Brooklyn Dodger office today. He is 4-F because of a back injury suffered as a child.

BOUDREAU TO BE LATE.

Lou Boudreau, manager of the Cleveland Indians, said last night at his home in Harvey, he expected to report to the Tribe's Lafayette, Ind., training camp "within a few days."

He was among the missing when the first drills were held, under direction of Coaches Burt Shotten and Oscar Melillo.

HAGG'S FIANCEE IN CHICAGO TO GREET RUNNER

Miss Dorothy Nortier, blonde fiance of Gunder Hagg, arrived last night from Oakland, Cal., where her mother, Mrs. Mesther Nortier, yesterday told the Associated Press that her daughter was en route here to discuss marriage plans with the Swedish distance runner.

Miss Nortier immediately registered at a local hotel and plans to meet Hagg tomorrow, when he is scheduled to arrive by plane from Rhode Island. He will run in Chicago Stadium Saturday.

Mrs. Nortier, in Oakland, said there was some question whether her daughter would be permitted to return to Sweden with Hagg, and that the couple would discuss the matter with authorities while here.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press disclosed in New York that Hagg's employer in Malmoe, Sweden, has asked the runner to return by April 17, and that Hagg has made plans to return to Sweden by plane a few days after Easter. Hagg plans to conclude his American visit in Buffalo March 31.

DE PAUL DRAWS WEST VIRGINIA AS TOURNEY FOE

New York, March 12 (AP).—The Bowling Green and Rensselaer Polytechnic institute quintets will open the eighth annual intercollegiate invitation basketball tournament in Madison Square Garden, it was disclosed in the first round pairings announced today.

They meet in the first game of the double header Saturday, with Tennessee and Rhode Island playing in the second contest. Next Monday's schedule finds DePaul and West Virginia meeting in the first game and St. John's and Muhlenberg meeting in the game that winds up the first round.

Coast Guardsman Wins Bout.

Harold Anspaugh of Charlotte, won the first of the middleweight contests from Art Beaton of Miami, who is attached to the fleet air wing at Key West. Vincent Gillis of New York, a coast guardsman, won a bout jammed with action from Billy Evans of Newark, a veteran of the South Pacific where he was wounded.

Howard Brodt of Washington floored Bill Bender of Buffalo in the first round and finished him in the second. Al Wankewicz of Jacksonville, drew a bye in the other middleweight pairings.

There was only one bout in the 175 pound class, Roland La Starza of New York defeating Joe Ridone from Charlotte, N. C. The heavyweight class was also limited to one bout, Arthur Jackson, New York, knocking out Corp. Mike Potocek, representing Newark after 1:48 of the second.

F. D. R. Gets Pass; He May Throw First Ball Again

Washington, D. C., March 12 (AP).—Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, said today that President Roosevelt had delivered a high hard one down the middle for night baseball this year.

The President and Griffith chatted about baseball when the latter made his annual call at the White House with season passes for the chief executive and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The President, who has missed the opening game in recent seasons, told Griffith it isn't beyond possibility that he will be on hand to pitch the first ball when the Senators start their schedule here April 16.

The owner of the capital's American league club, whose schedule includes as many games under lights as he could arrange, described Mr. Roosevelt as a supporter of night baseball. He said the President told him: "You've got to give me credit for night baseball." Griff said he agreed with that, recalling a Presidential statement a year or so ago that games after dark would provide recreation for day shifts in war plants.

GUY BUSH AND GENE HINRICHS SIGN WITH REDS

Cincinnati, O., March 12 (AP).—Guy Bush, 41, right handed baseball pitcher who began his major league career 21 years ago with the Chicago Cubs, signed a contract with the Cincinnati Reds today. He pitched for Chattanooga in the Southern association last year.

Warren C. Giles, Red's general manager, also said he has signed Gene Hinrichs, 38, left handed pitcher, medically discharged from the army, whose last baseball job was in 1941 with Columbia of the Sally league.

CAUSTY RUDITIS GAINS FINALS OF CASTING EVENT

Causty Ruditis, an eight year veteran of Tribune casting tournaments, won last night's session of the current competition by scoring 94 points to defeat 13 opponents at the International Sportsmen's show in the coliseum.

Ruditis, 2133 W. Coulter st., has won preliminary events three times in previous tournaments, but never has placed in a final contest. Last night's triumph qualifies him for the fishermen's final Saturday night.

Watier, Takes Second.

Amedee Watier, 1429 S. Harlem av., Forest Park, was second to Ruditis last night with a score of 91. Altho he has been a fisherman for several years, he had not competed in a casting tournament until last year's Tribune event, in which he failed to place.

William Wenzel Jr., 2616 S. Oak Park av., Berwyn, was third with a score of 90. Wenzel, like Ruditis, has been competing in Tribune tournaments since 1938.

Service Men Vie Thursday.

Club casters will compete in the Tribune tournament tonight and tomorrow, with service men taking part in Thursday night's event. The women's and husband-wife contests will be held Friday, with the fly events and final bait casting contests scheduled for Saturday and Sunday.

The deadline for entry in the service men's event has been extended until Thursday evening permitting men and women in uniform to compete, even tho they haven't made an official entry. Service men may compete by appearing at the contestants' gate on Wabash av. at the south end of the coliseum. Men who do not have casting equipment may write to the casting editor, Chicago Tribune, and ask that equipmen be available for them to borrow for use in the event.

No Entry Fee Required.

No entry fees are required for the service men's event, and $35 in war bonds and stamps will be awarded the winners. The six high scorers also will qualify for the week-end finals and a chance for additional war bond prizes.

Livingston Osborne, Illinois director of conservation, appeared at the show yesterday and reported that public officials face the challenge of restoring public hunting and fishing facilities for the benefit of service men who will want to return to outdoor sports when the war is over.

"Here in Illinois," Osborne said, "we have decided upon a long range post-war conservation program aimed at the restoration of our lakes, streams, swamps, and wild areas, with a view to their recreational use by our service men."

ASSAILS PUBLIC HOUSING USE TO BANISH BLIGHT

Not Slum Answer, Says Warterfield.

Government housing will not solve the problem of rehabilitating Chicago's blighted near-loop areas because it will not restore their former value and desirability, J. Soule Warterfield, realtor and former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, told the West Side Real Estate board yesterday.

He said the prosperity and welfare of the areas containing public housing are held to low levels because the government fixes income ceilings for the tenants and ousts those who improve themselves and earn more. Such areas are handicapped by shoddy construction and design, and many government constructed homes "will not outlive their mortgages."

Urges Restore Values.

"The blighted districts surrounding the loop were among the most desirable and valuable properties in Chicago before the blight began to creep in," he said. "Every element of value these districts once had, both in dollars and in desirability can and should be restored, plus.

"This cannot be done by regimentation of the underprivileged in barracks under a system of tax exemption and subsidy to inanimate brick and mortar in these reclaimed blighted districts. Such regimented housing will only perpetuate many of the conditions which produce blight in a wide belt surrounding the loop."

Recalling that public housing proponents have worked on government housing and slum clearance for 15 years and were provided with millions of dollars and such implements as condemnation rights and tax exemptions, he asked, "What have they to show for it?"

Large Areas Blighted.

There are 22 square miles of property in Chicago which are "to say the least" blighted districts under Illinois law. In this area are 242,000 dwelling units, housing 838,000 persons, he said.

Discussing the public housing argument that privately financed building in slum areas does not benefit persons who inhabit the area, Warterfield said:

"The people now living in blighted districts which are to be rebuilt should be rehoused, not necessarily, tho, in the same identical site they now occupy. Most of them did not come into these districts from choice. They came because there was no other place to go.

"The hardworking, self respecting member of any race wants to rear his family away from the influence of the shiftless or uneducated. He does not give full expression to this desire but it is there just the same."

TRUCKING LINES SEEK TO BOOST SHIPPING RATES

The Illinois Motor Truck Operators' association yesterday asked the OPA for higher shipping rates to offset a recent war labor board directive granting Chicago area truck drivers increased straight pay rates and overtime allowances.

William Fullerton, chairman of the association's labor committee, said the WLB order means truck drivers will make about 15 per cent more each week and that 5 million dollars of additional revenues will be needed to meet the increase in the two years it is effective, beginning retroactively on Jan. 1, 1945, and ending Dec. 31, 1946. About 10,000 drivers are affected.

Washington, D. C., March 12 (AP).—February sales of surplus goods by the treasury's office of surplus property totaled $7,156,372, compared with $13,264,703 in January.

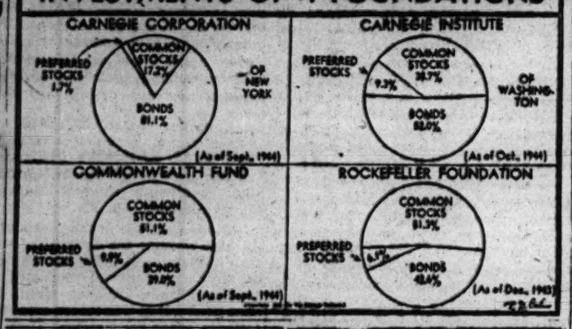
INVESTMENTS OF 4 FOUNDATIONS



War Housing Groups Plan 2 Big Projects

BY AL CHASE.

Two public housing projects to provide homes for 672 families of Negro war workers and representing a total investment of $3,610,000 of federal funds were announced yesterday by the Chicago housing authority and the national housing agency. Both will be operated by CHA. When these are completed Chicago will have 8,187 public housing residential units; 4,111 will be for war workers and the remaining 4,076 for low income families.

The larger of the two new projects will contain 422 dwelling units in both row-house and three story apartment buildings. It will occupy four square blocks bounded by 37th st., Princeton and Wentworth avs., and Pershing rd.

CHA Will Buy Project.

The site is one of the sections scheduled by the Chicago Plan commission for clearance. The land will be acquired by the federal public housing authority [a subsidiary of NHA]. Title will remain in the federal government with the expectation that when the war ends CHA will buy the project from FPHA. CHA will manage the project during and after the war.

Designed by Loebl & Schlossman of Chicago, the project is expected to be under construction by June 1 and ready for some families by Dec. 1. Miss Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary of CHA, said rentals probably would be from $20 to $38 per month.

Cash Allotted for Project.

William K. Divers, regional representative of NHA, announced that $1,500,000 had been allocated for publicly financed housing for war workers' families in Chicago. The project probably will provide homes for 250 families, he said. A site has not been selected.

Land will be bought and the project built by FPHA, which will use CHA as its agent for site selection, planning, construction and management. The houses will be of permanent construction and, as provided by the Lanham act, must be sold to private families after the war.

RFC HEAD IN CHICAGO RESIGNS AFTER SPLIT ON SURPLUS POLICIES

B. A. Mattingly, Chicago manager for the Reconstruction Finance corporation, yesterday resigned as a result of a disagreement over surplus real estate disposal policies. He will be succeeded by Peter I. Bukowski, who last month resigned as Mattingly's assistant after 15 years with the agency to become president of the Cosmopolitan National bank.

Mattingly telegraphed his resignation to the RFC Feb. 26, but said that it was not accepted as effective until the close of business yesterday.

"My action was prompted by the receipt of a directive from Sam H. Husbands, RFC surplus property director, which indicated the agency's policy affecting real estate declared surplus by owning agencies and referred to RFC for disposal would be one with which I was not in sympathy and to which I could not subscribe," he said.

Bukowski was not available for comment.

Stocks Extend Comeback in Listless Trade

New York, March 12 (AP).—A long list of stocks today extended the recovery move begun Saturday the trade was the slowest for a 5 hour session since Nov. 28. The ticker tape frequently was at a standstill.

After an improved opening gains running to 2 or more points were run up in the forenoon, but many advances were reduced later.

Bidding was based mainly on belief that the relapse last week had provided a healthy "technical correction" of the long advance to new highs for 7½ years. Pressure of idle money for employment again was a bullish factor. Reconversion doubts persisted, however, and some customers were content to hold aloof from trading.

MILWAUKEE LIENS RISE.

New York, March 12 (AP). Buying of secondary railroad bonds imparted steadiness to today's market after the shakeout last week. Advances ran fractions to 3 points or more at one time, but profit taking trimmed some gains.

A Supreme court decision refusing to hear an appeal on the reorganization plan of the Milwaukee railroad, plus a District court order in Chicago directing further steps in the case sent the carrier's loans up ¼ to 2¾ points.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS.

Prices rose on light turnover of 38,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Volume leaders included Peabody Coal, up ⅝; Aviation corporation, up ⅛; Commonwealth Edison and Central and South West Utilities, both unchanged, and Chicago corporation common, down ⅛.

Great Northern Orders 25 Diesel Locomotives

The Great Northern railway yesterday announced it has ordered 25 diesel locomotives from the Electro-Motive division of General Motors corporation. Twelve are to be delivered this year and 13 early in 1946.

Alcoa Ruled Monopoly by Appeals Court

New York, March 12 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today reversed a federal court decision that the Aluminum Company of America and its subsidiaries were not violating anti-trust laws and returned the case to the lower court for further proceeding. The original proceedings lasted 26 months, setting a federal court record.

The court held that the lower court erred in ruling that Alcoa was not monopolizing interstate and foreign commerce in violation of federal anti-trust laws.

Sat as Supreme Court.

The court, consisting of Judges Learned Hand, Augustus N. Hand, and Thomas W. Swan, sat as members of the United States Supreme court by special legislation after four Supreme court justices had disqualified themselves, leaving less than a quorum.

The court held that Alcoa had exercised a monopoly which violated section 2 of the Sherman anti-trust act, but left to the District court to determine whether "eventually some form of dissolution [of Alcoa] would be proper."

It also ruled that Aluminium, Ltd. of Canada had violated the "restraint of trade" section of the act by entering into a cartel agreement with a number of foreign interests in 1936.

One Dismissal Sustained.

Dismissal by District Judge Francis G. Caffey of the government complaint as to the Aluminum Goods Manufacturing company was sustained on the basis that this company had no part in the alleged conspiracy.

"The plaintiff [the government] was seeking to show that many transactions, neutral on their face, were not in fact necessary to the development of the Alcoa's business, and had no motive except to exclude others and perpetuate its hold upon the ingot market," the Circuit court's unanimous opinion read.

"Upon that effort success depended in case the plaintiff failed to satisfy the court that it was unnecessary under section 2 to convict Alcoa of practices unlawful of themselves. The plaintiff has so satisfied us and the issue of intent ceases to be important.

No Monopoly "Unconscious."

"To fall within section 2, the monopolist must have the power to monopolize and the intent to monopolize. To read the passage as demanding any 'specific' intent makes nonsense of it, for no monopolist monopolizes unconscious of what he is doing.

"So here Alcoa meant to keep and did keep that complete and exclusive hold upon the ingot market with which it started. That was to monopolize the market, however innocently it otherwise proceeded. So far as the judgment held that it was not within section 2, it must be reversed."

MINERS' STRIKE VOTE LARGEST; COSTS $300,000

Washington, D. C., March 12 (AP).—The biggest strike vote ever taken by the national labor relations board—the March 28 ballot among 400,000 United Mine Workers' union members—will cost $300,000, NLRB estimated today. A spokesman said a deficiency appropriation may be required to meet the cost, which must be borne by NLRB under provisions of the Smith-Connally act.

The board will hire a minimum of 4,000 special agents, for at least three days at $11.80 per day, to handle the vote which results from John L. Lewis' notice that a dispute with bituminous coal operators existed on Feb. 26. Results of the balloting will be announced March 29.

The vote will be taken on the miners' own time, before or after working hours, to eliminate possible loss of production.

SPIEGEL MAKES PROFIT IN 1944, FIRST SINCE '41

Additional Stores Boost Sales.

Spiegel, Inc., yesterday reported net income in 1944 was $169,464, compared with a net loss in 1943 of $2,376,714. Sales increased to $49,130,493, primarily because many new retail outlets were acquired. In 1943 they were $27,827,617. Profit was computed after setting aside $535,000 for income taxes and $500,000 for post-war contingencies. The company last reported a profit in 1941.

Modie J. Spiegel Jr.

One hundred stores were opened or acquired in 1944 and the management is negotiating for several more which have annual sales of approximately 4 million dollars, said Modie J. Spiegel Jr., president. Approximately 5 million was spent last year to acquire retail stores, he said. Mail order sales increased 25 per cent.

Libby Glass Income Soars.

Net income of Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company was $7,350,018, or $2.88 a share last year, almost double 1943 earnings of $3,940,282, or $1.55 a share, John D. Biggers, president, reported. Renegotiation is not expected to affect earnings materially, he said.

Estimated federal tax bill was $4,506,540. Profit was computed after setting aside $1,631,005 for depreciation, amortization, and special obsolescence.

"Safety glass, which has contributed so markedly to highway safety, has in new and adapted forms, protected airmen around the globe," he said. "Production of aircraft glass, fabrication of transparent plastic, and assembly of vital airplane enclosures and other aircraft parts, continued to constitute our chief production for the military services."

Tank Car Profits Lower.

Union Tank Car company's net income in 1944 dipped to $2,348,175, or $2.18 a share, from $3,074,178, or $2.85 a share. Gross income decreased $3,778,298. L. J. Drake, president, said the decrease reflected shorter hauls and a reduction in mileage allowance.

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company in its 1944 report reiterated the comment made a year ago on "the seriousness of the problem of contract termination" and the "necessity of prompt and fair settlement of all claims." A. W. Robertson, chairman, and G. H. Bucher, president, said no insurmountable difficulties in obtaining prompt and fair settlements are expected after the war's end.

The company last year cleared more than 3,000 terminated war contracts, they said. Very little work had been done on most of these contracts and the materials on hand were diverted to other contracts. Westinghouse collected about 18 million dollars on claims stemming from terminations, and charged about 6 million dollars to expense on terminations in which no claims were made. The company closed the year with no open terminations.

Liggett & Myers Weighs Increase in Capitalization

Flemington, N. J., March 12 (AP).—J. W. Andrews, president of Liggett & Myers Tobacco company, told stockholders at the annual meeting today the company was considering the advisability of increasing its permanent capital thru preferred stock or debentures. The amount and when such financing may be undertaken were matters for future determination, he said.

Contend Britain 'Outsmarts' Yanks in Getting Newsprint

Washington, D. C., March 12 (AP).—Two congressmen argued at a house committee hearing today that Great Britain is "outsmarting" the United States on newsprint supplies.

British Get More Pulp.

Bevin acknowledged that:

1. The United States is shipping wood pulp to the British now, altho they are receiving increased supplies from Canada even tho this country's Canadian imports have been cut.

2. The British have made an agreement with Sweden and are negotiating one with Finland for paper and pulp, but this country has made no such move.

"Britain is taking good care of their end of this situation," Murphy said, "but it looks like no one's taking care of America."

No Move to Ease Pinch.

Brown added that "it seems like we're giving away supplies critically needed here, but aren't doing anything about getting any more to relieve our shortages."

Bevin said FEA "is trying to see that the foreign nations get their supplies elsewhere," but it was not the agency's responsibility to initiate action to obtain additional pulp.

Asked who should be responsible, he said, "I think the war production board looks after that."

Brown said it appeared that some one might have made an agreement to have the United States refrain from competing with Britain for Scandinavian supplies, but Bevin said he had no knowledge of any such arrangement.

One Harvester Unit in France Found Intact

International Harvester company's principal plant in France at Croix, near Lille, was left intact by the Germans because they needed farm implements, A. Maxwell Rode, European operations director, said yesterday.

Rode, who recently spent four months in England and France, said the company's other plant in France at Montataire, a suburb of Paris, was bombed by American planes just before D-day. This factory was adjacent to a German V-bomb assembly plant, he said.

Germans Destroy Warehouses.

Other Harvester holdings in France consisted of nine warehouses which because they were used to store militar, supplies were destroyed by the Germans to keep their contents from falling into allied hands. All Harvester operations in France were carried on by its French subsidiary, Cima Wallut.

The Montataire plant has been reconditioned and production may be started there and at the Croix plant as soon as conditions permit, he said. Lack of transportation for raw materials and coal prevents operation now, he explained.

Information is unavailable on holdings of the German subsidiary, he said, but it is believed the Neuss agricultural implement plant was leveled, as was the Hamburg warehouse.

Plant Expansion Planned.

The warehouse built before the war at Doncaster, England, will be expanded into a plant to manufacture items which the company will be unable to export from this country, Rode said.

A major problem in post-war trade with Great Britain will be the changed position of both British and American business and financial interests, he said. Altho the positions of the countries have been reversed, the United States becoming a creditor nation and Great Britain a debtor, mental attitudes remain unchanged, he explained.

CCC GETS NEW LEASE ON LIFE PLUS 2 BILLION

Pledge Full Scandal Quiz Before Vote.

Washington, D. C., March 12 (AP).—A new lease on life for the Commodity Credit corporation was voted by the house today after administration assurance of vigorous dealings with any employe found involved in speculation "scandals."

Approved 359 to 8, the legislation would boost the borrowing power of the agency, which supports farm prices, from 3 billion dollars to 5 billions, a half billion dollars above the amount set by the senate.

Passage came without a fight on consumer food subsidies, an issue on which many previous CCC battles had turned. The legislation next will go to a committee to adjust senate-house differences.

Demand Congress' Own Quiz.

Not content with administration promises that any CCC employe found involved in "scandals" would be fired and legal proceedings taken, Republicans shouted demands that congress itself probe charges made in the house by Rep. Taber [R., N. Y.] and Rep. Keefe [R., Wis.] that certain unnamed CCC employes had enabled speculators to "make millions" thru tip-offs on impending government actions affecting commodity prices.

A Republican effort led by Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.], to halve the administration request for a 2 billion dollar increase in CCC borrowing power was defeated on a party line vote, 133 to 125. Another Republican amendment, to cut the extension to one year instead of two from June 30, was defeated, 119 to 101. No concerted effort was made to kill the agency outright.

Jones Promises Full Inquiry.

The eight voting against the measure, all Republicans, were Bucky [N. Y.], Hoffman [Mich.], Clevenger, Jones, and Smith [O.], Kean [N. J.], Rich [Pa.], and Winter [Kas.].

In a letter to congress War Food Administrator Jones promised to get "to the bottom of these charges" [of CCC scandals] and take prompt action "if any evidence is found of improper conduct."

Rep. Keefe said after Jones' letter was read that he was preparing a resolution calling not only for congressional investigation of the CCC but "a very searching inquiry into all government corporations."

Democrats argued that severe limitations would scuttle the war time food production program and that congress had pledged farmers CCC support of basic commodity prices.

IGOE AUTHORIZES RFC PAYMENT BY MILWAUKEE RD.

Supreme Court Denies Creditors' Plea.

Action by Federal District Judge Igoe and the United States Supreme court yesterday brought the reorganization of the Milwaukee railroad nearer completion. Judge Igoe authorized trustees of the road to pay the $10,442,827 claim of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, along with unpaid interest at 4 per cent, and the Supreme court denied junior creditors a review in the reorganization plan.

Representatives of the nine classes of creditors will meet with Judge Igoe this morning for the nomination and appointment of five reorganization managers of the road.

Date Bonds from Loan Payment.

Payment of the RFC claim clears the way for distribution of an equal amount of new first mortgage bonds under the plan to holders of Milwaukee and Northern Railroad company first mortgage bonds, Milwaukee and Northern consolidated mortgage bonds, and general mortgage bonds of the Milwaukee road.

Interest on the new bonds when issued will not date from Jan. 1, 1944, the effective date of the reorganization plan, but from the date of repayment of the RFC loan, the court said.

The junior creditors of the Milwaukee road had sought a review of the reorganization plan because of revisions made by the interstate commerce commission.

Deny Junior Group Appeal.

A major change opposed by the junior creditors was of the effective date from Jan. 1, 1939, to Jan. 1, 1944. This change was approved by the District court and the Court of Appeals dismissed the case brought by the junior creditors. The Supreme court refused to reconsider the appeals court action.

Counsel for the trustees said that on Jan. 1 this year the road had $124,160,925 cash, which had increased to $128,767,000 on March 1, on which $29,196,927 was free cash after interest and other requirements were deducted. The court's action freed $23,302,248 of pledged collateral with the RFC.

WLB REINSTATE ORDER PUTS END TO FUSE STRIKE

Detroit, Mich., March 12 (AP).—Thompson Products, Inc. today accepted a regional war labor board directive to reinstate 20 discharged workers and revoke suspensions against 129 others. The action ended a strike of 700 employes which since Friday has hampered production of artillery shell fuses. Production was expected to be resumed tomorrow morning.

The RWLB order, issued after three days of hearings, upheld the discharges of six employes pending arbitration. The discharges and suspensions were imposed by the company which accused the workers of taking part in fomenting an earlier strike.

Strike Closes Foundries.

St. Louis, Mo., March 12 (AP).—Eight St. Louis foundries were shut down today by a strike of more than 1,100 AFL foundrymen seeking a 5 cent an hour wage increase. About 3,000 other workers were made idle by the shutdown.

GRAINS ADVANCE ON MILL BUYING OF MAY WHEAT

Wheat prices were strong yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade on buying of May delivery by mills and southwestern cash interests, which was regarded as reflecting further sales of flour to the army. May sold at $1.71¼ a bushel, up 1¾ cents and within ½ cent of the seasonal high before profit cashing caused a small reaction. The close was ½ to 1⅝ higher, July leading.

Corn was up about 1 cent early, but reacted later on scattered selling and finished unchanged to ¼ higher. Oats rose ⅛ to ½, rye ⅛ to ⅝, and barley ½ cent.

Cash corn sold at ceiling prices with the movement restricted by lack of box cars. The Baldwin Elevator company, Decatur, Ill., said country elevators were clogged with corn and unable to take in more until they have shipped out the winter shelled corn.

HOG RECEIPTS SLUMP; CATTLE PRICES LOWER

Even smaller supplies of pork for civilians were indicated yesterday when leading meat packing centers received smaller shipments of hogs from farms. The 20 largest stock yards received only 50,000 head, fewer than Chicago alone handled on January Mondays last year. Prices held at ceilings.

Demand for lambs was brisk and prices were strong to 10 cents higher. Top loads reached $17, highest price since April, 1944, and a new 16 year March peak. Cattle sold slowly. Most steers were steady to weak at $14.50 to $16.50. Heifers held steady, but beef cows, canners, and cutters were weak to 25 cents lower. Bulls slumped 15 to 25 cents more and sold 75 cents below Thursday's prices. Calves were steady.
